

LOCAL NEWS

From the Daily Herald of August 20.

BADLY BEATEN.

Helena loses the three games in the Ball Tournament with Salt Lake--The Last Two Contests.

The Helena base ball club have met the enemy, and if the loss of three straight games is any criterion, they are emphatically mortgaged to the Salt Lake ball tossers. The tournament that began Friday ended yesterday in favor of the Salt Lakers, who won every game. It was apparent from the start that the Helena boys were overmatched. The home club consists of hardworking boys who only leave their vocations once in a while to play ball, and are necessarily more or less weak and out of practice when they meet on the diamond. Their opponents, however, are all that is implied in the term ball players. They make a business of playing ball, and know no estrangement from the field during the summer season. Add to this the fact that they are all finely built men, their muscles well trained, and in perfect condition, and it is no wonder that they could so easily vanquish a nine like that of Helena. To make things even they ought to have given Helena about five runs to start with in every game, and then the home club would have had some show. As it was the latter worked against overwhelming odds from the start, and are to be congratulated on the noble fight they made against such a superior foe.

SATURDAY'S GAME

was called at 3:30 o'clock by Umpire Oker, of Marysville. Salt Lake had first innings and lost no time in getting on Semper's pitching. Every man sent a sky scraper out into the field. The first was caught by Tutt, the second flew safe and let the batter to first. The third and fourth were caught respectively by Dallas and Wallace, the base runner being left on third. Helena did a little better, too, in the first inning, but two caught flies and an out strike put the team with a score of zero. On the second inning Salt Lake made one and Helena two, but in the third the former made two and the latter were whitewashed. This led the visitors kept throughout, adding to it every inning until they were out on the ninth in the ninth inning with twelve runs to their credit. Helena had four at this time, and by some good batting in the ninth inning brought in two more runs, when they were put out, leaving the score 12 to 6 in favor of Salt Lake. There were errors on both sides but the Salt Lakers played much the cleaner game. Tutt did excellent fielding, catching six flies and playing without an error. Moffitt did fine work at the bat and struck a three bagger in the eighth inning. Dallas did poor work in the field but made a few fine hits, which some of his catches and fly catchers of the Salt Lakers an excellent chance to field the ball. His base hit in the ninth inning, however, brought in two men. Wallace did some good field work and struck a two bagger. The battery held up well, considering everything, though there were some wild pitches. The passed balls that ought not to be recorded.

Following was the score:

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

Table with columns: AB, R, BH, PO, A, E. Rows for Helena and Salt Lake players.

BENEFITTED.

An Ovation to Manager Maguire Saturday Night--Fine Music.

The people of Helena never do anything halfway, and on Saturday night when the curtain went up at Ming's Opera House for the benefit performance the musicians on the stage looked upon as large and fine an audience as ever graced the interior of any western theatre. The house was crowded to the doors; the boxes were all occupied, and even the gallery was well filled. The programme as heretofore published in these columns was carried out to the letter, except as to the piano duo announced by Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Keefe, which was omitted much to the regret of the audience, on account of the illness of Mrs. Keefe. Each number of the attractive programme was enthusiastically received, and deserved such recognition, for a better balanced or higher grade of amateur entertainment has never been presented to a Helena audience. The Encore club made it the success that it was, its talented members rendering the chief numbers in solo, chorus and orchestra. They had a chorus of between thirty and forty voices and did excellent work under the conducting of Mr. Jackson. The chorus under the "Redemption," "Untold Joy Portal," was rendered with a volume of vocalization and precision of musical expression that speaks volumes for the club. It was by all odds, and that is saying a great deal, the finest chorus ever heard rendered by the Helena audience. The operatic selection in the second part was also a fine piece of chorus work. The club orchestra is improving wonderfully and rendered its several selections in better style than anything heretofore presented. Miss Marie Atkinson, the recognized prima donna of the club, fairly captivated her hearers with her sweet rendition of "Marguerite." She was in excellent voice and the clear, pure tones of her perfect soprano were never heard to better advantage. She was encored twice and was presented with a magnificent bouquet of flowers. Another number that was heard with great pleasure and was the duet between Mrs. H. W. Fote and Mr. G. W. Jackson. It was one of Dudley Buck's incomparable compositions and was rendered with a style that might have satisfied the author, had he been present. An agreeable change in the concert were the recitations by Mr. Lyman, of Butte, Miss Clarke, and Mr. Maguire. The two latter have been heard before, but the elation of Mr. Lyman was a new source of pleasure to the audience. He has a good voice, fine conception of the spirit of his recitations and embellishes every sentence with the illustrations of graceful and appropriate gestures. His first piece was enthusiastically received, and his response with a humorous selection that was given with equal ability. In instrumental music the piano duet by Mrs. D. W. Fisk and Mr. Hirsch proved a source of great enjoyment and the performers had to give another selection in response to vigorous applause. The performance of the First Cavalry Band was also greatly enjoyed and the charm of good brass music fully exemplified in its first number as well as in the musical lodge jodge it rendered for an encore. As the close of the entertainment Manager Maguire, feelingly returned thanks to the people of Helena for their generous testimonial and quitted the stage amidst a perfect storm of applause. The curtain fell upon the most successful benefit performance ever given in Helena and the audience departed with a sense of satisfaction and the bright termination of the benefit project and a no less pleasing consciousness of enjoyment received at the entertainment.

BOLD SOGER BOYS.

The Montana Militia in Their First Annual Encampment. At the territorial fair grounds, on the beautiful open field about which circles the racing course, are pitched the tents of the Montana militia, to-day assembling in their first annual encampment. As early as Saturday afternoon was in readiness to receive the bold boys, and to-day they are putting in their appearance in fairly strong force. Company C, of the First Regiment, and Troop A and B of Helena and Bozeman, and the Helena Light Artillery, are on hand, with their respective contingents of other contingents. Among these are the Silver Bow, Madison, Beaverhead and Yellowstone men, as follows: Company B, Capt. Brannagan, with about 50 men. Company G, Capt. Kessler, with about 50 men. Company F, Capt. Shoemaker, with about 40 men. Company D, Capt. Elling, with about 40 men. Company E, Capt. Moore, with about 35 men. The regimental officers present and reporting for duty are: Colonel--C. F. Lloyd. Major--L. E. Holmes. Adjutant--L. E. Holmes. Quartermaster--J. F. Loebner. Sergeant Major--G. F. Marsh. The encampment, commencing to-morrow, Tuesday, continues for three days, and will be a conspicuous feature of Fair week. To the militia it promises to be pleasant as visitors and profitable as soldiers.

Accidentally Shot.

Robert Gage, a lad about 15 years old is nursing a wound received last Saturday by the accidental discharge of a revolver. He was out hunting on Mitchell's creek with a party of boys and early Saturday morning he got up to awaken his companions by shooting off his pistol. In drawing the weapon it was accidentally discharged and the ball passed through the upper part of his right leg, ranging downward and also penetrating the foot. He was brought home and received proper medical attention at the hands of Drs. Leiser and Musser. He is now resting as easily as circumstances will permit and will be out again in a week or two, as the wounds are not serious, the bullet having missed the bone. Bobby is a bright, popular lad and has many friends who will regret to hear of his misfortune.

Sequel to the Gold Creek Accident.

Chicago Mail: Mrs. Adele Nelson, a member of the Nelson family of acrobatic performers, began suit for $50,000 against the Northern Pacific Railroad company. Robert Nelson, her husband, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Emma Nelson, also sued the company, the former for $30,000 and the latter for $3,000. The suits are brought for alleged injuries received in an accident at Gold Creek, Mt. T. July 1, through a washout.

Large Wheat Yield.

ST. PAUL, August 17.--Pioneer Press: Estimates of the aggregate wheat crop of Minnesota and Dakota this year in round numbers are 100,000,000 bushels. Ultra conservative judges make the figures from ten to fifteen million less.

A JOCKEY KILLED.

Fisher Blevins Thrown and Crushed to Death by "Green Preuit."

The first fatality on the Helena race course and one of the saddest events we have been called upon to chronicle for some time occurred during the third (running) race yesterday and resulted in the death of the well known half bred jockey, Fisher Blevins. The vicious horse, Green Preuit, was the instrument of death. His rider, McDermott, failed to appear on the track when the race was called and "Fish" was asked to ride the race. He was averse to doing so, but finally, on promise of $25, mounted the ugly animal and repaired to the starting post. The horse had been provided with "hinker" or blinds, as a necessary precaution. In the start he acted badly as usual, and when the word to go was given leaped forward with a jump. He was in the dust of the other animals and on the very start blindly rushed into the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over him twice. The horse was not hurt, but the poor jockey lay in the dust of the course weeding in the blood which spurted profusely from his head and neck. The first man where the pole fence, throwing his rider to the ground, falling on him and rolling over