

HE WASN'T BUILT THAT WAY.

She was stern as a Roman Cato, she had studied Kant and Plato, and for "Wisdom's old potato" dug in every soil and slime.

Yes, she dug the glittering tuber from Katakata down to Cuba, from the Ganges to the Nile, and in every land and clime.

She could lecture on Phytosis, Athanasius and Aquinas, and Semiramis and Sinus were familiar on her lips.

She'd no time for beads and bangles, and for silks and worsted tangles, while by logarithmic angles she foretold the next eclipse.

She could lecture by the hour, and with much forensic power, upon Locke and Schopenhauer and the medical monk.

And she thought it was her mission and the height of her ambition just to scatter erudition, and to leave it round in chunks.

She was like a knowledge bottle, from which poured as from a throtle, views of Bacon, Aristotle, Reid, Ricardo and Roman.

But no craved again tried to get her, for she couldn't fry a fritter, dress or cook a leg of mutton, broil a fish or sew a button; for she never was constructed on that good old fashioned plan.

NUMEROUS.

Speaking of drinking, it may be observed that a man who "can take it or leave it alone" generally takes it.—Utica Herald.

At a French restaurant—"Here, waiter, this turbot is not quite as fresh as the one you had last Sunday." "Pardon, Monsieur, it's the very same."—Tid Bits.

Fashionable mother—"You must never use the word 'tony,' Clara. It is only used by common people." "What word shall I use, Mamma?" "Fashionable mother—" "Swell."—N. Y. Sun.

"You say the trout weighed ten pounds?" "Yes sir, it was the biggest trout I ever saw." "And he got away from you?" "Yes." "Will you take an oath to that?" "I'll take no more oaths; I swore enough about it when he got away."—Youkers Statesman.

During an affray in a Texas town a man was shot and very badly wounded. Sympathizing friends raised up the fainting man. "Take him to the drug store," suggested somebody. Slowly the wounded man opened his eyes and whispered faintly: "What's the matter with the saloon?"—Texas Sitings.

"Phew!" said a stranger in New York, the other day, winching his nose with his thumb and forefinger; "is there a bone boiling establishment so near your City Hall?" "Oh, no," explained his city friend; "you smell our politics—that's all." P. S.—It was enough, too.—Norristown Herald.

"My dear," said an anxious wife to her husband, who is running for office, "we must economize in every possible way." "I do economize," he replied. "Yes," she said bitterly, "you spend $10 or $15 a day in treating a lot of hat-om loaders to beer and whisky just to get them to vote for you. Do you call that economy?" "Certainly; that's political economy."—Life.

Squire Bunker—"Professor, my son has been at your institution for some time. What do you think he is capable of?" Prof. Simpson—"What calling or profession do you wish him to follow?" Squire Bunker—"Well, you see I'm well fixed. All I've got will be his, an' I'm not expectin' him to do anything. Prof. Simpson—"From what I have seen of your son, Squire, I would say he has capacity enough for that."—Texas Sitings.

Ex-Postmaster-General Cresswell says that when he was traveling in Germany he wanted a glass of beer, but refrained from entering a "garden" because he could not think of the German name of the beverage. A man suffers great deprivations when traveling abroad, by not having a complete mastery of the language; though Mr. Cresswell's mistake was in thinking that beer had another name in the German tongue.—Norristown Herald.

Seven Wonders of the New World.

[This is not designed to supersede the regular seven wonders of antiquity.]

1. The Capitol at Washington, with its iron dome weighing 8,000,000 pounds.
2. The Bunker Hill Monument, where the noble Warren fell.
3. The Washington Monument, an obelisk shaft, 555 feet 5 inches high.
4. Niagara Falls, the stupendous cataract where 80,000,000,000 cubic feet of water pour hourly over the precipice.
5. The Mammoth Cave, where you may wander for 200 miles through the bowels of Kentucky.
6. Old Faithful, the tireless geyser of the Yellowstone Park, which not only spouts 120 feet, but spouts punctually every 55 minutes.
7. E. L. Godkin the megalomaniac, who honestly believes himself bigger than any of these things.—Y. Y. Sun.

Dr. Hunter—"A stranger said to me the other day: 'Wonder if the earthquake at Charleston was God's vengeance for the part that city took in the late war.' I replied: 'Wonder if the fires which burned out the richest portion of Chicago and the fairest portion of Boston, were not the results of that same vengeance.' My inquisitive friend had not thought of this before."
