Fashion Points.

Spangled fans are again in fashion. A regular summer costume is in embroidered and plain batiste, with summer velvet.

New Millers vests of jet beaded lace stand over a lining of red, yellow or white silk.

Mushroom colored lace in the piece is used for collars, cuffs and neckties.

Copper-red is a favorite color for waists that are worn with skirts of white wool or black lace over satin.

Gowns of shot glass silk are made up in combination with velvet striped silk, and worn with a mantle of the color of the stripe.

The old-time "pinkings" with scalloped and notched edges is revived for the purpose of chameleon shades.

Dresses of black sewing silk grenadine are profusely trimmed with escurial lace flounces and have a vest, and a petticoat front placed over red satin.

For very small children there is nothing prettier than dresses of satin, embroidered in white flouze, and bordered with fine guipure of some bold floral design.

All dresses are lavishly trimmed with frills of lace, the skirts of many being entirely covered with narrow flounces or with rows of graduated widths on batistes of all pale shades.

Brooches for bonnet strings and larger hair pins for holding on the bonnet are made in the same designs.

The Carmen hat, with stiff brim and square crown, moderately high, is worn by young ladies. It is of light mushroom brown straw, trimmed with white ribbon and an aigrette of a darker shade.

Black tulle is studied with jet or gold beads, or with chenille in large bouillonne barred across with rows of white tulle.

Foulard dresses of pale China blue silk, with a row of cream lace, are trimmed with ruffles of cream lace or oxidized silver buttons.

Mushroom tweed and chevrot dresses, with short jackets to match, rounding shorter toward the back, are made by fashionable tailors for seaside, mountain and traveling suits.

Dressy mantles are short, neat and high shouldered; more useful wraps for traveling purposes are long, and lined throughout with striped taffeta silk, and favorite shades are silvery gray and mushroom brown.

Wash dresses are made with either a yoke or a collar, and a corsetry apron with short shirred overskirt that are readily laundered.

The small Fancheon that looks like a half handkerchief has returned after long oblivion, and is like a bed of flowers.

The newest tricot dresses are extremely simple and the apron which were so fashionable are nowadays seldom seen.

St. Louis, June 25.—The Lindell Hotel Association made an assignment to-day for the benefit of the creditors.

Blaine used to tell a story to express the feelings of Republicans towards the administration of Mr. Hayes, but it applies better to their feelings regarding his own nomination.

A party of young men were camping out in the Main, and one of them was selected to cook, and it was agreed that the first man who complained of the cuisine should assume the duties of cook himself.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—After the defeat of several resolutions against the seating of Chalmers, of Mississippi, Chalmers appeared at the bar of the court and took the oath of office.

The bill passed authorizing the establishment of a branch soldier's home in Arkansas, Colorado, Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Oregon and Nebraska.

A DUDE'S REQUEST.

And How Bob Foster Filled the Bill.

Soon after the Bijou Company had concluded its performance at the Opera House last night, one of the members of the company went into Newkirk's sample rooms and asked Bob Foster, who happened to be presiding at the side-board, to bring up a couple of glasses of "tuculora."

"What is 'tuculora'?" questioned the bluff but ever accommodating Bob.

"Aw, I forgot I was out in these Western wilds. I'll explain. Tuculora, my dear sah, is a little sugh, a little gah, a little waha, a little lemon and a little bit mixed up in large tumblers. Please, sah, fix 'em up."

"You want two, do you? Well, you'll see I throw myself around two tumblers full of such stuff."

"Aw, I forgot. They are to go up stairs in the Centennial. One of them is for my pawdner and the other for me."

"Whoinell is going to take them up?" asked Bob.

"Aw, I'll take them up myself, sah, as soon as they are ready."

Bob lost no time in filling the orders. He took down the glasses, put in the sugar and ice, added a liberal quantity of gin and a more liberal quantity of water.

All the while the anxious and thirsty waiter, who had the counter eyeing the whole operation with a critical eye.

"Javen't you some 'squeezed lemon' to put in 'em?" inquired the waiter.

"Squeezed lemon be d—d. No, but I can squeeze lemon for you, sah, if you like."

"We don't carry squeezed lemons around in our vest pockets in this country."

"Aw, is that so? Then squeeze a lemon in each glass."

"You took up a lemon, cut it in two, and placing one half in the lemon squeezer, held it over the glass. The dude, fearful lest Bob should cheat him of a single drop, leaned over the counter until his face was directly over the squeezer.

Just as that moment Bob's attention was called to some thing going on in the adjoining parlor, and turning around, he inadvertently turned the squeezer toward the face of the dude, who received the full charge of juice directly in his eyes.

With a howl and a bound that could be heard a block away, the dude danced around the room like a blind orphan in search of his lost Eurydice, at the same time giving vent to language that would have shamed Pluto and put to flight all the timid goddesses known to the ancients.

Bob, however, that he would take his "tuculora" without lemon, the rags of language which followed his exit indicated that a few others besides Bob enjoyed the fun.

Smelting Ores in Chicago.

A recent number of the Mining Review has the following concerning the cheapness of smelting ores in Chicago.

The weather is cooler again.

The West Coast of June last had and presents its usual creditable appearance.

A special meal of Ancient Order of Hibernians is called for this evening.

The merchants in general report business brisk and look forward to a big summer trade.

Fire crackers, torpedoes, whiz-pizzies, gin-fizzes and cocktails will hold the fort in a few days.

City Attorney Smith has a funny story to tell about post holes.

The Police Court has been somewhat free from business lately, owing probably to the tramping clear of this city.

Mr. John B. Gough, the great temperance lecturer, will be in Butte this week, and will probably lecture once or twice while here.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

A Conductor Killed and Brakeman Severely Injured.

Yesterday afternoon, near Glen Station, on the Utah and Northern freight train No. 9 was derailed and derailed.

Frank Edwards was killed and Brakeman Sayles severely injured. The cause of the accident, at the present writing, is unknown.

John Kelley.

This celebrated vocalist, harpist and violinist, assisted by his wife, one of the most accomplished pianists in the country, will give an entertainment at Renshaw Opera House next Saturday evening.

The Horse Stealing Case at Sun River.

Col Donnelly and Mr. McIntire, who were retained on either side of the Sun River horse stealing case, returned last evening.

Personal.

Messrs. S. T. Hauser and A. M. Holter returned to Helena yesterday.

Mr. George Falligan left for the Yellowstone country yesterday, for the purpose of buying a lot of cattle.

Mr. John Rabotson has gone to Chicago to visit with his parents.

Mr. Magnius expects to leave in a few days for Chicago to arrange the bookings of new companies for the Montana circuit.

Mr. Samuel Word left this morning for a short trip to Virginia City.

The Bijou Opera Company are stopping at the Mount Vernon and St. Nicholas.

The pleasant face of John Kelley can again be seen on the streets, he having returned yesterday from Anconada.

This world is full of trials and tribulations. So the poet says, the business houses of Butte will be represented in the 4th of July parade. It will be a first class advertising medium.

The granite street culvert is now about covered over with dirt, and the thoroughfare at that point may be considered fully opened.

The Ritchie Comedy Company and the Welch Dramatic Company, out of this city, are showing in the small towns of the territory.

It is expected that the business houses of Butte will be represented in the 4th of July parade. It will be a first class advertising medium.

The audience at the matinee yesterday afternoon was small, but the entertainment given by the Bijou Opera Company was good, and elicited hearty applause.
