New Business and Dwelling Houses Being Erected—cottages for Employees—Personal Mention and Brevities.

Special Correspondence of the Standard.

Belt, Mont., April 25.—The work of excavating for the new store of the Belt Mercantile company is being pushed as rapidly as possible and will be completed next week.

Superintendent Kittle of the Castner Coal & Coke company will erect 50 cottages for employes of that company as early as possible.

The freemen's ball was a grand success in every particular, nearly 300 guests taking part in the festivities, and 90 couples lined up in the grand march.

In the catch-as-catch-can wrestling match between Adam Gibson of this place and John Love of Sand Coulee, which occurred a few evenings ago, the contest was declared a draw.

The principal topic of conversation here at present is as to whether or not Belt should be equally divided on the question of the matter.

James Maye of Lucerne, Pa., is in Belt, the guest of his daughters, Mrs. Purcell and Miss Maye. He will remain indefinitely.

The Miners' union have leased the Odd Fellows' hall and will hereafter meet there regularly.

The new Odd Fellows hall will be formally dedicated next Monday evening.

Miss Maye E. Maye, who has been teaching school at Belt for nearly two years, has resigned and left yesterday for the east.

Superintendent Kittle and family are domiciled in the Falligan residence, where he will reside until the completion of his new house.

Thomas Nance walked back on what he considered a miss-free Tuesday last and as a result of his fall is now nursing several scalp and flesh wounds.

TRADE REVIEW.

New York, April 24.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say: The feeling is more hopeful at many trade centers owing to the continued improvement of demand in retail lines.

New York, April 24.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade to-morrow will say: Business has been favored by seasonable weather and the distribution of products has made fair progress.

Neither pig iron nor manufactured products have improved in demand as yet, though further combinations have raised prices of rod and bar iron to $1.20, while steel bars sell at $1.05 and nails are to be 15c higher after May 1.

MR. KAUFMAN FAILS

The Well-Known Great Falls Clothier Makes an Assignment.

PERSONALS AND BREVITIES

It is Said That 30,000 Head of Cattle Will Be Turned Loose This Spring on the Milk River Range—An Accident.

Great Falls, April 25.—Something of a sensation was caused this forenoon when Mr. Kaufman, the well-known clothier, made an assignment to W. S. Frary, city treasurer. The preferred creditors are: Northwestern National bank, for $2,000; Mrs. Kaufman, for $1,250; and the Michael company, for $1,200.

Mrs. Charles Price of Benton is in the city, the guest of her sister, Mrs. F. J. Adams.

A transcript of judgment has been filed in the suit of the Royal Milling company vs. W. A. McHardie.

In the suit of Frank Lewis vs. J. A. Robbins et al., a judgment for plaintiff in the sum of $184.83 has been entered.

The following suits were filed this morning in the district court: Charles P. Woehner vs. F. W. Eskey, to recover $51.28; First National bank vs. T. A. Ringwald et al., an action to foreclose mortgage on lots 8 and 9, block 463, undivided half interest, First addition to the townsite of Great Falls, for $150.

It is said that about 30,000 cattle will be shipped into Northern Montana this spring, and most of the now-comers will be driven to the range along Milk river. Those familiar with the subject say that Con Kohrs will bring in about 8,000 head; C. W. Price, 3,000 head; St. Louis Cattle company, 1,000 head; Miller Live Stock company, 1,000 head; Robert Coburn, 4,000 head; Sieben, 1,000 head; Ford & Hill, 1,000 head; Dan Flowerree, 1,500 yearlings; J. McNamara, 1,000 head; George Bowers, 1,000 head; Hoffman & Sadler, 1,000 head; Cruett & Phelps, 1,000 head; Brewster, 2,500 head; Colin & Hunter, 5,000 head; Bloom Cattle company, 5,000 head.

NATIVE TRIBES OF ABYSSINIA

Interesting Experiences Among the People Around Lake Rudolf.

From the London Times. Dr. A. Donaldson Smith, the American explorer, lectured again this week at the Royal institution, describing his expedition to the north of Lake Rudolf and among the Gallas, made with the object of exploring the country between the Somali coast and the lake, both from geographical and natural history standpoint.

The expedition was an altogether private undertaking. Its personnel consisted of three Europeans, Frederick Gillet, E. Dodson, taxidermist, and Dr. Smith, with 80 Samouls. One hundred and ten camel were required to carry the stores. Of the country of Arusa Gallas nothing was hitherto known, except along the lines of march of the Italian explorers, Captain Bottego and Prince Ruspoli. Bonga, in Kaffa, and the upper course of the river Omo were reached many years ago from Abyssinia by M. D'Abadie and M. Borelli, but below these points the country was unexplored as far as Lake Rudolf and the lower end of Lake Stephanie. From the lower end of the lake the line of march passed again through unexplored territory until the Aana river was reached, except at Guassa Npiro.

The expedition started from Berbera on July 10, 1891, and on October 1 the party was across the Shebele river, after having traversed 450 miles from the coast. The terrible Gallas should now have appeared, but instead of a lusty, warlike people only a few poor villagers of 100 huts were found, the natives presenting the most abject appearance. Mastered by the Abyssinians, these poor people were only the remnants of a great tribe. One could not find over 5,000 souls among them now.

On Sept. 17 the Luku was reached, a place of some importance as an agricultural center. All this country, Dr. Smith said, was excellent for farming purposes. Indeed, most of it used to be under cultivation before the Abyssinians killed off the greater part of the inhabitants. What people are left work hard to pay the enormous taxes demanded by their conquerors. Some days' march brought the party to a place where they were astonished to discover the presence of stone buildings. Here there was evidence of a fair degree of civilization on every side. On one side was an acre of ground, inclosed by a high stone wall, having curious arched gateway.

Crossing the Jub the expedition came among a people called the Gerre Gallas, whose country extends 100 miles to the west. They are an intelligent lot of people, very light colored and of graceful, slender figure. Though many of them have no religion at all, Mohammedanism is fast taking hold among them.

The Borans country and people were next met with, a people who were by far the richest and most civilized and powerful natives the lecturer had seen. They showed themselves rather treacherous, however, as one day, just after the party had made their camp, between 2,000 and 3,000 warriors dashed down upon it. Many of the Borans were mounted on smart horses of a superior breed. They succeeded in driving off many of the animals before they could be checked. At one instant, when a lot of horsemen were collecting near by, preparatory to a charge, Dr. Smith and one of a few shotguns in his boys, loaded with small shot, and ordered them to fire directly at the horses. The effect was magical; horses were thrown into a panic and the charge broken up and the Borans immediately afterward sued for peace.

Another bit of excitement was experienced in connection with a large and warlike tribe called the Arbore. Without any warning the party one day found themselves surrounded by a yelling, dancing crowd throwing javelins and letting fly their arrows. Like the Borans, they knew but simple weapons, and, hearing for the first time the whistling of bullets and the terrifying sound of the firing, they broke into a panic and fled. Many of the tribes would don their war paint and feathers to receive the explorers, but a friendly and at the same time confident demeanor always carried the party through. The very idea of a small band of men marching straight through a country teeming with hostile tribes seemed nothing less than miraculous to the native mind.

After more than 12 months' journeying Lake Rudolf was reached on July 14, 1891. A journey around the northern end of the lake, which Dr. Smith made by land and by water, accomplished in a little collapsible Berthoulet boat, disclosed the fact that the Niannan is the only river emptying into the lake and that there is no river Bass, as supposed by Count Teleki. The lake did not appear like a long sheet of water lying in an abrupt cut or fissure in the earth's surface, as anticipated. On the contrary, it was much spread out except at its southern end. It lies in a shallow sort of basin, in an open country. The southern end of the lake marks the rather abrupt termination of the great mountain system extending north from Mount Kenya. He found the lake to vary in depth from two to 25 feet, its elevation being 1,200 feet above sea level. The party marched 200 miles down the lake, and had a very severe time.

Dr. Smith expressed himself as well pleased with the results of the expedition, both from the geographical and natural history points of view. Of 700 birds brought home 24 have been described by Bowdler Sharpe of the British Museum as being new to science, and there are several new reptiles, besides many mammals, butterflies and plants which have not yet been completely classified.

THE MARKETS.

New York, April 25.—To-day's stock market was above the recent half-holiday average in point of activity. The course of prices was reactionary, chiefly in sympathy with sugar. The unqualified success of the Northern Pacific reorganization and intimation of favorable progress in several other properties served to bring the railway list out of the rut in which it had been held.

well as it can. Prices of commodities are on the whole lower than ever before, having declined about 2 per cent since July, 1890, and 17 per cent since July, 1892. The fall in manufactured products is a little less than it was April 1, but in farm products greater.

Speculation is swayed by trifling influences when markets are very narrow. Sales of wool included about half a million pounds, Australian and some domestic for export, but were in all only 4,063,100 pounds, and for three weeks have been 9,527,700, of which 5,070,300 were domestic against 17,409,500 last year, of which 9,292,500 were domestic.

Neither pig iron nor manufactured products have improved in demand as yet, though further combinations have raised prices of rod and bar iron to $1.20, while steel bars sell at $1.05 and nails are to be 15c higher after May 1.

AN EASY CURE.

When you can use Electricity with ease and comfort without the shock or the inconvenience of the old style battery, it becomes a pleasure to get cured by it. No one questions the curative power of Electricity, but there is only one way to apply it right. That is by Dr. Sanden's Electric Belt.

You put it on when you go to bed at night, fixing the regulator so that it gives a pleasant warming current without burning the skin, and you wear it all night without bother. You sleep sound and awake in the morning refreshed and vigorous, with every vital part teeming with animal magnetism. It is easy to cure by this method.

A great many people know nothing of Dr. Sanden's Electric Belt, because they have not taken the trouble to look it up. A little book, "Three Classes of Men," will interest you. It is free. Ask for it, or call and examine this health-giving appliance.

SANDEN ELECTRIC CO., 255 Washington Street, Portland, Ore.
