The coal trusts, both hard and soft, are raising prices again. If they do this in the green time what will they do with us when the sear and yellow leaf appears? Yet the administration cannot get evidence to stop the robbery, though so far as the anthracite coal trust is concerned there is a large pigeonhole at the department of justice filled with written evidence that Mr. Hearst collected.

PARKER AND ROOSEVELT.

How the Business Interests View the Two Candidates.

There is no doubt that the trend of political events all tend toward the success of the Democracy in this campaign. The pivotal state of New York is settling down into the Democratic column. Seven of its greatest newspapers are supporting Judge Parker which were for McKinley in the campaigns of 1896 and 1900. Among these are the New York Herald, Evening Post, Times, World, Staats-Zeitung, Journal of Commerce and Brooklyn Eagle. What these newspapers say of Roosevelt is even more indicative of how the great business interests of the country view political matters. "The comments elicited from all quarters," says the New York Herald, "show that Judge Parker's action has won the confidence of the people, and that sort of confidence President Roosevelt has not inspired."

"His imperialism and his dictatorial ways, together with his revival of the race issue in the south and other rough rider fads, have awakened among the people a distrust of Mr. Roosevelt."

"Mr. Roosevelt has the support of his intimate friends and his political proteges, but conservative people eye him with distrust. They acknowledge that he is irrefragable as an individual, that he is a staunch patriot, a good husband, a loyal friend. But they doubt his capacity for self control, distrust his judgment and question his conception of presidential duties."

"Like the German emperor, he wishes to meddle in every detail of the public service, to control every department, to rule every official, to be both the lawmaker and the executive, to be the source of power and to apply it."

"Between Mr. Roosevelt's views of the president's duties and the views of the American people on that subject there is a very wide difference. He evidently thinks the president of the United States is a sort of dictator, while the people rightly regard him merely as their chief magistrate, as the executive head of the administration."

"This domineering conception of his official duties has excited widespread resentment among Republicans and has led him to make mistakes that would have prevented his nomination if the Republican party had had any other available candidate."

The Reciprocity League of Massachusetts is planning to place an independent ticket in the field. With a great majority of the business men favoring reciprocity, and the Republicans standing pat, such a division as a third ticket would create should give the state to the Democrats.
