BE AS BIG AS YOUR JOB.
The national war-labor conference is a thing of the past. But the spirit of enthusiasm manifested at its sessions must be a thing of the present and the future. It must be carried into every district and state by the district superintendents and state directors who attended the conference sessions. It must be transmitted to every agent of the employment service and every local agent of the public service reserve. Without it, we cannot put through the tremendous job given to the service—the recruiting of the great industrial army without which our valiant army and navy would be helpless. Red tape, a bureaucratic spirit, subservience to local interests, unwillingness to cooperate—these have no place in the United States employment service. The vision of every man and woman connected with the service and the reserves must be as big and broad as the task, and the vision must be made practical by its translation into the daily routine. We have a big job; let every one of us be big enough to do his or her part.

Things continue to break right for the small boy. A Maryland professor says the proper way to eat a meal is to eat your dessert first. Nowadays a boy merely eats his way through a lot of bread and meat and potatoes to his dessert. By putting the dessert out in front, he would attain his objective directly, and thousands of pounds of meat and wheat would be saved for the allies every month.

The semi-official Cologne Gazette tells its readers a food shortage that approaches a famine prevails in the United States. The amazement of German prisoners on being given white bread by their American captors would shake the whole of Prussia could the Teutons know the whole truth about America. But the kaiser will seek to keep facts away from them at any cost.

Never blow your wages for trash so long as you are homeless or there's a Liberty bond to buy

Times change. A short time ago only the rich boys could ever take a trip to France. Now all young men who are deserving, though poor, have an opportunity to go and they are made as much of as the sons of fortune. War hath its democracy no less renowned than peace.

The appeal to patriotic Germans to "go barefoot this summer and help the fatherland" may serve to remind patriotic Americans how little of severe sacrifice the war has as yet imposed on them. All the more reason why they should cheerfully bear the economies they have to exercise.

This Bank realizes that there are many farmers and ranchers in this community who have hay, sheds, water, pasture and sufficient shelter for the handling of a reasonable number of sheep and cattle.

We realize also that many of these men are unable to stock their ranches or to add to their stock holdings because of limited finances. We are ready to financially assist all ranchers and farmers who have the necessary equipment for raising cattle or sheep, and will make loans for this specific purpose.

If you are one of this class of men, we invite you to come to this Bank and take advantage of this offer.
