SORE ARM COLONY GROWS

Rage for Vaccination in Anaconda Has Not Abated.

SCRATCHED BY HUNDREDS

The Physicians Believe These Prompt Measures Have Headed Off a General Epidemic—Condition of the Seven Smallpox Cases.

Right merrily continues the rush for vaccination. At least 300 people were vaccinated yesterday. While the lament of the sore-arm colony is heard in the land, it will be infinitely louder when all the hundreds who have qualified for membership in the last few days reach the lamenting stage.

So general has been the vaccination that the physicians think they see an early end of smallpox in Anaconda.

"It begins to look as though we were not to have a great deal of the disease, after all," said Dr. Stephens, the health officer, last night. "This general vaccination has been a splendid thing, and if it only keeps up until all the people have taken the precaution we will have no extended epidemic this winter. A few more days like those of this week have been and the city will be immune. Of course, there are some more cases coming, those whom Wilson exposed and among the unvaccinated at the foundry who were exposed by Frost, some cases are certain to develop. Nevertheless the number of cases has been reduced greatly by prompt vaccination. In 49 days or two weeks I look for several new cases, but no more."

No new cases developed in the city yesterday. There now exist only seven cases in the city, and these are concentrated in four places, all of which are closely guarded and under strict quarantine. Roscoe Griffith, the first case, is practically well at his home on Fourth street. His sister in the name of Mrs. Griffith, a slight attack of varioloid, which would have been smallpox had she not been vaccinated. Gomer Griffith, a brother, broke out last Tuesday, and is a very sick man. The vaccination failed to work on him, having been applied too late. Another brother is also a very sick man with the disease.

The Wilson case on Oak street is doing nicely. The Frost case at Cedar street is also getting along well. The Punkett boy, on East Fourth street, whose case developed Thursday, is not very sick.

There is a doubt in the mind of Dr. Stephens as to his diagnosis of the disease, the doctor saying there is still a chance that the case is only one of chicken pox, but the symptoms are so similar to those of smallpox that quarantine precautions are deemed necessary.

Day and night guards are being maintained at all of the houses and no one is allowed in or out.

Dr. Stephens hopes to have a pesthouse soon in which to care for the patients. He has talked to the commissioners on the subject and urged in strong terms that such a house be erected. The difficulty is in securing a location, no property owner liking to allow his land to be used for the purpose. "It is not necessary," said Dr. Stephens yesterday, "that the pesthouse be several miles out in the country. All that is needed is an isolated location and one 100 yards distant from any building is quite as safe and as good for all purposes as one further removed. There need be no fear of infection from such a house, provided it is well and faithfully guarded."

"A good pesthouse can be erected in such a manner as to be quite warm and comfortable for the patients and at the same time capable of being fumigated and cleansed of all infection. The frame of such a house should be lined with felt and then with sheet iron. The outside of the frame should be weather-boarded. The sheet iron inside, on the termination of the disease, could be washed thoroughly with bichloride solution and the whole place disinfected. Then the house could be left with safety until needed again. A house of this character would not be very expensive and its erection would be a measure of economy, for fewer guards would be needed there, all the cases could be concentrated and proper care given all of them."

AMUSEMENTS.

"A Lady of Quality." Of recent New York successes none stands out more prominently than "A Lady of Quality," which had a long run at Wallack's theater during last season. It comes to the Margaret theater on next Monday evening, headed by Eugene Blais, who has added greatly to the success of the piece. Surrounding Miss Blair is a company of carefully selected players, thoroughly capable of reading the lines of the play in a masterly manner.

A small fortune has been spent in costume and scenic invention, thereby making the whole venture a triumph wherever the play has been given. The play strikes a resounding chord with the

A SURE CURE FOR COUGHS.

Twenty-five Years' Constant Use without a Failure. The first indication of cough is hoarseness, and in a child subject to that disease it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is used in many thousands of homes in this broad land and never disappoints the anxious mothers. We have yet to learn of a single instance in which it did not prove effective. No other preparation can show such a record of twenty-five years' constant use without a failure.

My son has been troubled for years with chronic diarrhoea. Some time ago I persuaded him to take some of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. After using two bottles of the 25-cent size he was cured. I give this testimonial, hoping some one similarly afflicted may read it and be benefited.—Thomas C. Bower, Glencoe, O.

Gaining a Wide Reputation. As a cure for rheumatism Chamberlain's Pain Balm is gaining a wide reputation. D. B. Johnston of Richmond, Ind., has been troubled with that ailment since 1862. In speaking of it he says: "I never found anything that would relieve me until I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It acts like magic with me. My foot was swollen and pained me very much, but one good application of Pain Balm relieved me."

audience. Miss Blair shines brilliantly in the piece. Chic, youthful and magnetic, her personality would carry along much weaker production. She is a Southern woman who, through her own exertions, is now recognized as the leading emotional actress of the country. Being bred in the midst of refinement her voice and graceful presence equals to just such parts as Mistress Florida.

CHARITY MARTIN'S RECITAL.

Given Last Evening Without the Boston & Montana Band.

Before an audience of about 120 persons "Charity Martin's Grand Opera Recital and Ellis Brooks' Musical Spectacle" was given at the Margaret theater last night. To the disappointment of many the Boston and Montana band was not numbered among the features of the occasion, that musical aggregation's one-night visit to Anaconda having fallen through because seats could not be had to guarantee its percentage contract.

As for the entertainment, it was given, both Charity Martin and Signor Ernesto Baldanza pleased the audience. Ellis Brooks' (musical) spectacle, "History of Old Glory on Land and Sea," was quite what the "women genericum" proclaimed it to be. It came as a sort of bisected, photographic intermezzo to the rest of the evening's entertainment, which was greeted with whistling applause.

Charity Martin showed that she possesses a very sweet and pleasing voice. Her trills and tremolo tones, one might say without exaggeration, are her "bird notes"—are especially beautiful. Her voice is true, but lacking in volume, and it is noticeable that her upper register is thin. Also her enunciation is not all one might desire. But one cannot neglect to say that the exceeding smoothness of tone and sweetness of quality go far toward satisfying the ear that toward the end of the pleasure there is in it. Miss Martin's success would lean rather toward small circumference of sounding board rather than toward the over-coming of a large area of space; for her's is a charming rather than a powerful soprano.

It is a pleasure to listen to Signor Baldanza. His voice is clear and not without the quality of sweetness so much to be desired in male tones, and there is that essence of verve without which the interpretation of the operatic pieces is folly. In range he is not remarkable, nor in power, but yet he sings delightfully. Perhaps the most fetching piece on the programme was the duet from "Il Trovatore," as sung by Miss Martin and Signor Baldanza. The color and the blending were a charm.

Filed for Record. The following instruments were filed yesterday with the county clerk and recorder:

Dead—Vital Cyr to R. M. Cobban, northwest quarter of section 18, township 18 north, range 14 west, $700.

Dead—Levi B. Cyr to R. M. Cobban, the north half of the northeast quarter of section 18, township 18 north, range 14 west, $700.

Refuses Death Certificate. Webster City, Iowa, Dec. 29—A new point in insurance is involved in the case of the death of George W. Goodfriend. He carried a $2,000 policy in the Ancient Order of United Workmen. Three days before his death his physician was dismissed and Christian Science treatment substituted. The order refused to settle unless a physician's proof of death is submitted or the body is disinterred and a post-mortem held. The physician refuses to certify.

FEW CLAIMS PROTECTED

Only Thirty Annual Representations Filed This Month.

CLAIM JUMPERS AT WORK

Several Parties of Them Preparing to Leave the City To-Night to Secure Good Things—Falling Off in Claims Represented.

There is no wild rush in these fine sleazy days to file annual representations on mining claims in this county. To date only 30 of these certificates have gone on record this month in County Clerk Martin's office.

Last December claim owners filed these certificates to the number of 73 and in December, 1897, to the number of 42. December, 1896 was an off season, evidently, for only 25 certificates were filed that year.

These certificates or annual representations, as they are called, show that $100 worth of work has been done on the claim named therein during the year. They are made in order to prevent jumping, but are regarded generally as not being compulsory. Their advantage lies in the fact that in case the claim is jumped the record is at hand to prove the jumper has no right to claim the property. Where the certificate is not filed the owner, in case of jumping, has to revert to other evidence to prove he has done the required work on the claim.

The state law on the subject is found in section 2414 of the political code as follows:

"The owner of a lode or placer claim who performs or causes to be performed the annual work or makes the improvements required by the laws of the United States in order to prevent the forfeiture of the claim, may, within 23 days after the annual work, file in the office of the county clerk of the county in which such claim is situated, an affidavit of his own, or an affidavit of the person who performed such work or made the improvements, showing:

"1.—The name of the mining claim and where situated.

"2.—The number of days' work done, and the character and value of the improvements placed thereon.

"3.—The date of performing such work and of making the improvements.

"4.—At whose instance the work was done or the improvements made.

"5.—The actual amount paid for work and improvements, by whom paid when the same was not done by the owner.

"Such affidavits, or a certified copy thereof, are prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated."

One of the reasons why more annual representations have not been filed is that many of the claims in this county are situated in the strip ceded to Lewis and Clarke county last summer. The representations on claims thus situated are filed this year at Helena instead of here.

There promises to be considerable claim jumping on Monday. To-night several parties are to leave the city for the purpose, the exact number, of course, being unknown.

HE WAS WISED UP.

One Bluff Too Many Didn't Go With the Night Bartender.

The night bartender in a certain swell bar in this city is rubbing his chin and chucking over it yet. He happens to be one of those cheerful chaps who not only can appreciate when the joke is on him, but has the mental nerve and the physical ability to illustrate the old saw, "He laughs best who laughs last."

Just now, he's laughing just. The other fellow's stock of laughs "is out." How did it all happen? This way:

The night bartender was busy attending to the thrifts of half a dozen customers who decorated the outer edge of one end of the bar. His elbow against was polishing long slims hard by. It was 9 o'clock p. m. by the clock as The Stranger ambled vigorously into the bar and sidled up against the unoccupied end. The night bartender finished with his little line of thrifts and came and asked The Stranger what he'd have. Now, The Stranger was well dressed and looked like a man thoroughly well able to order and pay for his drinks; moreover, he was sober. So when he replied "A little whiskey" (you will take notice that the old-timers have a weakness for saying "A little," explain it by the law of opposites, if you like), the night bartender did not hesitate, but produced the bottle and the glasses and watched The Stranger pour out his drink.

The Stranger poured, balanced the glass between two fingers and a thumb, and observed:

"Now, I'm not going to pay you for this drink—right now. You see, I've just made a wager with a gentleman in the other room that I could get a drink at this bar without money—stand cold buff, off, 'kaynow. He bet me I couldn't. So, you see, I'll just take this drink (he's watching me from the outside—thinks I'm putting up a stand-off talk), an' when he sees I don't pay for it—why, I'll have on my bet. A little later I'll come in on my bet, but not around—and pay you for it. See?"

Then The Stranger balanced the glass of red whiskey a little nearer his mouth, and waited. His eyes, that were fixed on the night bartender's face, showed just a little embarrassment, as though he feared the bartender wouldn't understand, but instead imagine he was running a cruel

Now, you must not think that just because this was a very swell bar the bartender wasn't on to all the bluffs running wild; for he was. Or, at least, he was half on to it. Which is every bit as good, except that sometimes it isn't. But the bartender was a wise one; that is to say, he had been wised up; which is equivalent to being fixed up. He was a calm man, too, not given to exhibiting his emotion in public places.

So instead of getting very mad, as many another bartender has done, and of hawling The Stranger out, he real-ized that the fellow was in a tight spot. He appreciated The Stranger because The Stranger was so smooth and had such beautiful hair.

So the night bartender smiled and said that would be all right and he hoped The Stranger would wish his bet and he would go right ahead and drink hearty. And The Stranger drank, and he thanked the bartender and said his name was Smith and he would drop the name of the man wasn't around to see him pay for the drink. Then The Stranger went out, and the night bartender said he'd be something.

Which probably was no lie.

About half an hour later The Stranger sauntered in again. This time he had four friends with him, a couple of whom the night bartender knew. Every one of these four men was a gentleman, so the bartender supposed The Stranger had won his bet and had come in to buy a drink on the strength of it and to pay for the drink he had got. This shows that bartenders are human.

The Stranger and his four friends lined up. The Stranger ordered a drink. The bartender served it and they drank. Then the four gentlemen turned to walk away, but The Stranger leaned over the bar and said, quite coolly:

"Same name as I gave you before, you know—Smith. I'll be in 'an' pay you when I've got some money. I'm flat."

And The Stranger walked down the bar.

So did the night bartender. And he kept on waiting till he got clean outside, where he accosted The Stranger, saying:

"This drink's on you, is it?"

"Yes, Smith's my name. It's on me."

"But your hat isn't," replied the bartender, as he quickly removed a black Fedora from The Stranger's head and threw it behind the bar. Then the bartender walked away and resumed his duties, keeping the tail of his eye on The Stranger. That person seemed taken aback. He hesitated and hung round the end of the bar and presently he made as if he would enter and recover his hat. The night bartender knew he would do that. He was ready.

The Stranger did not get his hat. He got the toe of a boot, and it was on another man's foot. After which The Stranger took a sudden and unpremeditated skate across the tiled floor till he reached the door which leads to the street beyond. Presently he landed on the sidewalk outside. It was another part of his anatomy than his feet which came down first; which explains why The Stranger swore.

There is a black Fedora hat, size 6 7/8, for sale in a certain bar in this city. You can have it for six bits. And if you purchase it, the night bartender will buy.

Surrendered Himself. New York, Dec. 29.—Lewis E. Goldsmith, assistant cashier of the Port Jervis National bank of Port Jervis, N. Y., who is alleged to have robbed that institution of $51,000 on Nov. 14, last, and also to have falsified the bank's books, to-day surrendered himself. Goldsmith left Port Jervis four days before a warrant was issued for his arrest.

Goldsmith was arraigned before a United States commissioner and waived examination. Bail was fixed at $10,000 and, as he could not furnish bondsmen, Goldsmith went to jail.

San Francisco Goes In Debt. San Francisco, Dec. 28.—A special election was held in this city to-day on the question of issuing bonds in the sum of $8,750,000 for the purpose of building new school houses, a new hospital and a new sewer system. The bonds carried by a large majority. On Tuesday last it was voted to issue bonds for $4,500,000 for a new park system, making a total of nearly $11,000,000.

Have You Dandruff? Is Your Hair Thinning? Are You Bald?

Dandruff, Falling Hair and Baldness are all caused by a germ or parasite that infests the hair and throws up the scalp cuticle as dandruff. The latest scientific discovery is a destroyer of that germ, thus not only curing but preventing Dandruff, Falling Hair, and Baldness. The germ destroyer is contained only in Newcomb's Herpicide.

All the sick and afflicted throughout the United States apply for treatment to this eminent specialist who has made Minneapolis famous through his achievements in the science of medicine and surgery and through his commercial discovery of safe and effective treatment for Weak Men. Four times during the past two years the office accommodations and facilities of the Hinz Medical Institute have been enlarged and extended to comply with the demands of its constantly increasing patronage. Our aim has ever been to be the largest medical establishment for the treatment of Chronic, Private, Blood and Skin Diseases in the United States. Equipped with every appliance, apparatus and instrument—electrical, mechanical and otherwise—known to modern practice of medicine and surgery, with convenient and extensive accommodations, this magnificent establishment is in the lead and far ahead of all other medical institutions in the treatment of diseases of such an extent that the worst chronic afflictions and Weaknesses of Men that could not have been conquered before inside of six or twelve months, can now be cured by Dr. Hinz in one or two months' time. Of importance to the interested public it may be mentioned that the highest principles and rules of Dr. Hinz, as enumerated below, have greatly assisted in building up the investigation of truthful representations in the newspapers, modest claims and a stubborn inclination on the part of Dr. Hinz to promise less than he can do, have won for him the full confidence of the public and the afflicted in particular. For prompt cures and conscientious treatment apply.
