

NEWMAN SPEAKS OUT LOUD

Many republican voters have apologized to me for the dirty mudslinging and lying methods adopted by the Plaindealer in this campaign, and while I presume that I ought to treat their accusations with silent contempt, yet I feel that in justice to truth, fairness and honesty, that I answer the lying accusations of the Plaindealer. While I appreciate very much the support of the working men, and the motive that prompted the action and publication referred to, that I knew absolutely nothing of said intention or action, and the Plaindealer in stating that I sent the report to the Tribune, or was instrumental in any manner of same being sent to the Tribune lies, and furthermore I conscientiously believe that it lied deliberately, intentionally, and maliciously. My interests in the welfare of the city of Havre is such, that in spite of my political party affiliation, that when in the voting booth with ballot before me, that my first consideration will be the welfare of this city, and I believe that all the good and loyal citizens of Havre will do likewise, I believe that a man that sacrifices the best interests of his home town of city, either for a money consideration, or by party prejudice, is a poor citizen of the community in which he lives, and does not deserve its patronage or support.

L. NEWMAN.

E. V. Hauser came out from St. Paul Friday to look after his Havre interests.

Last spring when there was a fight on between the old administration and the reform forces the Plaindealer did not have the independence or the principal to come out openly for either side, but it knifed Newman on the sly when ever it could but on the evening of election both of its proprietors were around on hand to embrace Mr. Newman and tell him that we knew that you would be elected. "We done it with our little pencil." Another case of false pretenses.

But the insults offered to Mr. Newman, to Gov. Toole and to all parties who do not furnish it with graft is on a par with the purple assault made on the character of a theatrical lady last spring, who after she had been charged four prices for some printing matter she had done had independence enough to refuse to furnish the Plaindealer outfit with "comps" was grossly insulted and when the editor was admonished by some of the respectable people of the city, came out in its next issue and made the pusillanimous excuse that he thought the lady was no gentleman. Now the editor that does not know a theatrical lady from a gentleman does not know much.

Vote early and remember Buckley for sheriff. He is the friend of good citizenship.
