FAMOUS SOLDIER AND PUBLICIST DIED IN NEW YORK CITY.

Was United States Minister to Spain in 1861—Resigned and Was Made a General in Union Army—Founded Several Newspapers and Held Several High Political Offices.

Carl Schurz, the noted publicist, died Sunday morning in New York city. His family was at the bedside. He had been ill a week or more.

He was born at Liblar, near Cologne, Germany, March 2, 1829. He received a university education in Germany and in this country was given degrees by Harvard, the University of Missouri and Columbia university. While a young man he published a liberal newspaper at Bonn and took part in the revolutionary movements in 1848-9. He was compelled to leave Bonn in 1849 and he joined the revolutionary army, but finally had to flee to Switzerland. He was a newspaper correspondent in Paris in 1851. Later he was a teacher in London. He married Margareta Meyer in Hamburg in 1852. He came to the United States in 1852 and settled in Watertown, Wis. He was defeated as republican candidate for lieutenant governor of Wisconsin in 1857. He was a member of the national republican convention in 1860 and became United States minister to Spain in 1861, but resigned to enter the Union army. He was made brigadier general in 1862 and major general March 14, 1863. He was commander of a division at second Bull Run and Chancellorsville and a corps at Gettysburg.

In 1866 he was Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune. He founded the Detroit Post in 1866, but became editor of the St. Louis Westliche Post in 1867.

In 1868 he was temporary chairman of the national republican convention at Chicago. From 1869 to 1875 he was United States senator from Missouri. Mr. Schurz was one of the organizers of the liberal party in 1872. He presided over the convention at Cincinnati which nominated Horace Greeley for president. In 1876 he supported Rutherford B. Hayes, republican, for president. He was secretary of the interior during the administration of Hayes. From 1881 to 1884 he was editor of the New York Evening Post. He was one of the leaders of the independent movement in 1884. He supported Cleveland for president. From 1892 to 1901 he was president of the National Civil Service Reform league.

RUSSIAN ADMIRAL STABBED TO DEATH

St. Petersburg May 15.—Vice Admiral Kuzmich, commander of the port, who was very unpopular with the workmen, whose May day demonstration he had attempted to stop.

The admiral was killed at the new admiralty works, a government institution.

When most of the 2000 men employed there reported for duty at 5 o'clock Monday morning they wanted immediately to march out and celebrate the Russian May day, but finally agreed to work until 2 p. m.

The admiral, however, made a speech to the men, saying that he could not agree to their leaving work at 2 o'clock and the matter was left open.

At about 9:30 a. m., according to an officer who was at the gate of the works, the admiral was emerging from a small shop when a workman who had been concealed around the corner of the building leaped upon Kuzmich from behind and drove a long dagger into his back.

The admiral fell forward on his face which was badly cut by stones, and died immediately.

The assassin fled into a large forge, where he was lost among the men employed there. The works were promptly surrounded by troops and police, but the search for the murderer was unavailing, his companions professing ignorance of his identity. The police say it is evident that the assassination of the admiral had been planned in advance.

The dagger, which was found on the spot, was concealed in a round sticklike sword canas. Among the workmen are many former sailors and revolutionists. Kuzmich had a bad reputation among the workmen, being regarded as hard and despotic.

Admiral Kuzmich participated in the Russo-Turkish war, and in 1902 was second flag officer of the Port Arthur fleet. He returned to St. Petersburg in 1903 and was appointed commander of the port. Politically, he was a reactionist.

PRINCE OF INDIA IN AMERICA.

Maharajah of Gaekwar Lands in New York City.

The Maharajah Gaekwar of Baroda, accompanied by his wife, the maharajah, and his brother, Sampatras, have arrived in New York from Liverpool. The Maharajah Gaekwar is the second greatest prince in all India and the direct descendant of one of the Maharattah generals, who were the moguls or rulers of India when the East India company wrested control from them. He is the ruler of the state of Baroda, which has a population of 2,000,000 and an area of 8000 square miles. His brother acts as his secretary.

There were many people on the pier to see the ruler of Baroda, but those who expected to see a man decked in oriental trappings and hung with jewels were disappointed. Descending the gang plank there came a dapper little man who would have been taken ordinarily for a prosperous East Indian merchant. He and his wife, followed by two maids, were taken to the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, where they will stop while in New York.

"During my stay in the United States," said the maharajah, "I shall visit most of your large colleges. I am most anxious to see Yale, Princeton, Harvard and Cornell for I understand that there are a large number of Indian students at those institutions. After I have spent two weeks in New York I shall go to Boston, from there to Philadelphia and then through the west to Yellowstone park."

FERRIS WHEEL IS NO MORE.

Wonder of Two World's Fairs is Destroyed by Dynamite.

Blown to pieces by a monster charge of dynamite, the Ferris wheel came to an ignominious end recently, after a varied career of 13 years. At its ending it was unwept and unsung.

Constructed as one of the engineering feats of a century, it first was a feature of the Chicago world's fair in 1893.

Then for a long period of monumental and unprofitable inactivity it towered in an amusement park at North Clark street and Wrightwood avenue. It finally was removed to St. Louis to form for the second time the huge mechanical marvel of a great exposition.

For more than a month heavy wagons laden with 4600 tons of steel of its construction lumbered through Chicago streets. The old wheel, which had become St. Louis' white elephant, dies hard. It required 200 pounds of dynamite to put it out of business.

The first charge was exploded under the supports of the north side of the structure, wrecking its foundation and permitting the wheel to drop to the ground, a matter of but a few feet.

As the wheel settled it slowly turned with its bottom as a support, and then after tottering a moment like a huge giant in distress, it collapsed slowly and within a few minutes it was a tangled mass of steel and iron 30 or 40 feet high. The huge axle, weighing 74 tons, dropped slowly with the remnants of the wheel, crushing the smaller braces and steel frame work. When the mass stopped settling it bore no resemblance to the wheel which was so familiar to Chicago and St. Louis and the 500,000 amusements seekers from all over the world in the days when it was in operation, who made the trip to the top of its height of 264 feet and then slowly around and down to the starting place.

Following the blast that wrecked the wheel, but which failed to shatter its foundations came an explosion of another charge of 100 pounds of dynamite. The stocks were sunk in holes drilled in the concrete foundations that supported the pillars on the north side of the wheel.

The wheel was the wonder of two continents by reason of its cost of $360,000, its dimensions and its utter uselessness. It was the rival of the Eiffel tower of Paris. Chicago was glad to get rid of it and St. Louis is said to have witnessed its destruction with satisfaction.

George Washington Gale Ferris, president of a Pittsburg engineering firm, originated the idea of the wheel that bore his name, and adapting the constructive principals of steel bridges in its erection.

J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad, says he expects to have a line completed from Winnipeg to the coast by the time the Grand Trunk Pacific had reached Winnipeg, which means by the fall of 1907. He said that he had no intention of invading eastern Canada, but would use the Canadian Pacific railroad and Grand Trunk Pacific.

Kellogg, Idaho, May 16.—Ben Darwin, hardly 30, was killed in a saloon near the railroad station here, by "Sandy" Lamb. Theories differ as to whether the dead man was killed by a bullet or clubbed either with a revolver or blunt instrument. A coroner's jury attributed the murder to Lamb. Both men had been drinking.

Jewels Worth $10,000 Gone.

Philadelphia.—Mrs. Edward L. Welch, wife of a prominent banker, has notified the police of the loss of rare and costly jewels, which were stolen from the suburban home at Chestnut hill. The value of the gems it said to be more than $10,000. A former butler is suspected.

"A Time Table of Crime in Chicago," compiled from the records, was read recently to the Chicago presbytery by Attorney Cleveland.

The table shows street disturbances every six seconds.

An arrest by the police every seven and one half minutes. An arrest for drunkenness every 15 minutes.

An assault and battery case every 20 minutes.

Burglary every three hours.

A holdup every six hours. Two suicides every day. One murder every day.

Of the murders only one in 20 are ever apprehended and only one in 50 punished.

The table is compiled from the official records, and it is admitted that they do not take account of more than one half the crimes.

Attorney Cleveland's address consumed the time scheduled for 20 arrests, six robberies and three assaults and battery.

"These crimes are committed with this frequency day and night throughout the year," continued Mr. Cleveland.

"The contemplation of these figures is astounding, and enough to strike terror to the heart of every law abiding and peaceful citizen. We are in the clutches of a gigantic wave of crime such as Chicago never before has known."

Pendleton, Ore., May 15.—Two men and two horses are dead as the result of a mysterious burning of a boxcar in a freight train on the line of the O. R. & N. near Foster, this county. One man was probably a tramp and is thought to have been murdered by a companion, while the other was mistaken for the murderer and shot by a member of the sheriff's posse. The car which was burned was loaded with household goods and two horses, and left Fort Riley, Kan., May 6 for Port Townsend, Wash. It was in charge of Private William Wilson of the Twenty fifth battery. The contents were for Colonel S. W. Taylor at Port Townsend.

According to the statement of Wilson, while he was carrying one of the horses he was kicked in the breast by the animal, and when he came to himself the car was on fire. He managed to turn the animals out, but both were killed. He climbed over the cars to the caboose, where he notified the trainmen. The train was out in two, and the burning car run on to the siding at Foster.

In spite of the fact that Wilson says he was alone on the car, the charred remains of a man were found in one end, while another man in citizen's clothes jumped off and ran across the country.

Durban, Natal, May 16.—Searchlights promise to prove as effective weapons in subduing the sedition of the Zulus as the British guns, judging from the display given recently by Native Commissioner Saunders before a huge gathering of Zulus at the Khadadadala headquarters of the punitive force.

The navies were awe stricken and regarded the searchlight as the eye of the Almighty and said that God has turned it upon them in his anger.

The flashing of the light on the surrounding hills, bringing in plain view the Kaffir trails as far as the horizon, powerfully impressed the Zulus, who, when the light was suddenly flashed in their faces, covered and fell on the ground before what they termed the "latest witchcraft of the whites."

Wenatchee, Wash., May 17.—Caught by the terrific rush of water pouring through the canyon of the Columbia at Rock Island rapids 10 miles below this city, the steamer Selkirk met her fate on the rocks.
