DECEMBER 26, 1901.

It is refreshing to read of the cold weather in other parts of the state, while Dupuyerites are basking in the sunshine and wishing it would get cold enough to warrant the arrival of fresh oysters.

THE recent meeting of a committee composed of capitalists and labor leaders to formulate some system of arbitration for disputes between the two great forces is a step in the right direction if accompanied by a true spirit of conciliation. Labor has been at the disadvantage of becoming a prey to demagogues, and it is time that its selection of representatives be made from men, earnest and experienced, who do not depend upon the misfortunes of others as a means of gaining a precarious existence. The professional agitator has no proper place among laboring men,—the sphere of action in his case should be the rock pile.

ANN ODELIA DIS DE BAR has finally run afoul of British justice and was sentenced last week to seven years' penal servitude, for immoral practices, while Jackson, her reputed husband, received a sentence of fifteen years. Their particular line was bogus spiritualism and the woman will be remembered through her experience with Luther Marsh a wealthy and superannuated New York lawyer, over whom she acquired a powerful influence several years ago, and induced to part with a great deal of property. The United States became a little warm for her but she seems to have leaped from the frying pan into the fire and to the advantage of humanity in general.

Ancient Horse Race.

A recent traveler in Eastern Arabia has revived a little of the ancient history of that part of the world, tracing back for many centuries the cause of bitter feeling between two tribes that were at war for 40 years, their relations being somewhat strained.

The explorer found that in 562 A. D. the sheik of one of the tribes made a foray on another tribe and as a ransom for the booty and captives taken he demanded and received a famous horse named Dahis. The extraordinary fleetness of Dahis was the boast of his new owner, and it was not long before a watch was made to race him against a Fezara mare belonging to another tribe and also noted for her fleetness. The wage was for 100 camels and the length of the course was about ten miles.

As the day fixed for the race approached the horses were kept without water, the plan being that the horse which first plunged its nose into the water trough 10 miles from the starting point should be declared the winner. The racers were to run riderless, and to make them gallop their best, maddening thirst was to take the place of whip and spur.

The superior strength of Dahis told over the yielding, sandy plain, and he was well ahead of his rival, the mare, which, though very fleet, had less staying power. The horse would undoubtedly have won the race if it had not been for a trick perpetrated by the tribe to whom the mare belonged. They had concealed a man in a hollow on the track over which the animals were racing with orders to check Dahis and throw him off his course. The trick succeeded and the mare was first at the watering trough.

The dishonest stratagem by which Dahis was defeated came to the knowledge of his owner. After vain efforts to adjust the difficulty the two tribes resorted to war and the feud has continued in mild form to the present day. The war lasted for 40 years, and the unpleasantness has been handed down from generation to generation, though long periods sometimes elapse in which there are no active hostilities.

Thought There Would be a Fight

Up in Clay county several years ago a Christmas frolic ended in a tragedy: Old Mrs. Philpott was a witness at the trial.

"Tell us all about the fight," said the lawyer.

"I never seed no fight," replied the old lady.

"Well, then, tell us what you did see," remarked the lawyer in a careless sort of way, taking her at her word.

Mrs. Philpott moved her sunbonnet back, lit her pipe and proceeded.

"Cy Sewell he give a Christmas dance, an' we and a whole lot of others was thar. The boys an' gals they got to dancin', as the boys went dancin' round an' round they got to slappin' each other, an' finally one boy he slapped another boy too hard—harder than he 'lowed to—an' knocked him down. An' the boy what got knocked down he jumped up an' jerked out a great big knife, 'bout long as your arm, an' whacked the fellow that knocked him down across the middle from side to side. An' then the brother of the fellow what got cut he pulled a British bulldog 'bout the size of a ham, an' he let go six 4's right squar at the fellow who had the knife—an' jest then Bill Smiley—Bill's cousin of Jake Hayes what got shot—come runnin' outen ole man Sewell's room with a double-barreled shotgun an' let off both barrels right into the crowd; an' ole man Sewell he got excited and jerked a Winchester outen from under the bed an' went to pumpin' lead into ther gang; an' by that time the house was full o' smoke an' flashin' an' hollerin, an' I seed thar was going to be a fight, so I left the house."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Good Cough Medicine.

(From the Gazette, Toowoomba, Australia.)

I find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an excellent medicine. I have been suffering from a severe cough for the last two months, and it has effected a cure. I have great pleasure in recommending it.—W. C. WOCKNER. This is the opinion of one of our oldest and most respected residents, and has been voluntarily given in good faith that others may try the remedy and be benefited, as was Mr. Wockner. This remedy is sold by Thos. B. Magee.

H. T. McIntyre, of St. Paul, Minn., who has been troubled with a disordered stomach, says, "Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets do me more good than anything I have ever taken." For sale by Thos. B. Magee.

COUGHS AND COLDS IN CHILDREN.

Recommendation of a well known Chicago Physician.

I use and prescribe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for almost all obstinate, constricted coughs, with direct results. I prescribe it to children of all ages. Am glad to recommend it to all in need and seeking relief from colds and coughs and bronchial affections. It is non-narcotic and safe in the hands of the most un-professional. A universal panacea for all mankind.—Mrs. MARY R. MELENDY, M. D., Ph. D., Chicago, Ill. This remedy is for sale by Thos. B. Magee.
