BAD BOYS AND GIRLS

Waifs That Have Fallen Into the Hands of the Law.

SADLY IN NEED OF REFORM

Young Maids Who Are Carving Out a Life of Misery—The Disappearance of a Buggy and the Youthful Robbers.

The Bell family with its complications has at last fallen into the hands of the police who, with the assistance of the court, will straighten matters out. Mrs. Bell is the mother of a family of girls—May, aged 14, Lizzie, aged 11, and Alice aged 8. They have been familiar figures on the streets of the city, thinly clad and grimy with filth and dirt, they have been more or less conspicuous. They were frequently about saloons and always appeared to have change wherewith to buy the luxuries of child life, candy and nuts, or to rent bicycles. Where the money came from is not known though the charitable disposed say that they begged it. Others claim that the oldest girl was wiser in her day and generation than she should be.

The officers tried in vain to drive them from the streets and appeals to the mother were not availing. As a last resort now information has been filed against them and under a charge of "mendacity, vagrancy and incorrigibility," an effort will be made to send them to the reform school.

The children are by no means blameable for their tendencies and condition. The surroundings in the cabin home near the corner of Third and Chestnut streets have been demoralizing. Ostensibly Mrs. Bell has been doing washing for a living but the officers give the place a bad name, and John Harris, a regular frequenter of the house, was sent down to Deer Lodge for 60 days for vagrancy.

Mrs. Bell is to be given a chance to do better when free of all these incumbrances and if not she too will come under the ban of the law.

Another trio of waifs came before Judge Fitzgerald yesterday afternoon. They were three boys—David Richards, Sam Bonner and William Bracken, who are accused of stealing a horse and buggy from John Jones. The carriage disappeared from near Brownell's stable Friday afternoon and no one knew what had become of it. The kids came home Friday night about 11 o'clock each riding a pony, and questioning brought out that they had taken the horse and buggy, driven down in the valley where they traded it to Indians for the ponies. The Bonner and Bracken boys are practically homeless, and are in sore need of restraint and schooling. If they do not get this they are in a fair way to become famous criminals and the court will seek a way out by sending them to a reformatory institution. The boys are under 16 years of age and have given the police considerable trouble by petty pilfering. Their last escapade is the most serious yet committed and it is conceded to be time to stop their operations.

A MAN OF NERVE.

On Hands and Knees He Drags Himself Nearly a Mile.

From the New Northwest: George S. Gordon, a ranchman who resides about five miles from Avon, near Bradley post-office, met with a most distressing accident last Friday evening while driving from Avon to his home. When about two miles from Avon his team became unmanageable while crossing the railroad track and started on a mad run up the track. After running about 40 rods the team shied to one side and struck an embankment, throwing Mr. Gordon out of the wagon and onto the track. He tried to get up, but found he could not stand, and, pulling off his boot, discovered his right leg was broken just above the ankle. He was in a sad plight; it was quite cold and dark; he could not get his boot back on; the nearest house one and a half miles away, and he could not walk a step. In this condition he started out on a painful and tedious journey up the track, crawling along the ties on his hands and knees and dragging his broken leg behind him. He had not proceeded very far when a train came thundering down the track and he dragged himself to one side to let it pass. After a short rest he started again on his journey. He had traveled fully three-fourths of a mile in this manner when he saw another light on the track which he took to be the headlight of a locomotive. To his joy and surprise it crossed the track and he raised his voice to its utmost he shouted for help. He did not call in vain; the light started toward him and he soon recognized his two sons. The team had come home without the father and the boys immediately set out in search of him. They found him nearly exhausted and his hands and knees were skinned and bleeding. He was taken home and a physician was telegraphed for. Dr. Cranson went down Saturday, arriving at the injured man's home about noon. The doctor found him in a cheerful mood, although both bones in his leg were broken and his hands and knees swollen and sore from the terrible experience of the preceding night. Mr. Gordon is 33 years of age and is a veteran of the Union army, having served during the war in a Michigan regiment. Dr. Cranson says he is a man of wonderful nerve and thinks he will get along all right, though a wound he received in his right thigh during the war may tend to aggravate the case.

BREAKS THE RECORD.

Josh Sprucey Fills the Opera House to Overflowing.

Evans opera house was last night uncomfortably crowded, every seat, besides several extra chairs, were filled long before the rising of the curtain, and when the curtain did rise there was not an inch of standing room left. In point of attendance of numbers it beat "Old Kentucky," which up to date was the banner horse this season. In seeing Joshua Sprucey one does not go to the theater expecting to hear the English classics declaimed by stilted elocutionists, and meditate over the miseries of life and the depravity of human nature doled out in pedantic prose or stilted blank verse. Instead of this, Joshua Sprucey makes one forget the trials and troubles of the day. The play is a dynamo of laughter from beginning to end, and yet a little thread of pathos runs through it which gives, if not a resting to the risibilities of the audience, at least a palpitation of all that is good within us. The company are all up to the requirements of their respective roles—embracing in addition many clever specialists, but the creme de la creme is Major O'Laughlin in his manipulation of the musket. His "gun drill" is the very best thing of the kind seen in this section of the country.

So much for the stage part. Now a word or words of praise is due to the best orchestra outside of a grand opera company ever brought to Montana. Their street concert with brass instruments was most excellent, while their string and brass selections and overtures fairly captured the audience inside. The orchestral selections received many justly deserved encores. The company leaves for Butte this morning, where no doubt they will play to large business.

AT THE REGISTER.

Business Takes a Jump and 400 Names Were Inscribed Yesterday.

The work of registration for the city election took a boom yesterday and about 400 names were recorded, making a total up to date of about 1,000 who will be entitled to vote at the spring election. This will be increased materially during the next three days, which may bring the total up to the usual number. The republicans and populists were working bravely during the day and it looked as though there might be a still hunt on in certain quarters.

HERE IS THE NEWEST VEIL.

Spider Web Mesh Sprinkled With Iridescent Chenille Dots.

From the Philadelphia Times. Veils are at a premium while the March winds are blowing. The young person who wishes to keep her complexion a thing of beauty must guard it at this season of the year with special care. To do this veils are a necessity. The new French novelty veillings have just appeared in the shops, and are pretty enough to make one forget the exorbitant prices asked for them.

The newest and most novel veil in town is called the Dresden. It has a black spider web mesh covered with chenille dots in the iridescent colors—pale pink, light blue and delicate green. Another novelty is the brown spider web veil, sprinkled with black chenille dots.

Lace-trimmed veils are much worn. The latest shows the bottom of the veil cut in small Van Dyke points, edged with Valenciennes lace. Many of the most expensive black veils are finished with an applique border of white lace.

The white chiffon veils so popular at the beginning of the season are still worn, but now they have a border of colored dots.

The tulle veil promises to be the veil of the spring and summer. It comes in any of the ordinary colors and lies at the back of the head in a large bow, with flowing ends. In fact, all the new veils tie in a bow at the back, and in some cases the ends are long enough to make themselves quite conspicuous.

Every fashionable woman these days owns two or three veil pins. Those most in vogue are shaped like a butterfly and made with a patent spring which is concealed under the body.

Vari-colored bits of enamel may form the butterfly's wings, or they may be studded with sparkling gems. Besides the butterfly veil pins there are dragon flies and wonderful looking beetles acting in this capacity.

Some Clever Old Maids.

In literature the list of the unmarried is a long one. Among the noted names are Nora Perry, Rose Lizabeth Cleveland, sister of the president; "Ouida," Jean Ingelow, Ross, Nouchette Cary, Anna Dickinson, Florence Nightingale, who has gained fame as a writer since she retired as a nurse; Grace Denio Litchfield, Edith Thomas and Susan Coolidge.
