A COLORADO MINE HORROR.

Death of the Men in the Bull Domingo Mine.

TEN LIVES LOST.

An Explorer in the Workings Comes Upon the Bodies of the Victims.

DENVER, November 14.—A Silver Cliff special to the News says: Superintendent Foss, of the Bull Domingo, was not injured by the explosion, as at first supposed. The engineer and several others in the building at the time of the explosion, were slightly injured, but none seriously. All the debris was removed from the mine, and the shaft and the fire in the timbers of the shaft extinguished. Foreman Armstrong is being kept in the mine, and is expected to find the bodies of the men below. He had to be brought out on account of caving from a depth of fifty feet from the surface and a large quantity of debris piled upon it. The shaft near the surface has now been cribbed, and iron rungs are being put in by a rope to the bottom of the mine (500 feet) if possible. The following men were in the mine: Con Nour, H. Wetzel, Elmer Heister, D. W. Patton, N. Degross, M. Lapoint, John Laube, George Smith, William Strong and Marcus Babcock.

ONE CASE STUCK SECURELY.

At a depth of fifty feet from the surface and a large quantity of debris piled upon it. The shaft near the surface has now been cribbed, and iron rungs are being put in by a rope to the bottom of the mine (500 feet) if possible.

THE GALVESTON PIER.

The Fluck of the City—Batter Masses for the Hoody.

GALVESTON, November 14.—The Galveston News says, touching the great fire, the conduct of the people of Galveston in view of the calamity which befell them yesterday, cannot be too highly commended. The shock was severe; the terrible, but the loss is great, but not unexpected. The people can bear under pressure. The people of the city are now on their mettle and in this condition they are better fitted to meet the emergency than any other city. Many families are homeless. Some of the people lost their all. It was a great calamity, but there will be no more such disasters. The driving wheel of Galveston's existence is shattered, the soul of the city is not disturbed, but the people are better fitted to meet the emergency than any other city.

RELIEF FROM ABOARD.

Telegrams of sympathy and aid continue to arrive. Governor Ireland sent $500, the city $250, and the people $100.

RIEL'S LAST DAY PASSED.

How the Rebel Leader Received The Death Warrant.

BRAVE TO THE LAST.

REGINA, N. W. T., November 15.—A special messenger bringing the warrant against Riel arrived here on special train at 9 o'clock to-night. There is now no longer any doubt that Riel will meet his fate on the gallows. The warrant was issued by the Governor-General of Canada, directing the execution of Louis Riel, the leader of the Canadian half-breeds in their recent rebellion, should take place in accordance with the verdict of the jury which tried him. Riel was arrested on the morning of the arrival of the warrant was a surprise to even many of the officials, who, owing to the fact that Riel had been so long in the hands of the government, had expected that another respite would follow. Riel received full intelligence at 9 o'clock in his cell in the gaol of the mounted police barracks. Three officers of this city. The intelligence was conveyed to him in person by High Sheriff Chapleau. The news was in many respects a remarkable one.

THE FAMOUS HERBES' CELL.

It is immediately adjacent to the guard room of the city of Regina, and is a small cell in which the iron gate in front of the cell was an iron grating on duty, and outside the cell a guard was posted.

THE DEATH WARRANT.

He replied: "I long ago made my peace with my God and as prepared now to die, I have no more to say." He then turned to his friends and said: "I have no more to say." He then turned to his friends and said: "I have no more to say."
