OUR HELENA LETTER.

His Excellency, the Veto and His $1,100 Dog - A Passing Acquaintance - Macaroni and Cheese - Scabs and Mud.

HELENA, M. T., April 12.

MR. EDITOR: - From my head lines you will perceive that about the cleanest thing I can write about just now is mud. That is all the way from three inches to three feet deep in our thoroughfares, and the man or woman who braves it without gum boots is regarded with the same degree of curiosity with which His Excellency, the veto and his eleven hundred dollar dog are reviewed.

Speaking of the dog reminds me of a little story which is in the mouths of all the hoodlums in the city. Not long ago one of the wealthiest and most respected of Montana's stock raisers was in the city.

"From Beaverhead county," replied the astonished stock man. "Oh, pshaw," said the Governor, "I mean where were you from before you came to this country."

"From North Ireland," answered the now surprised stockman. His Excellency whistled once or twice, and a rather sleek-looking yellow dog trotted up to his side.

"Here," said the Governor, pointing to the dog, "is a countryman of yours, and he cost me eleven hundred dollars."

One of our most distinguished lawyers was asked by a visitor from the city the other day if he had met the Governor. "No," replied J., "I have not yet enjoyed the honor."

"But you know his dog, do you not?" queried his interlocutor. "Well hardly," answered J. "I have merely a passing acquaintance with him. He seems to have a penchant for macaroni and cheese, and in his quest for those articles he has blocked my way once or twice, and I have kicked him out of it. That's the extent of my acquaintance with the imported outfit."

This reminds me that it said His Excellency has a fresh supply of macaroni and cheese, and that he was seen riding out with them the other day.

It is stated that J. Schuyler is going on a junketing throughout the Territory as soon as the roads become fairly settled and smooth. He wants the people of this great country to see the light of his shining countenance and to get acquainted with his eleven hundred dollar dog. In pursuance of his purpose he has been for some time looking up a proper conveyance to transport himself and his inseparable companion. He has examined several, but has always expressed his dissatisfaction with them. Finally, being asked for his objections, he told his questioner that "None of the buggies he had looked at had a place for a dog."

"But," says the owner of the conveyances, "dogs in this country generally run under the wagon."

"That's all right," answered our canine loving Executive, "but they didn't cost their owners eleven hundred dollars apiece."

It is reported His Excellency is going to have a buggy made with a dog kennel attachment in which he can make his tour among the unwholesome denizens of these western wilds in company with his Irish setter.

As I have run this letter out beyond my intentions, I will have to defer my comments on "cabs" until my next. I have only time to add that Helena society is particularly exercised just now by their appearance upon its surface. But more anon.

Yours,

DONALD.

Brady's Trial - Additional Details.

DUBLIN, April 13.-The following supplies additional details of the trial and conviction of Brady. Kennedy's evidence closed the case for the defense. Dr. Webb, the leading counsel for the prisoner, said he begged to submit a respectful protest against any evidence being allowed in the case which would bear upon the question of insanity.

Dr. Webb continuing said: An indictment for conspiracy to murder, your Honor, may only be based upon evidence which is not in dispute. I design to murder some definite person. The law regulating evidence in regard to aiders and abettors, in cases of conspiracy, could not be made to apply in the present case.

Mr. Sullivan, for the defense, in his argument supported these views. Porter, for the prosecution, replied that the evidence given by Kavanagh yesterday, against Brady, was only of a kind which related to his own doings prior to the murder. In fact, it simply showed that Kavanagh regarded Brady as an accomplice in the driving and waiting for Brady.

Adams, for the defense, declared there was a change in Kavanagh's evidence yesterday. In his sudden dissenting evidence he admitted that he had seen Delaney whom he drove to the murder with Carey. Any one could see there was a story concocted between Carey and Delaney.

There were other discrepancies between the evidence given by the informers and that of other witnesses by whom the facts of the case were established. Delaney whom he drove to the murder with Carey. Any one could see there was a story concocted between Carey and Delaney.

The court here ruled that some of the points raised by Webb against the introduction of evidence could not be sustained.

Adams, closing for the defense, said: "Heaven forbid that I should ever be arraigned before the tribunal of public opinion as the defendant in this case. Brady has been in advance of me in this respect. He has been prejudiced and his guilt has been presumed in a manner the most scandalous on record. Let not the jury be led away and prejudiced by the evidence of the crime as a whole, but let them consider solely the question whether Brady is guilty. Let them bear in mind that the chief evidence against him comes from persons who spoke to save their own necks; such evidence must ever be regarded with great suspicion."

He went on to say the principals in the conspiracy were Kavanagh, Carey and Kavanagh had given their testimony in the Kilmahin examination.

Naish, for the Crown, in reply said: The circumstances of this case are not disputed. It is fully conceded that it was the fruit of conspiracy and not a matter of personal revenge. For this reason the Crown has been able to resort to the evidence of the conspirators. An account of its organization, its objects and its plans have been given by Farrell. It was such as could never have been conceived by the most skillful lawyer connecting testimony. He took the evidence of the various witnesses who swore to having seen Carey in the street, and he dissected it carefully and maintained that it furnished the strongest possible proof that Brady was there. He held there was an utter failure on the part of the defense to establish an alibi for Brady.

This closed the speeches and Judge O'Brien began his charge commenting on the evidence adduced by the defense. He said he was proved an alibi. He said he was proved an alibi. He said he was proved an alibi.

It is reported His Excellency is going to have a buggy made with a dog kennel attachment in which he can make his tour among the unwholesome denizens of these western wilds in company with his Irish setter.

As I have run this letter out beyond my intentions, I will have to defer my comments on "cabs" until my next. I have only time to add that Helena society is particularly exercised just now by their appearance upon its surface. But more anon.

HAMMER AND DRILL.

General Activity at the Leading Mines-The Mills and Smelters Continue Their Steady Runs.

Important Developments at the Alice and Moulton.

Starting Up of the Bell Smelter.

The week has been characterized by unusual activity among the mines, and although the bullion output has not been exceptionally large, the shipments from leading mines present a fair average. Silver bullion shipments were made, valued at $74,192, the Alice leading off with $36,896; Lexington, $17,530; Donnell, Clark & Larabee, $13,056; and Anacosta, $6,720. The most important event of the week was the resumption of the BELL SMELTER.

The long looked for event occurred yesterday after a trial run the day before to see that the machinery, which had been so long idle, was in running order. At 8:30 a. m. the blast was started up and at 1 p. m. the first matte produced by the new company was drawn. The Bell resumes operations under the most favorable auspices and the new management will no doubt reap the rich harvest to which their energy in untangling the network of litigation in which they found the property involved and the enterprise which has characterized their subsequent operations, richly entitle them. The general superintendent of mine and smelter is entrusted to Walter J. King, whose large experience and splendid executive ability especially qualify him for the responsible position. The smelter will be under the immediate supervision of Prof. S. M. Pitman, who is a bachelor of metallic arts, receiving his degree from Harvard University, and also a smelter man of large experience. Warren C. King, an accomplished accountant, will have charge of the details at the office, and Harry C. Carney, late professor of metallurgy in the School of Mines at Golden, Colorado, will manage the mysteries of the assay office. The smelter starts with ore on hand for the six day run, and by the time the ore now at the smelter is exhausted it is expected the mine will be in shape to furnish a future supply. Until that time but one stack will be run.

FOREIGN FLASHES.

Examination of Plotter. CORK, April 14.-Featherston, Carmody and Cherilish, arrested for conspiracy and murder, were before the magistrate again to-day. The evidence was produced of finding on Featherston a document headed "cure for gold," but which was really a receipt for manufacturing explosives; also a letter in Cherilish's handwriting to the Earl of Glasgow, two carboys of nitric acid from Glasgow. It was asked that the prisoner be further remanded.

WILLIE ON THE WING.

Taffy for the Stage Company-The Ancient Capital and its Business Houses.

Tonsorial Decorations.

SPECIAL CORR. OF THE MINER. VIRGINIA CITY, April 10. We arrived in Virginia City, the ancient capital of Montana, on Gilmer & Salisbury's stage line, which by the way reflects the great credit upon its manager, Howard S. Howell. From Salisbury to Virginia this stage line is the best equipped coach in Montana. A fine Concord coach, drawn by six magnificent horses, daily arrives in Virginia, making the journey of thirty miles in from ten to twenty-four hours - not particularly fast, however. After passing the night at the Madison Hotel - which is a first-class house, the host, Mr. Smith, sparing no means of making guests comfortable - we strolled over the business part of town, and were impressed with the belief that all the business houses are flourishing, all apparently carrying good stocks of merchandise and doing a good steady business. Virginia, unlike other great cities, has its capital distributed very equally among its business men. The leading houses are Elling, Vickers, saddles, etc.; Vickers, Elling & Co., success to W. P. Armstrong, dealers in clothing and men's furnishing goods. As space will not permit we will not mention the remaining houses. We think this will sufficiently demonstrate the distribution of capital. Strange that there is but one Israelite in business here. He is an artistic tonsorial friseur. This would be evident to any one on Sunday to view the engraving and ornamental friseurs which adorn each "phiz" after having gone through the ordeal of being shaved. He is peculiarly fond of decorating one's nose, ears, etc., and then offering to sell you a bottle of hair oil, which he assures you he is losing money on. We finally wound up our stroll by dropping into the "Pony Saloon," which is the popular resort of lovers of the ardent. It was not declined, but "Starky" insisted that "Dis was de first time I metted you," so we took one, and it was "Oh Atkins," too - all Virginians drink it.

Sudden Death at Boulder.

Every expedient was resorted to restore him, but without avail, and he died in a few minutes.
