Almost every case cured with PERRY DAVIS' Pain-Killer.

Pain-Killer. (From Rev. Dr. Telford, missionary in China, now visiting his home in Pennsylvania.)

DEAR SIR:—During a residence of some ten years as a missionary in Siam and China, I found your Pain-Killer a most valuable remedy for that fearful scourge, the cholera. In administering the medicine, I found it most effectual to give a teaspoonful of Pain-Killer in a glass of hot water, sweetened with sugar. When about fifteen minutes, begin to give about a teaspoonful of the same mixture every few minutes until relief was obtained. Apply hot applications to the extremities. Bathe the stomach with the Pain-Killer clear, and wash the limbs brinily. Of those who had the cholera, and took the medicine faithfully in the way stated above, eight out of ten recovered.

Truly yours, R. TELFORD. The late Rev. Dr. Telford repeatedly expressed his belief that he owed his life to the timely use of PERRY DAVIS' PAIN-KILLER. During his recent visit to the mission in Burma, he had a severe attack of the cholera, and was immediately relieved by the use of the Pain-Killer.

A Drunken Woman.

There is a pathetic interest about the story of Mrs. Wylie, a woman of wealth and high social standing, who was committed to a private lunatic asylum a year or two ago as an incorrigible drunkard, and whose friends now make the story public as a means of securing her release. Unfortunately, such stories are not rare. It seems mistaken kindness to open a record which charity would prefer to conceal forever. Twenty years ago there lived in handsome style in this city a wedded pair who had an income of $25,000 each, and in all respects were the envy of their friends. He was the son of a Quaker merchant on Pearl street, and she belonged to one of the oldest families in the city. A large family grew up about them, and as they grew up a habit of drinking fastened upon both father and mother. The would sit at the table daily and drink to intoxication. Finally the father died, but the mother kept right on in her evil ways, and at last turned the three oldest children out of the house. In the end the coachman, an ignorant but quick-witted fellow, got the upper hand of the household, turned the three younger children adrift and assumed control. Friends frightened him away, and, hesitating to resort to extreme measures, they talked and delayed until nearly all of the children's property was gone and their mother was a wreck. It would have been far better to have placed her in confinement twenty years ago than to have allowed her to exhibit herself as she sometimes does to old friends—red, coarse, disheveled and clad in torn rusty black—the sodden wreck of what was once one of the most graceful leaders of New York society, and one of the inspiring spirits in church circles.

The Story of an Umbrella.

General H. F. Suckles, the Colorado Commissioner to the New Orleans Exposition, was telling some friends a few days ago about the first glimpse of a mountain lion. He said: "We were living up in the mountains and had quite a herd of cows, among them one, an old cow, who wore a bell. The cows had been missing for several days, and the boys were out searching, and one afternoon I thought I would try what I could do. So I mounted a pony and rode quite a distance, when I thought I heard the old cow's bell. I dismounted and started to prowl around among the rocks and bushes.

"It had been raining during the early part of the afternoon, and I had an umbrella. I tied the pony to a tree and started. After I had gone a short distance I caught a glimpse of the cows. As I started toward them, suddenly they lifted their heads, crooked their tails, and started away on a dead run. I was just wondering what frightened them, when I heard a rustling in the bushes behind me.

"I turned around, and there, not ten feet away, was a big mountain lion standing on a rock staring at me. I assure you, I never felt so bashful in my life. I hadn't a gun or even a jack-knife, and there was that best staring and getting ready for a spring. All at once I thought of my umbrella, and as quick as thought I raised that much-borrowed article, and spread it right in Mr. Lion's face! He didn't stop to examine, but made one great jump clear across a gorge, and when he lighted, gave a yell that shook the hills.

"I saw no more of him. When I got home, the cows were there."

Kidney Complaints.

The kidneys form a very important channel for the outlet of disease from the system, carrying off accumulations that poison the blood. As the lungs remove the carbonic acid, the liver the biliary acid, so the kidneys remove the uric acid. The undue accumulation of this acid is the poison that often produces rheumatism and other chronic diseases. The kidneys are often affected and cause serious disease when least suspected. If there is weakness, heat or pain in the back or loins, weariness, nervous restlessness, and any unnatural condition of the urine, a hot, dry skin, hectic flushes, bloating of the body or swelling of the limbs, annoying headaches, obstructed circulation, with sediment or gravelly or albuminous deposits in the secretion from the kidneys; or if that secretion be either extremely pale or high colored, then the kidneys are evidently not doing their natural work. Many suffer from serious kidney trouble without knowing what ails them. No matter in what form the kidney complaint may exist, there is no better purifying regulating diuretic and tonic than Burdock Blood Bitters; its action upon the kidneys is at once manifested. Working upon this and all other channels of purification in a prompt and permanent manner.

"Work, Work, Work"

How many women there are working to-day in various branches of industry—to say nothing of the thousands of patient housewives whose lives are an unceasing round of toil—who are martyrs to these complaints to which the weaker sex is liable. Their tasks are rendered doubly hard and irksome and their lives shortened, but hard necessity compels them to keep on. To such Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" offers a sure means of relief. For all female weaknesses it is a certain cure. All druggists.
