IS CARELESS OF HER WATCH

WOMAN WILL FORGET TIME-PIECE FOR DAYS AT A TIME.

As a general thing women are careless of their watches. At least that is the opinion of some of the leading watchmakers. A man connected with one of the pioneer factories of this country led in a good deal of light on the subject. A woman sailed into a jewelry establishment and made for the watch department. Evidently she was a regular customer. "Something all this watch," she began in an injured tone of voice. "Half of the time it refuses to go and this is one of the times. And I paid enough for it goodness knows." "Do you wind it regularly?" asked the man behind the counter. "Why, certainly," answered the woman, with an infection which clearly meant "what a silly question!" The man took the watch and began turning the stem. He wound and wound and presently the thing began to tick. "The watch was run down," he observed mildly. "I don't understand how that could be. I'm positive I wound it last night." The owner insisted with some asperity. "The spring indicates that the watch had not been wound in more than twenty-four hours," commented the man. "Well, I certainly thought I wound it last night"—this in a little less confident tone. "If you will leave the watch, madam, I will have it looked over carefully and put in perfect condition," was the rejoinder and the customer swept out.

Should Wind it Regularly. "No use in the world," the clerk commented, "to insist that all the watch needs is to be wound regularly. Every watchmaker, every repairer of watches has this experience often, and there is none who has ever met a woman who did not resent being told she was careless." "As a rule," explained the man first referred to, "the watch is the most abused article in the world. Women in particular are almost criminally careless in their treatment of a time-piece. Generally speaking, a man wears his watch all the time. A woman, on the other hand, wears her watch one day and keeps it in the top bureau drawer for the next two or three days, where it has every chance to get filled with dust. In the meantime she forgets to wind it up. Ask most women and they will confess that they never think to wind their watch until it runs down.

"As for taking a watch once a year to be cleaned and oiled, probably not one man even in a hundred dreams of doing such a thing and never a woman. The usual mode of procedure is to wait until the watch begins to stop unexpectedly or to lose time. A good watch needs only one drop of oil a year to keep it in first rate condition, but that one drop it must have and seldom or never gets. "The small wheel of a watch in one year covers as much space in its revolutions as would bridge the distance from here to London at least, and doesn't often get in return is a drop of oil and a dusting out once in twelve months.

"This carelessness is of comparatively recent date and an outcome to some extent of the increased supply of watches and their lower cost. As women now treated their watches as if they were articles of the most common and the most worthless, it is scarcely likely that 20 per cent of the more than 3,000,000 watches manufactured in the United States last year would have been designed for women. Why, in 1861, the watch was the year when the first woman's watch of American make was turned out in Waltham, Mass., and presented to Mrs. N. P. Banks, wife of General Banks, a woman lucky enough to possess a watch treated it as if it were a prize. It was kept in a case when not worn, which was only on state occasions, and to let it knock around in a bureau drawer or on top of a dressing table would have been considered sacrilege.

"Although it is possible in these days to get a watch to keep practically exact time, the average woman is satisfied to have her watch gain or lose several minutes a day. Business women are almost as careless as are the idlers of fashion. One of the former, at the head of the workroom of a large manufacturing concern, was amazed when I told her one day that she was employed by a railroad she would have to carry a watch that kept time. "What do you mean?" she asked. "I consider that my watch keeps excellent time. It is only four minutes fast now."

"Four minutes," I repeated. "Why, twenty seconds a week is all the deviation from correct times allowed by the railroads, and to gain this end the trainmen, conductors, brakemen, engineers and other employees connected with 110,000 miles of the railroads of this country are obliged to submit for inspection their watches at least once a month, and each must carry, say, a seventeen-jeweled watch adjusted to at least three positions. "No, such a watch need not necessarily be expensive. In a silver case the price would not be much over $20, or less than one-third what it would have cost fifty years ago. There are pretty little fancy Swiss watches for women which may be bought for a very few dollars. American competition having brought down the prices of foreign makers. An excellent time-keeper in a silver case can be bought for $10.

"Take it all in all," said he, "women care a good deal more about the outside looks of their watches than about whether it gains or loses minutes or hours a day. "One of our customers, for instance, was looking at necklaces the other day when her friend said hurriedly: "I believe I must go."

"Oh, no," said the other, turning around her chateleine watch. "It's only 4." "Why, it says 4:30," the other remarked. "Yes, I know it does, but it's half an hour fast." "No, never knew a man who would carry a watch which was half an hour fast and make no attempt to set it back." "When it comes to a question of the case, though, our women customers are much more fastidious than most men and for this reason the elaboration of the watch case becomes more marked every year. Hosts of women now wear chateleine watches costing anywhere from $200 to $250. In most of these the pin may be separated from the watch and worn as a bracelet, but this is not often done. "To get down to the plain styles, however, the enameled chateleine watch is practically out of style, its place being taken by the gold chateleine watch, engraved with a monogram or showing a gold dial opening.

"The very fashionable woman when selecting an ordinary watch for use rather than ornament chooses a gold open-face watch; jewel size, which means a little more than one inch in diameter, and this she wears tucked in her belt. Attached to its chain is a ribbon chain about one-third of an inch wide, decorated at intervals of four, five or six inches with a jeweled clasp. These clasps are of imitation jewels as well as of real stones, and the chains are far more stylish than the beaded affairs so long in vogue. As between the plainer chateleine watches and the belt watches of gold or silver, the latter are far the smarter just now."—Chicago Chronicle.

Shows Value of Heredity. A parliamentary candidate was being heckled. One of the questions had reference to the religious denomination to which he belonged, says the London Mail. "Well," he said, "you asked me an honest question and you shall have a straightforward answer. My grandfather was a Scotch woman—a rigid Presbyterian."

Obvious disappointment was shown in the faces of the audience, so the candidate proceeded: "My grandfather was English and therefore a member of the Church of England." "Still no enthusiasm, but rather the reverse. "My father, on the other hand, was a good Baptist," went on the desperate candidate, who was still unrewarded by an applause so long and so loudly added. "But my dear old mother, long since dead, was a Methodist."

Terms of Court. In the District Court of the Tenth Judicial District of the State of Montana, in and for the counties of Fergus and Meagher.—Order. In accordance with section 28, chapter IV, Title I, part I, of the Code of Civil Procedure of the State of Montana, relating to District Courts, as amended by an act of the Legislature, section 38, approved March 7th, 1907. It is hereby ordered that the terms of court for the county of Fergus, to be held at Lewistown, the county seat of said county, and for the county of Meagher, to be held at White Sulphur Springs, the county seat of said county, during the year 1907, be as follows:

Fergus County. First: Monday, January 7th, 1907. Second: Monday, March 11th, 1907. Third: Monday, June 10th, 1907. Fourth: Monday, September 9th, 1907. Meagher County. First: Tuesday, March 5th, 1907. Second: Tuesday, June 4th, 1907. Third: Tuesday, September 3rd, 1907. Fourth: Tuesday, December 3rd, 1907.

It is further ordered that this order be filed by the clerks of the district court in and for each of the said counties, and that the said clerks cause the same to be published in the respective official papers of the said counties once a week for three successive weeks, immediately after the filing of this order. Dated at Lewistown, Montana, this 7th day of December, A. D., 1906. E. K. CHEADLE, Judge.

How to Keep a Good Job. Have you a good job? Don't forget that a lot of hungry-eyed individuals are standing around waiting more or less patiently to drop into it whenever you get a better one or when you get "fired." The way to keep a good job is to be as good as the job; the way to get a better job is to be better than the present job; the way to get on the bossman is to get it into your head that you are indispensable to the office and to begin acting independent and "bossy."—Lawrence (Kan.)
