

The Florida senatorial dead-lock still continues.

A few more warm days will convince the new City Council that there is something in the principal alleys which needs removal.

The extent of the destructive force of the recent earthquake in the Sierra Madre mountains has just been learned. Quite a number of lives were lost in the destruction of villages, and several women died from fright.

The funeral of the late Justice Woods, of the Supreme Court of the United States, was a private affair, only a few of the highest officials of the government at Washington being present. The last funeral rites took place at Newark, Ohio, yesterday.

Dakota will follow the lead of Montana and quarantain against cattle from certain United States and portions of States in the East. This seems to be necessary to prevent owners of infected herds on the other side of the Mississippi river from dumping their diseased cattle in the Territory named.

The story of the discovery of treasure in India valued at $25,000,000 has decided "Arabian Nights' entertainment" favor about it. The only matter that saves it from being denounced as a clumsy canard is the declaration that the Government of India, appropriated it as a loan, "the right hand to it being under age."

Montana Regent has again covered himself with glory, having won the Louisville cup against Lucky Baldwin's two entries Lucky B. and Solid Silver. The distance race was two and one-fourth miles. The winning of this race puts the Montana horse right up in the front rank of the fast long distance runners of the day, and demonstrates the ability of the Territory to produce horses of endurance as well as speed. Mr. Baldwin will doubtless be accommodated with a race for any sum he may name at Regent's best distance—one mile and a half.

Senator Blackburn of Kentucky thinks Carolina is the best place for extensive places on the Democratic ticket next year. Cleveland, he thinks, is not at all anxious for a second term, but he has many personal and political friends who will urge him to accept a renomination. There will be trouble, the senator thinks, over the Hill movement. There is no doubting or slighting the existence of such a movement. It will come out squarely as a candidate for the nomination Senator Blackburn thinks the Democrats will act wisely in nominating either Hill nor Cleveland. To nominate either, he thinks, will array the followers of the other in secret warfare against the ticket, and the result will be to cause New York to go Republican. Hence he thinks the Democratic Convention will be compelled to go outside of New York for a candidate. He thinks the time is now ripe for a Southern man to be placed on the National ticket, and naturally would look to his own State of Kentucky for the man to be nominated. He thinks it will nominate Carlisle for President and Hill for Vice President.

LANDOWNE HUMBLED.

Editor O'Brien has at last brought Lord Lansdowne to his feet to explain. When O'Brien first made his appearance in Canada his lordship professed to be anxious that the Irish editor should have full liberty of speech. To the outside world it was a very liberal and generous offer, but O'Brien to do his worst. The effect of O'Brien's speeches was a revelation to Lansdowne and his friends, and the latter hastened to brace up their chief by adopting a set of taffy resolutions which they presented to him. In accepting them Lansdowne bared his sore spot when he said:

"It has been a source of the deepest regret to me that those who have sought for political purposes to stir up strife between me and the tenants of my Irish estates should have been for a time successful. I desire sincerely that the differences which have thus arisen may be removed by permanent and just arrangements which will satisfy all parties and which will restore those kind relations which until recently existed between my tenants and myself as being long completely restored."

Lord Lansdowne has it in his power to restore those kind relations of which he speaks by arresting further evictions from his Irish estates and by restoring to their homes the 1200 tenants who have been recently evicted from them by his order. Will he do it? If he do, then it will be conceded that O'Brien has completely restored those kind relations of which he speaks by the liberal word.

IRELAND'S CHIEF SECRETARIES

Mr. Balfour, who contemplates resigning, according to the Chicago Tribune, the chief secretary to the British Government in Ireland is Mr. Forster in 1882. The others, says the same authority, were Lord Frederick Cavendish, murdered by the Invincibles; Sir George Trevelyan, driven from his post on account of the Dublin Castle scandals, with which, however, there is no way connected; and Gladstone's Government in 1884; Sir William Hart Dyke, who retired in 1885 as the Director of the Ordnance Office; and Sir John Lubbock, who had the honor of being Secretary of the Home Office, and Sir Michael Hicks Beach, who took hold with the present Ministry, and who retired in March.

Now Balfour is about to retire, having wearied of the position, which he accepted as a last resort. He is a man of high standing and is said to be the most difficult in the gift of an English Ministry. Every man who has taken it, with the possible exception of Morley, has suffered in reputation.

The cause is that all those appointed are Englishmen or Scotchmen utterly unacquainted with the Irish people, and who have to debate on Irish affairs with well-posted, clever Irishmen like Healy, Weston, and O'Connor. They cannot possibly do it successfully. They have to rely on the Dubin Castle hacks for their information. This is often misleading and manufacturing facts to suit the occasion. He who goes to the people and their representatives for the facts, and was in sympathy with the Nationalists and opposed to the Castle. Balfour has been a conspicuous failure.

His dudish manners and superior airs aroused the hostility of the American people. He was so much hated by the people and their representatives for the facts, and was in sympathy with the Nationalists and opposed to the Castle. Balfour has been a conspicuous failure.

SYMPATHY FOR IRELAND.

The large mass meetings being held throughout the country for the purpose of protesting against the passage of the Coercion bill by the British Parliament and expressing sympathy for Ireland in her struggle with England, may have no effect upon the Tory Ministry, but their influence will be felt in the encouragement they give to the followers of Parnell and Gladstone, and in the amount of backbones they furnish to the latter. The one held at Lowell, Massachusetts, day before yesterday, was notable on account of the outspoken words of bluff Ben Butler. "Irishmen," he said, "had helped fight our battles, and that we ought to pay the debt by helping Ireland in case she got into a war with England." The speaker, who was with the sentiment of the country, and that sentiment will be strongly emphasized if the relations between the two countries become warlike.

If the Democratic party of Montana, divided into two factions, can now under the leadership of the Hon. J. B. Bonanza have in their ranks by a majority of about 4,000, with that majority can the Democrats now under him or any other man the Republicans can put forward, when divided into three factions? The Inter Mountain may take its time in answering this little problem in Simple Proportion.

PACIFIC RAILROAD INVESTIGATION.

Blaine's Connection with the Credit Mobilier—Jay Gould on the Stand.

New York, May 17.—In the Pacific Railroad investigation to-day, the well known broker, John P. Morgan, stood on the stand and went over the old story of the Credit Mobilier and took occasion to vindicate Oakes Ames, saying he was an honorable man and was killed by Ponfias' story told concerning him. Ponfias attempted to show that Morgan was a man of credit. Morgan said he was not a man of credit, but a man of honor.

When Tom Scott was elected President of the Union Pacific, Scott told the witness that he had eighty-two bonds which belonged to Blaine which the Union Pacific would have to pay. Jay Gould was next placed on the stand and told at length his story and his connection with the Union Pacific. Gould said that he had been a partner in the Union Pacific, and when the special agreement of 1875 was made, he was a partner in the Union Pacific, and when the special agreement of 1875 was made, he was a partner in the Union Pacific.

PHYSICIAN HOSPITALITY.

The Complimentary Banquet at Renshaw Hall of the K of P.

Good Fellowship and Good Humor Reign Supreme.

All the Delicacies of the Season and Generous Wine Dispensed Without stint—An Occasion Long to be Remembered in the Annals of the Order for Eloquence, Wit and Good Feeling.

Yesterday was the second day's session of the Grand Lodge of Montana of the Knights of Pythias, and the work performed by the members was of a high order.

The principal part of the business of the Grand Lodge, K. of P., yesterday, was the presentation of amendments to the constitution presented one year ago, according to constitutional provision. Most of the amendments were adopted, while some of them were directly rejected.

It is fair to say that the action of the Grand Lodge in these matters was duly considered and approved by the members of the order.

The banquet, which was given at Renshaw Hall, was a most successful one, and the members of the order were highly pleased with the result.
