Have we not all, amid life's petty strife,
Some pure ideal of a nobler life
That once seemed possible?

We have, and yet
We lost it in the daily jar and fret,
And now live idle in a vain regret.
But still our place is kept, and it will wait
Ready for us to fill it soon or late.
No star is ever lost we once have seen;
We always may be what we might have been.

"Grief sharper sting doth borrow from regret,
But yesterday is gone, and shall it's sorrow
Unfit us for the present and the morrow?
Nay; hide a wee, and dinna fret."

Hurled In Its Teeth

(Concluded from first page.)

I have never been called upon to address the publisher of any paper as I do you of this date. Because I have always endeavored to be a man attending strictly to my own business; I have, in that way, gained, and as far as I know, retained the confidence, regardless of race or political alignment, of every citizen in the capital of Kansas, where I resided thirty-three years before coming here. I consider the article in which my name was mentioned on page 2 of your issue of this date, wherein you unequivocally, — falsely, state that Mr. Gray is the owner of THE PLAINDEALER, libelous and hurtful to my business. You may do almost anything you wish in the game of politics to win, but when you libel me and my business to further your ends I shall in no uncertain manner resent it. I stand for no political preferment, and am above board in all my dealings; according to my chance have the satisfaction of believing that I am making an honest living; and I demand that you retract the falsehood which you have published in reference to the ownership of THE PLAINDEALER, or be called upon to legally prove that any other person than the undersigned is proprietor and sole owner of the same. I demand that said retraction be given the same prominence as the false statement referred to.

Very respectfully,
J. B. Bass.

POLITICAL SNAPSHOTS

present, as matters of importance will be discussed.

There is no question but that the colored vote of this County is easily the balance of power between the Democratic and Republican party, wherein there is a principle involved. There is no question as to where this vote will go in its entirety; but coming to local issues they expect at least a square deal, and under present conditions unless those Republicans interested in political preferment change their attitude. It is a question as to whether they will receive even one fourth of their support.

A Monster Meeting of the colored voters is being arranged for, and addresses will be made by our own oratorical talent; the time and place of meeting will be announced in the next issue of this paper.

We will publish several thousand extra copies of the PLAINDEALER during the rest of the Campaign. Our local readers and agents in Anaconda, Butte, Havre and other points may secure them by applying or writing this office.
