

BOSTON WINS SERIES

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—The Boston Americans firmly clasped the baseball laurels of the universe upon their brows here this afternoon when they defeated the Brooklyn Nationals, 4 to 1, in the fifth and final game of the world's series of 1916. The greatest gathering in the history of the American national sport witnessed the victory, 42,620 fans departing after the contest convinced that the victors were the baseball machine par excellence of recent years.

As a result of the four games to one contest over the standard bearers of the National League, Boston tonight is celebrating its fifth victory in the world's series since 1905 and there is added joy in the fact that never in its history has a Boston team been forced to bow to the superior prowess of a rival in such combats.

The victory over Brooklyn in the final contest was so clean-cut and decisive that there was left no ground for argument. That the better team won the championship, despite the determined battles put up by Brooklyn in the earlier games of the series, was obvious. Before the speed and curves of Ernest Shore of East Bend, N. C., the Nationals were well-nigh hopeless, while Jeff Pfeffer, the last hope of Brooklyn, proved unequal to the task of holding Boston in check.

The invaders from Greater New York were able to score only three hits for a similar total of bases and the solitary run scored was unearned. It was the result of a pass, a sacrifice, an out and a passed ball. Boston, on the other hand, collected ten bases on seven hits and two of its four runs were earned.

Although the contest was played before a record throng of fans, there was only a moderate amount of enthusiasm. The 42,620 spectators, who paid, $32,873 to witness the triumph of the American league champions, came prepared for the November-like weather. Overcoats, fur wraps, heavy gloves, and in fact, everything except ear-laps were much in evidence.

Aside from Shore's clever cold-weather hurling and a sensational running shoeter catch by Wheat off Shore in the fifth, and another fancy catch by Lewis in the eighth, when he robbed Merkle, batting for Pfeffer, of an apparently sure double, the game was devoid of feature plays.

Immediately after Scott had clinched the championship by gobbling Mowrey's short fly for the final out of the game, the younger element among the spectators rushed upon the field and fell in behind the royal rosters and their band for a parade. On the first circle of the diamond they captured President Lannin of the Boston club, and then crossed the field after President C. H. Ebbets of Brooklyn. Amid the cheers of the fans, the rival club executives joined arms and led the march while thousands in the stands stayed to watch the celebration.

The players, however, did not wait to take part in the impromptu ceremonies. Both teams streaked for their dressing rooms and there were few, if any, congratulations. Many of the fans, however, shook hands with the Boston players and with Manager Carrigan, who said again that he had retired from professional baseball with today's game.

As in yesterday's game, Brooklyn was the first to score. Its only unearned tally came in the second session when Shore issued his only pass of the day, Cutshaw being the recipient. Mowrey sacrificed him to second, from which point he moved to third on Olson's infield out and scored when Shore uncovered the plate with a passed ball.

Boston immediately tied the score in its half of the same inning when Lewis tripled to left and came home as Wheat threw the ball recovered from Gardner's high fly wide of the plate in an effort to get Lewis.

The Americans added two more runs in the next turn at bat. Cady hit a bouncer over Daubert's head. Hooper walked, Cady scored when

ERNEST SHORE

Olson threw Janvrin's grounder into center field in an attempted double play. Hooper romped home from third on Shorten's hit over second. The fourth and final run was manufactured in the fifth on Hooper's single and Janvrin's double. After that Boston, aided by Shore's airtight twirling, played defensive ball and Brooklyn never threatened.

The attendance and receipts for today's game established a new record on this department of world's series history, supplanting the figure made in the same park October 11, a year ago, when the amounts were a few hundred less. Neither the total attendance nor money taken in at the box office surpassed the banner records made in 1911 and 1912, but the amount divided among the players established a new standard for money won by the contestants.

The attendance for the five games this season amounted to 162,359 and receipts $385,599.50. Of this sum the players received $182,927.45; each club, $29,629.22; and the national commission, $38,554.05. The Boston club, as winners, divided $97,556.47 on a basis of 25 shares, which the players are understood to have agreed upon as the method of apportionment. This would allow $3,910.26 a share. The twenty-three Brooklyn players, as losers, divide $65,170.96 into equal shares of $2,834.82 each. Owing to the fact that there are more players to share in the winner's money this year, the individual share is not on record.

Two miles from this river the writer stands in fancy today looking down from a hill whose slopes are one gorgeous display of autumn colorings, upon a quiet scene, a bit of intervals lying basking in the mellow October sun and whose river banks are fringed with the alder and the willow. "Bean Homestead," has produced in years long gone its wealth of premium crops, vegetables and again and has won trophies richer and more fondly cherished than any trophy given to a speed maniac, or a daring aviator of the present day. And, with all the rest, it has produced one Bean who will ever boost for a fair—not, of course, ever expecting to enjoy it as those who when at one time he drove the premium yoke of shorthorn steers that weighed nearly four thousand pounds at the head of the "Waterloo district" string of oxen and steers, on that memorable year when there were on that half mile track 364 poke of cattle in one continuous string. They were hitched to a big farm wagon built by the writer, and especially decorated by the younger set, and which was adjudged the premium wagon, a bower of green from the woodlands and gold from the corn fields. On the rear of this wagon stood a cornetist of note playing national airs as the long string of oxen circled around the track. Talk of glories of achievement, when a German submarine appears at Newport News unharmed—there's no comparison. Who wants to be in command of a submarine, when he could as well be a farmer and raising anything besides "Hell."

SAY OPERATION WAS NOT LEGAL

MOCASIN PHYSICIAN ARRESTED AND IS IMMEDIATELY RELEASED ON BONDS.

THE PATIENT A MARRIED WOMAN

Dr. W. E. Esterbrook, who has been practicing medicine at Moccasin, was arrested Monday on a charge of having performed an illegal operation, the alleged patient being a married woman and not a resident of Moccasin. The doctor immediately gave bonds and was released. The defense claims that no operation was performed in the case and that whatever was done was in accordance with medical practice and ethics and that the charge is wholly without foundation in fact.

NEWS REASSURING.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(5:23 a. m.)—Today's news from Rumania is regarded by the British commentators as reassuring. With the help of Russia, which is credited with sending formidable reinforcements to the frontiers, the offensive has been vigorously renewed by the Rumanians.

BEAN BOOSTER FOR OUR FAIR

RELATES INTERESTING DETAILS OF BOYHOOD DAYS IN NEW ENGLAND.

WHAT A FAIR MEANT BACK THERE

The writer has serious doubts as to there being any man in Fergus County more pleased with himself in the matter recently acted upon by the board of county commissioners with regard to the fair grounds proposition, whereby one of the most successful exhibitions in the country can be held in years to come. Looking backward 40 and 45 years to a little New Hampshire town having less than 500 voters, and this town surrounded by six others of about the same size, comprised the "Kearsarge Agricultural, Mechanical and Live Stock association," a territory embracing less in square miles than this famous Judith Basin (whose area is indeed a small part of the county) and such acres lay upon hills and hill slopes, but have produced many a premium (trace of corn and other produce. Here, near the center of the town of Warner in the bend of the river, lay the site of the fair grounds upon which, for a period of some twenty years, an annual fair and cattle show was held, an event looked forward to and to take place at the windup of a hard summer's toil when one could meet in competition his neighbor and vie with him in having the best exhibit. Many a quilt or dolly was begun the day after the fair closed in order to compete at the fair to follow. Many a boy (and the writer was one) planted seeds of some sort in the spring and nursed the crop all summer in order to compete at the fair. And so everybody took an interest and a part. It was truly a farmers' fair. The presidents were chosen from among the best farmers in the association and the judges also, thereby spreading abroad the enthusiasm.

COURT NEWS

The trial of Pearl Williams, charged with conducting a house of ill repute at Hobson, was held before Judge B. H. Foley on Friday, the defendants being represented by Attorneys C. J. Marshall and E. J. Baker and the state by Assistant County Attorney Raymond Dockery. The trial was stubbornly contested and it was not until nearly 6 o'clock that the case went to the jury. In about half an hour a verdict of guilty was returned, the penalty being left to the court to fix. Pearl Williams of Hobson, found guilty by a jury in Judge B. H. Foley's court Friday of conducting a disorderly house at Hobson, appeared for sentence Saturday morning. Judge Foley imposed a fine of $500. The defense immediately interposed a motion in arrest of judgment, on the ground that one of the jurors who served in the case, James A. Robbins, was not qualified to act, not being a citizen of the United States. This motion will be acted upon later.

INJUNCTION QUASHED.

The injunction proceeding against J. W. Butler, W. E. Tracey and Harry E. Billard as trustees of school district No. 28, to restrain them from proceeding with the construction of a new school building on what is known as the Mulloy site, came to an end in the district court Saturday afternoon when Judge Roy Ayers quashed the order requiring the trustees to show cause why the injunction should not issue. C. J. Marshall, representing the plaintiffs, and Raymond Dockery, representing the trustees, agreed upon a statement of fact. This showed that at an election held last year to vote upon the proposition to abandon the Plum creek site and erect a school house on the Mulloy site, twenty votes were cast in favor of the latter proposition, while nineteen voters favored the Plum Creek site. Mr. Marshall had affidavits to show that there were seven qualified voters in the district in addition to the number voting, and contended the result of the election did not carry the proposition for the reason that it did not represent a majority of the electors of the district, as contemplated by law. Judge Ayers held that the word "electors" as used in this case meant all those entitled to vote, while the word "voters" meant those who actually voted. The result of the election showed a majority for

CHARLIE AND WOODROW.

Said Charlie to Woodrow, "We're both in the game. So I'm telling the people just where you are lame. Why, you don't seem to know, Woodrow, what people like. If you did you'd not settle a nation-wide strike. Your position on peace all good people abhor. You could easily have had this whole nation at war. And there is that tariff; you sure have gone daft. Why didn't you revise it like President Taft? And you've hammered away at an eight-hour day. Till the laboring people are getting their pay. You don't favor capital; you're clear out of style. But to speak to plain labor, you'd walk half a mile. So I'm out with this message, I'll see you in the game. When I've told all the people of where you are lame."

Said Woodrow to Charlie, "You truly are bold. And I cannot deny that you know how to scold. But upon my past record I'll chance the whole game. And the people will tell at election, who's lame."

ALL READY FOR FALLS CONTEST

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL TEAM WILL LEAVE FOR GREAT FALLS SATURDAY.

COON PLANK IS GREATLY PLEASED

The high school football team will leave Saturday morning for Great Falls, where they will play their initial game of the season in the afternoon with the Great Falls high.

Owing to the bad weather that has prevailed recently, practice has been necessarily curtailed, but the boys have all rallied to the colors for work every day. The practice this week has been confined chiefly to rigid signal and scrimmaging practice with a view of strengthening weak points and much has been accomplished along this line.

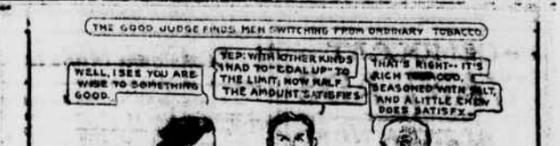

A large squad is in the field for team honors and plenty of good material is assured. While the athletes who will make the trip to the Falls have not all been selected, it is considered certain that the team will be about the strongest that has represented Fergus on the gridiron in some seasons.

FIRST ELEVEN.

The first eleven will be picked from the men who were out last evening, among these being Tom MacGown, Bradley White, Hob Otman, Gene Hines, "Curley" Dyer, Greeley Phillips, J. B. King, Luther Clark, V. Mowry, James Hadley, Otis Smith, Joe Downs, Roy Suprenant, Hugh Steffin, B. Cleu, Harold Allen, Glen Learn, Joe Stuart, C. Daniels, Theo. Ramsey, Otten Blackford and Paul McIntire.

Coch Plank feels much confidence in his men, as they have developed a lot of speed and all around efficiency, being especially good in tackling and line blocking.

Tomorrow night a scrimmage will take place at Symmes park and this will be the final practice before the Great Falls game.

THE GOOD JUDGE FINDS MEN SWITCHING FROM ORDINARY TOBACCO

WELL, ISN'T YOU ARE WORTH SOMETHING GOOD.

KEEP WITH OTHER KINDS YOU'D NEVER GET UP TO THE LIMIT, NOW FULLY THE AMOUNT SATISFIES

THAT'S RIGHT—IT'S RICH TOBACCO. BECAUSE WITH W.B. CUT AND A LITTLE WATER DOES SATISFY.

WHEN a gentleman is accustomed through and through with W.B. CUT Chewing, he finds that the common sense of it helps him across a feature of ordinary tobacco he never did like. The shreds of tobacco give up the tobacco satisfaction without so much grinding and spitting—the salt helps bring out the good tobacco taste—and because it's rich tobacco, a small chew lasts and satisfies.

A FELONY CHARGE. In the matter of the estate of S. S. Owen, deceased, Ella P. Owen was appointed administratrix.

J. V. Hawkins was arrested Monday on a charge of having committed a statutory assault upon a girl under the age of 18. No date has been fixed for the hearing.

SEEKS A DIVORCE. May Turner has brought suit for divorce against Samuel Turner, to whom she was married at Sheridan, Wyo., in 1902, failure to provide being alleged. The parties have four children and the mother asks that she be awarded the custody of them. E. J. Baker is the plaintiff's attorney.

Bertie King Hofrwan was Monday granted a divorce from Austin King Hofrwan. The parties were married at Mound City, Mo., in 1901, and have two children, the mother being given their custody. Failure to provide was the ground upon which the decree was granted. E. K. Cheadle represented the plaintiff.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 18.—A north-east storm broke over Hampton Roads at midnight with a 40-mile wind, increasing in velocity, accompanied by a msty rain which made navigation hazardous. Scores of vessels were reported scurrying for Hampton Roads and Lynn Haven bay. Most sailings were discontinued but line steamers were left on schedule.

Does Prohibition Prohibit? ANOTHER INSTANCE

This is a very pertinent question raised by the Montana Commercial and Labor League, and as usual, answered by them with a glaring misrepresentation of facts, in the circular, entitled: "Seattle a Hard Drinker." According to their figures, there was consumed in Seattle 266,678 quarts (not gallons) of intoxicating liquors during the first six months of the prohibition regime ending July 1, 1916. Seattle has a present population of 275,000 or more. This would make a consumption of liquor for the six months of less than ONE QUART PER CAPITA, OR LESS THAN ONE-HALF GALLON PER CAPITA PER ANNUM. The county at large consumes 22 GALLONS PER CAPITA and wet territory about 40 GALLONS PER CAPITA, as shown in yesterday's article. In other words, according to their own figures, Seattle consumes only ONE-FORTY-FOURTH as much liquor as the average for the country and ONE-EIGHTIETH as much as the average for licensed states. THE TROUBLE WITH THE LIQUOR MEN IS THAT PROHIBITION PROHIBITS ALTOGETHER TOO WELL. It is safe to say that none of our laws against crime are more effective than this. It is also safe to say that the prohibition laws when enacted will be violated only by the very men, who for their financial profit are trying to prevent their adoption.

Again we ask: Who are guilty of misrepresentation and misstatement of facts? And we answer: The paid advocates of the saloon, who are pouring out money to prevent interference with their financial gain made at the expense of their victims, the families and friends of their victims and society in general.

PROSPERITY IN SEATTLE.

It is well to note that a contractor for one of our local buildings was asked within the last few days why he did not send to Seattle for some of its UNEMPLOYED LABOR instead of advertising for men here. He replied that SEATTLE COULD USE THOUSANDS OF MEN MORE in its building operations than the supply in the city. This contractor is thoroughly acquainted with labor conditions in Seattle. According to the testimony of newspaper men, real estate men, bankers and business men of all kinds this building boom in Seattle is directly due to the effect of the prohibition law.
