It is a wise man who knows his own business and attends to the same.

The above phrase means a great deal, if a great many of our people would use more of their energy and time in their efforts to promote their own business and welfare as they do to creating dissension and discord in other people's affairs they would be a success.

We have in mind one or two gentlemen whom this paragraph would aptly apply to, and they can no longer conduct a gum shoe campaign of vilification,—the PLAINDEALER will snatch the masks from their faces and show them up in their true light.

SOME ADVICE,—AND A STORY.

There is a somewhat ancient lesson contained in the following from the New York World, but it is so excellent that the story is produced here: "Don't advertise if you believe you are wasting money. Let your competitor waste his money on advertise-ing, and perhaps in this way you'll soon put him out of business. Just stand back and laugh at him when you see him squandering his money for printers' ink. Once there was a boy named,—we think his last name was Wanamaker, or maybe Money-maker; anyhow, his name was John, with some sort of a maker attached to his last name. He owned fifty yards of calico, three pairs of jeans, a half dozen pairs of boots. He called this a dry goods store through a Philadelphia newspaper, and offered to sell a pair of socks for 39 cents. The don't-believe-in-advertising just laughed. Young John spent $65 with a Philadelphia paper to advertise just one time, and less than $100 worth of goods. He was cautioned by the merchants who 'knew it didn't pay.' It was through sympathy that they offered him advice. But John did not listen to them, and went and blew his money foolishly; and today poor John sees the result of his misdoings,—he has so many large dry goods stores that he can hardly find time to study his Sunday School lesson. Can you see a lesson in this? Be a progressive up-to-date business man. Advertise your wares if you want to sell them."
