IN THE DISTRICT COURT

A Jury Finds Frank Hill Guilty of Larceny.

IN THE REFORM SCHOOL

It Will Not Be the First Time He Has Served a Term—One of the Witnesses Was at First Afraid to Testify.

In the district court yesterday before Judge Woody the case of the state vs. Frank Hill, charged with grand larceny, was finished and given to the jury, who returned a verdict of guilty, leaving the sentence to the court with a recommendation of mercy.

From the evidence given it was shown that on Dec. 28 Claude Weismeyer was employed at the restaurant of Walter Webling on Main street between Front street and Commercial avenue, near the "4 to 1" saloon.

They were brought back to Anaconda and given a preliminary examination, at which it was found that the theft of the cash box was the only thing which the two boys were held over to the district court, Attorney Casey prepared for Hill and made a vigorous defense for his client.

Following this the county attorney had a conversation with the father of Claude Weismeyer, who lives at Livingston. Mr. Weismeyer stated that his son was frightened and he afraid to testify, believing that Hill, if he should be kept in the same cell with him, would do him some injury.

While Hill was on the witness stand, in response to an inquiry by the county attorney, he said that he was only 17 years old and that he never had been in the reform school in Montana.

The court has not yet fixed a time for imposing a sentence. The case against Claude Weismeyer will be postponed until the return of Judge Brantley, when some special disposition of it will be made, owing to the extreme youth of the defendant.

A Pleasant Party.

A pleasant party was given at the home of Miss Mary Howard last Thursday evening at 704 Cherry street. The event was the young lady's sixteenth anniversary of her birth, and

OFFICERS INSTALLED.

Captain Miss Daisy Conners Wins the Membership Contest.

At the regular meeting of King Lodge No. 17 I. O. G. T., on Friday evening, Jan. 28, the following officers were elected for the ensuing quarter, and together with the appointing officers were installed by Lodge Deputy William J. Giles, last evening: Chief Templar, Rev. J. A. Jenkins; vice templar, Gordon H. Place; secretary, Miss Clara Bryant; assistant secretary, Miss Daisy Conner (re-elected); treasurer, Milton Bigl; marshal, Ernest J. Edgcombe (re-elected); deputy marshal, Miss Jose Lovinger; past chief templar, H. G. Coy; chaplain, Mrs. H. H. Logan; guard, Miss Mary Howard; sentinel, Earl Dolerty.

The lodge re-elected Miss Daisy Conners for correspondent for the I. O. G. T. News, which is published monthly by the senior P. G. C. T., J. R. Paulds, at Stevensville, Mont.

The contest which has been going on during the past quarter was won by Miss Daisy Conners, who defeated Miss Bresie Nield's side by a large majority. The losing side will give a banquet next Friday evening for the winners of the contest.

Templars have initiated 30 new members, and they expect to have many more unite with the lodge. The members are doing their best to keep the lodge in the progress of progress, for the largest increase in membership during the year. There are 107 members enrolled at the quarter just ended, and it is hoped that that number will be largely increased before the close of another year.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

They Decide to Visit Livingston Before Advertising.

The county commissioners finished their session yesterday and adjourned until the March meeting. The question of advertising the bonds was discussed to some extent, but will not be decided until the next meeting of the board.

Plans for the new court house were discussed in a preliminary way, but it was decided to defer any further steps were taken the board would visit Livingston and inspect the court house there, after which notices will be sent to architects inviting the submission of plans. Many inquiries were being made by Eastern parties, asking information in relation to the bonds, which has been furnished.

In Police Court.

Ed La Rue was arraigned before Judge Fitzgerald yesterday afternoon. The prosecuting witness, Jessie Dillon, also was present. The complaint was read, charging La Rue with assault in the third degree. La Rue was not hesitating in saying that he was guilty, as charged and also said he knew it was wrong to hit a woman. The only excuse he gave was that she provoked him and struck him first. He also tried to establish the fact of a prior good reputation, an attempt in which he did not succeed. He was fined $50, in default of which he went to jail.

Had Been Dead Several Hours When Discovered.

WAS SITTING AT A TABLE

Startling Discovery Made by Barkeeper Dugan of O'Keefe's Saloon When He Tried to Arouse the Sleeping Man.

About 1 o'clock last night Fred Sherman, a cook, went into O'Keefe's saloon, No. 14 Main street, and, going up to the bar, asked for a drink of whiskey. The request was refused, as the bartender thought from Sherman's appearance that he had already had too much. Without further words, Sherman walked to a table in the middle of the saloon and sat down, folding his arms on the table and resting his head on his arms.

No further attention was paid to him. It was not uncommon an occurrence for poor, homeless, poverty-stricken fellows to sleep out the night or sober off from a debauch on the table. Several others near him, almost rubbing his elbows, were snatching a few hours' sleep. The early morning hours slipped by. The other sleepers, aroused by the morning business at the bar and the rattle of chairs as sweepers began their work, waked up, rubbed their bleared eyes and straggled out into the street.

A policeman was called and placed in charge. While Dugan notified the coroner, upon whose orders the body was removed to Ehret's undertaking rooms. A jury consisting of Theo. Ehret, Thomas Bolan, J. B. Crosswhite, S. J. Smith, C. B. Buck and D. E. Marler was impaneled yesterday afternoon. The coroner decided that it would not be necessary to hold an autopsy on the dead man. One small package containing a white powder was found in one of his pockets, but analysis proved it to be cornstarch. After examining the witnesses the jury returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death from causes unknown.

The deceased was about 25 years of age. He had lived in the city all his life. His father was at Great Falls when last heard from and kept a hotel at Healey, Idaho, a few years ago. A brother, William Sherman, is a resident of Roseland, B. C., his sister and step-mother reside at Burke, Idaho, and have been notified of his death. Sherman came to Anaconda about a year and a half ago, and at one time was a member of the Cooks and Waiters' assembly in this city, but his membership had lapsed.

TWO MONTANA MINING MEN.

The Whole Northwest Will Profit by the Klondike Discoveries.

T. L. Greenough and Peter Larson are two successful mining men from Montana, says the Post-Intelligencer (Seattle). They are both stockholders in the Centennial Mill company, and are interested with Morris Tidemansen and James Griffiths in the company which is to operate the steamer Centennial, plying between Victoria and Vancouver, and between Alaska and Seattle, arriving from Montana every evening and are guests at the Butler.

"You can say that we are both much pleased with Seattle and great believers in the permanency of the prosperity now being enjoyed by the people of this city," said Mr. Greenough yesterday. "It seems to me that there is no question but that Alaska is to be opened up, and the whole Northwest section will profit by this movement. Evidently Seattle is doing a great business. The city appears to me to possess all of the elements of stability. I expect to spend a good part of my time hereafter in Seattle looking after investments which I have made."

"The mining camps of Montana and Idaho will send numbers of prospectors to Alaska. Many have gone already. Some of the O'ceur d'Alone men went in last year have made a success of it, and the reports of the richness of the Klondike district, coupled with the fact that there is a large country as yet unprospected, allures many into the Yukon. No, I am not yet interested in the Klondike, and at present am not contemplating making any investments in that direction."

WILLIAM N. ALLEN DEAD.

A Highly Respected Citizen and an Old Timer Gone.

William N. Allen died at his home four miles east of the city at 3 p. m. yesterday. Mr. Allen was injured some time ago by a fall which resulted in a heart trouble. For quite a while he has been ill and his death, while deeply regretted, was not unexpected. Mr. Allen was born in Pierce county, Mo. Jan. 12, 1839. He served with credit in the Union army until 1863. In 1864, Feb. 14, he came to Alder creek with the pioneers of the state. Since that time Mr. Allen has followed the pursuits of mining and farming and was a member of the Old Timers society. Mr. Allen has been married twice, his first wife dying Jan. 3, 1876. He was re-married and leaves a wife and two sons—W. R. Allen of this city, and J. O. Allen.

The deceased was well and favorably known in Anaconda and Deer Lodge county, as a highly respectable citizen and a man of sterling integrity, whose characteristics made and kept for him many friends. No arrangements have been made for the funeral, which will be held at Deer Lodge.

CHURCH FAVORS DANCING.

Dr. Stoddard of Jersey City Successfully Starts His Innovation.

Rev. Dr. E. L. Stoddard, rector of St. John's Episcopal church of Jersey City, N. J., has successfully launched his much talked of innovation of a church dancing class. The 60 members of the rector's Bible class who are enrolled on the dancing instructors' book were all present at the first meeting of the class Thursday, and there are 150 names on the waiting list. Since Dr. Stoddard started a class his mail has increased more than tenfold. Dr. Stoddard is receiving letters from ministers all over the country, some condemning the project and others approving it. The class will continue until the Lenten season begins.

Contrary to popular impression, the rector is not seeking for notoriety. His friends describe him as a man of culture and of broad mind. He argues that the young men and women of today are not contented with the two or three dances which are given for them if they did. He realizes that conditions change. The boys and girls of his Sunday school dance and they play croquet. How much better, he argues, for them to enjoy these pastimes amid surroundings which take away the sharp edge of dissipation. If they wish to learn dancing or, having learned, to enjoy the waltz or the square dance how much better for them to enjoy this privilege without being forced to patronize the public places.

St. John's church is located on Summit avenue, in the most fashionable part of Jersey City. Its congregation embraces the best families. As in every church, however, there is a certain element whose social life is restricted, and it is this element which Dr. Stoddard is aiming to reach. St. John's institute, which is run in connection with the church, has for its objects instruction and entertainment. It embraces courses in music, physical culture and a course of lectures on general topics. In the rear of the church is a one-story building used by the physical culture class of the institute as a gymnasium, and it was here that the innovation was inaugurated last week. There were just 20 couples, exclusive of Frederick Anderson, who had been engaged as instructor in dancing, and his sister, who furnished the music on the piano.

Mrs. Stoddard gave the affair her personal supervision. There were round dances and square dances, there were waltzes and two-steps, and there was a good, old-fashioned Virginia reel. There were a few who had taken advantage of the opportunity and were receiving their first instruction in the graceful art. These were under the direction of Mr. Anderson, and the majority of those present were quite proficient.

The idea of the weekly dances had its inception at the last annual reception of the rector's Bible class. This class, in itself a very average class, of 18 each scholar in the Sunday school passes into the Bible class, where the rector gives lectures on the Bible, the prayer book and the history of the church, and from whom, at the end of a three years' course, members are graduated and given a diploma.

It must not be imagined that the intrepid rector of St. John's has altogether the approval of his congregation in the matter of dancing lessons. There are those who openly decry the innovation. But he is determined to go ahead, and hopes to convince all the objectors of the wisdom of his course.

"When party people get together," said the rector, "there seems, unfortunately nothing for them to do but dance, play cards or engage in idle gossip. In my opinion it is far and away the best thing that can be done together," said the rector, "there seems, unfortunately nothing for them to do but dance, play cards or engage in idle gossip. In my opinion it is far and away the best thing that can be done together."

How the Police Prevent Fraudulent Voting in Greater New York.

Election-day dawned, and it is a busy one for the police. To the average citizen it is a holiday, but to every small boy who can help build a bonfire, an election means a holiday, but the policeman rejoices that it comes but once a year. The police are busy in preparatory work. Every registration has been verified by a personal visit, and in cases where fraud seems to have been committed, the evidence has been carefully noted and warrants issued. The lodging-houses, cheap hotels, and like places have been under the most rigid surveillance for weeks in order to detect and prevent voterization. No person can vote from one of these places unless it is known to have been registered there at least 30 days prior to election-day, and to have lived in the county at least four months. When it is removed there are 25 men were registered in licensed lodging-houses of New York on October 2, 1897, and 14,395 more in the cheap hotels and unlicensed lodging-houses, an idea can be obtained of the amount of this kind of work which falls upon the police. It is interesting to note that of this total of 26,321 floating male population, only 19,665 registered to vote, and of these only 9,198 actually voted on election-day.
