

LETTER! RIVAL? KILLS THE GIRL

Man Shoots Self and Then Learns
Note Was From Her
Sister.

REFUSED MANY TIMES

Jealousy of Alien Enemy Leads to Double Tragedy—Loved the Girl and Thought There
Was a Rival.

Chicago.—Michael Sasko went to the mantelpiece as soon as he entered the boarding house one night recently. He picked up the letters he found there, scanned the addresses and laid them aside—all but one.

It was a letter from Minneapolis, addressed to Miss Georgianna Jorgensen. He studied it for a while, then put it with the others and went to his room on the third floor.

Miss Jorgensen came upstairs, reading the letter, which was written in Norwegian.

He stopped her and asked about the letter. There had been other letters he had demanded to see, letters from France. He had asked the girl to marry him. A dozen times he had asked. Each time she had refused him. He had believed there was a sweetheart overseas, but she had denied this. Now he was convinced that the other man lived in Minneapolis—for the envelope bore that postmark.

She would not tell him the name of the writer, turned away from him, went into her room. He dashed in after her, caught her in his arms, struggled with her, left her weeping, half kneeling on the floor, half lying across the bed.

Georgianna's roommate, Frieda Knutson, found her there.

"Lock the door," Georgianna said. "Keep that Mike out of here."

Frieda presently opened the door and went downstairs. As she passed Sasko's room she saw him rolling a cigarette. She had gone half way down the stairs when she heard a scream, then three quick shots.

As she started back upstairs there were two more shots.

Found the Girl Dead.
The police found Georgianna dead. She had been shot three times. Sasko

Shot Three Times.

had shot himself twice above the heart. They took him to the Passavant hospital, and there, after a few hours, he made a statement.

He had loved the girl ever since he first came to the boarding house, he said. There was another woman in the boarding house who was in love with him, whom he spurned.

She had told the authorities he was an alien enemy skilled in the making of bombs, and they had taken him into custody and questioned him concerning the fatal post office blast. But he had been released.

"Did you know Miss Jorgensen before she came to Chicago, when she was in Minneapolis?" a policeman asked him.

"Minneapolis!" he said. "That's where the letter came from."

"Yes," the policeman said. "It's from her sister, Frieda Paulson."

PUTS ONE OVER ON MEN

Minneapolis Woman Works as Farm
Hand in South Dakota, Deceiving
Employees.

Minneapolis.—A Minneapolis woman earned more than $400 masquerading as a man harvest hand in South Dakota last year, working with her husband. She disguised herself as a man to get the pay farmers were paying harvest hands. Her name is Edna Twaddle, although she does not seem to have been that kind of a woman at all. At the sixth place she worked she revealed her sex to the wife of the farmer and the two women had a bushel of fun at the expense of the men. When the day's work was over the men devoted some time to feats of strength and stunts. As Mrs. Twaddle in earlier years had been an acrobat on the vaudeville stage, she put on a show that distanced them all.

Sitting Up and Taking Notice

Uncle Sam: Some neighbor, by heck!

"What is this marvellous Canada, our next-door neighbor and good friend, that it can come into our markets, war times or peace times, and buy from us as no other nation, population unit for unit, begins to do."

To Keep the Moths Away

Suggestions by State Leader of Home Demonstration Agents

All clothes should be taken care of systematically, as their period of endurance depends entirely on how they are treated. Simple garments require less care than elaborate ones. Woolen clothes, suits, coats, dresses and skirts should be brushed regularly. Proper hangers should be obtained for all outside garments so that they will retain their shape, and they should be hung away from dust when not in use.

Moths have a special liking for wool, and woolen clothes should be carefully guarded during the spring and summer. Eternal vigilance is really the only successful method of protecting woolen garments from moths. If the garments are used from time to time and must hang in a closet or wardrobe, they will be kept in good condition if the following suggestions, prepared by Miss Lella Gaddis of Purdue university, state leader of home demonstration agents, are carried out:

1. Keep the closet or wardrobe clean.
 2. If possible, have a window in the closet.
 3. Brush clothes thoroughly at regular intervals.
 4. Turn pockets wrong side out and brush.
 5. Turn cuffs down and brush.
 6. Brush under lapels, plaits and the top of hats.
- Every one knows how much dust collects in crevices of clothing. If this dust is not allowed to remain, moths will not have a satisfactory lodging place.

Immense Arctic Icebergs Are Melted by Gulf Stream Waves

Many of the icebergs that float southward from the arctic regions rise five to six hundred feet above the surface of the water. Yet even this towering bulk is but a fraction of the entire mass of the iceberg, as the volume beneath the surface is said to be no less than seven times that above the level of the waves; and it is in this greater hidden mass that destruction begins to work the end of the mountainous volume of ice. The warm waters of the Gulf Stream bathe the sides of the iceberg, and as they continually waste it, gradually wear away its bulk. So well do the waves do their work, that even before the iceberg has had time to float far enough south for the rays of the sun to melt it from above, the insidious attack of the warm waters of the great ocean current have completely destroyed it.

Tennessee Boy Makes Good Profit in Pig Raising Game

There is profit in boys' pig clubs. A Tennessee boy, according to a government agricultural report, took out a membership in a pig club. He purchased a pig for $50. She farrowed seven pigs, part of which the boy sold for $133. With this money he purchased a boar of excellent breeding, which he exhibited at the East Tennessee Division fair, winning the grand championship of the breed over all exhibitors. He won $87 in prizes, $45 of it in competition with experienced farmers. His animals are now valued at $525. This, with the money from sales and prize winnings, amounts to $745, from which he deducts $157.65 for food and care, leaving a profit of $587.35.

What Historians Say About the Jury System as to the Facts Concerning Origin

Many writers of authority, according to Canon Stubbs, have maintained that the jury system is indigenous to England, some deriving it from Celtic tradition, based on the principles of Roman law, and adopted by Anglo-Saxons and Normans from the peoples they had conquered. Others have regarded it as a product of the legal genius of the Anglo-Saxon, of which Alfred is the mythical impersonation, or as derived by that nation from the customs of primitive Germany, or from their intercourse with the Danes. Nor, even when it is admitted that the system of recognition was introduced from Normandy, have legal writers agreed as to the source from which the Normans themselves derived it. One scholar maintains that it was brought by the Norsemen from Scandinavia; another that it was derived from the process of the canon law; another that it was developed on Gallic soil from Roman principles; another that it came from Asia through the crusades. The true answer seems to be that the forms of trial resembling the jury system are to be found in the primitive institutions of all nations.—Brooklyn Eagle.

"TO THE MEN OF AMERICA"

You talk of your breed of cattle
And plan for a higher strain,
You double the food of the pasture,
You heap up the measure of grain;
You draw on the credit of the nation,
To better the barn and the pen,
But what are you doing, my brothers,
To better the breed of men?
You boast of your Morgans and Herefords,
Of the worth of a calf or a colt,
And scoff at the scrub and the mongrel
As worthy a fool or a dolt;
You mention the points of your roaster,
With many a "wherefore" and "when,"
But, ah! are you conning, my brothers,
The worth of the children of men?
You talk of your roan-colored filly,
Your heifer, so shapely and sleek,
No place shall be filled in your stanchions
By stock that is unworthy or weak;
But what of the stock in your household?
Have they wandered beyond your ken?
Oh, what is revealed in the round-up
That brands the daughters of men?
And what of your boy? Have you measured
His needs for a growing year?
Does your mark as his sire, in his features,
Mean less than your brand on a steer?
Thoroughbred—that is your watchword
For stable and pasture and pen;
But what is your word for the home-stead?
Answer, you breeders of men.
—Rose Trumbull, Scottsdale, Ariz.

Grizzly Bear Never Eats Human Flesh; Not Ferocious—Fights When Necessary

The grizzly bear has been known to the white race a little more than a century. Lewis and Clark wrote the first official accounts of him in 1805, and he was first discussed publicly in 1814 by Gov. De Witt Clinton in New York city. Guthrie's old geography says that he was named Ursus horribilis by Naturalist George Ord in 1815. Fossil records indicate that the grizzly is of Asiatic origin. He appears to have come into America about a million years ago over one of the prehistoric land bridges that united Alaska and Asia. Bears and dogs are descendants from the same parent stock. The grizzly bear never eats human flesh, is not ferocious and fights only in self-defense. He leads an adventurous life, is a born explorer and ever has good wilderness manners—never makes attacks. The numerous cases in which the grizzly has been made a pet and companion of man, where he was thoughtfully, intelligently raised, show him to be a superior animal, dignified, intelligent, loyal and uniformly good-tempered.

Not a grizzly exists in any of the four national parks of California, and that animal, once so celebrated in that state, is extinct there. He is also extinct over the greater portion of the vast territory which he formerly occupied, and is verging on extermination.

Torres Strait Islanders Have Their Own Idea of Showing Respect to Dead

The natives of the Torres Strait islands have their own ideas about showing respect to the dead. One way is to anoint the body with half the contents of a bottle of cheap scented soap by the enterprising Orientals. The rest of the bottle is corked up and left on the grave. There is a tiny grave on Moa at the foot of which is a baby's feeding-bottle—the probable cause of the unfortunate infant's death. Though some of the larger islands have cemeteries, graves are scattered all over the place. Generally decorated with empty and inverted rum bottles, they are often found beside the corpse's late residence. Where the relatives have been more ambitious—or better off—a "proper marble" has been procured from Townsville or some other coastal town. The setting-up of one of these stones is the excuse for a general gorge. Such an event recently took place at Darnley, where a "proper stone" was erected over the grave of the late Mamoose—head man or king. The ceremony was followed by a three-days' gorge of pig, yams, turtle, etc., which was shaken down—and room made for more—by vigorous dancing and singing by all hands.

Family Food.
Cornmeal, if freshly ground with the germ left in it, is so much superior to the ordinary, long keeping cornmeal, that there is no comparison. In many up-to-date homes a small mill is used to grind wheat and corn when needed.

Corn Bread.
Take two cupfuls of cornmeal, two cupfuls of sour milk, two tablespoonfuls of shortening, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, two eggs, one teaspoonful of soda and one tablespoonful of cold water.

Veal and Cornmeal Scramble.
Cook a pound of veal until tender, then chop fine and return to the liquor, which should measure five cupfuls; add one pint of canned tomatoes, one chopped onion, one clove of garlic, chopped, twenty-four olives, chopped, one tablespoonful of chili powder, one chopped chili pepper, three teaspoonfuls of salt, one-quarter of a teaspoonful each of paprika and pepper; add gradually enough cornmeal (mixed with cold water to moisten) and cook until thoroughly cooked. Pour into a dish and when cold roll in flour and fry in fat.

Corn Pudding.
Take two cupfuls of canned corn (or fresh is better), one sweet pepper cut fine; scald three tablespoonfuls of fine cornmeal with one and one-half cupfuls of scalding milk and let stand until cold. Add the corn, pepper, and a beaten egg with a teaspoonful of salt and two tablespoonfuls of fat. Bake in a slow oven for an hour or more, stirring it the first half-hour a few times, then let it brown. Dried corn, softened, may be used in place of canned corn for this dish.

Language Employed in the Wording of Peace Treaties

The language employed in treaties is usually of the most formal character, but occasionally, when treaties are considered with eastern powers a more florid style is used. At any rate, according to a correspondent, a treaty between Great Britain and Persia begins: "Praise be to God the All-Perfect and All-Sufficient. These happy leaves are a nosegay plucked from the thornless garden of concord, and tied by the hands of the plenipotentiaries of the two great states in the form of a definite treaty in which the articles of friendship and amity are blended."

IT'S NO SECRET

Probably no man in America was ever better qualified to successfully treat the diseases peculiar to women than Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. The cases that come to him run into many thousands, giving him an experience that rarely comes to any one man. Dr. Pierce found that in nearly every case there were certain vegetable growths which rarely failed to give prompt relief in those feminine disorders from which so many women suffer. He combined these roots and herbs into a temperance medicine that he called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is sold in both liquid and tablet form by druggists everywhere. A weakly, sickly, backache, headache, nervous, despondent woman, with regular or irregular pains—with feminine disorders that come in youth or middle age—is pretty sure to find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the exact remedy that her condition calls for.
