

JOHN P. BARRETT & Co., Publishers. JOHN P. BARRETT, Editor. HARTFORD, OHIO COUNTY, KY. WEDNESDAY, OCT. 20, 1875.

There are eight hundred convicts in the penitentiary at Frankfort. This is the largest number ever confined there at one time.

The Daily Globe is still pitching into the Kentucky State Lottery Swindle. Go for 'em LAURE. It's a pity that some Louisville journalist hadn't done this thing long ago.

ISAAC CALDWELL, of Louisville, one of the most profound lawyers of Kentucky, has consented to become a candidate for the United States Senate.

ALBERT FINK, late Superintendent Louisville & Nashville R. R., has accepted the position of United States Marshal in the Southern States. His duties are to decide and settle all disputes and troubles that may be caused.

SENATOR EDMUNDS has declined the offer of the U. S. Judgeship of the Second Judicial District, but expresses thanks for the honor conferred, and says his friends advise him to remain in the Senate.

THE Planters National Bank of Louisville, has surrendered its circulation and withdrawn its Government bonds with a view of going into liquidation. What has become of REIM?

HON. JOHN WATTS KEARNEY, of Louisville, is a candidate for Speaker of the House of Representatives in the next legislature. He is well and favorably known all over the State, and will no doubt make a strong race.

THE Evansville Journal, the leading Republican organ of Southern Indiana, has abandoned that party, and declares its intention to strike hands with the Democracy. We welcome this able auxiliary to our ranks.

THE Prohibition party of Massachusetts declared in convention that it was to the interest of their party to beat Mr. Rice, the Republican nominee for Governor. They selected J. J. BARBER to carry the prohibition banner.

A committee, composed equally of whites and blacks, of Coahoma County, Mississippi, have issued a circular invoking the aid of all good citizens in favor of peace, and to protect private property from incendiarism. It charges the colored Sheriff, BROWN, with having instigated all the recent trouble about Friar's Point. So another one of Governor AMES' little tricks plays out.

ILLINOIS people are at last beginning to wake up and enforce the laws and punish KUKLUX, BULLINER and BAKER, who murdered Captain SISKNEY last July, have been sentenced to imprisonment in the penitentiary at Joliet for twenty-five years each. The attorney for the prisoners asked the Court for a new trial, which was denied, and they will take the case to the Supreme Court on a bill of exceptions.

It is sometimes profitable to compare the "then and now," as for instance: In 1870, in all the States of the Union there were but 4 Democratic Governors—now there are 24; in 1870, there were but 4 Democratic legislatures—now there are 24; in 1870, there were but 90 members of the National House of Representatives—now there are 180; in 1870, there were but 12 members of the National Senate—now there are 28. If this isn't encouraging enough to Democrats, they must be awfully hard to encourage.

OHIO ELECTION. The election for State officers took place in Ohio on Tuesday of last week, and resulted in a triumph for the Republicans by a majority of nearly five thousand. The currency question was made the main issue, the Republicans favoring a return to specie payment and the Democrats advocating a greenback currency sufficient for the wants of the people. Every effort was made by each party to carry the day. If the currency question had been left out of the Democratic platform, ALLEN would have been re-elected almost beyond a doubt, and then his chances for Democratic nomination for President would have been good, but now they are blasted forever, as the New Era suggests a new horse will have to be brought out.

Iowa and Nebraska held State elections on the same day of the Ohio election, and both of them were carried by the Republicans, the former by thirty thousand, and the latter by ten thousand majority.

The Bank of California has resumed business, and seems to have regained the public confidence. There was no rush of anxious depositors to withdraw their funds; the only rush was for precedence by depositors eager to testify their faith in the institution and commit their gold to its guardianship. When the hour for closing had arrived $1,130,000 had been paid in on deposit, against $274,000 withdrawn, making an excess of deposits over withdrawals of $856,000.

COLONEL JOHN P. BARRETT. We always entertained a kindly feeling for Governor J. B. McCREARY ever since our acquaintance some seven years ago, and we have been the recipient of many favors from him, but he has recently taxed our stock of gratitude still more heavily by conferring upon us the honor of a position upon his staff with the rank of Colonel. We feel confident that we can discharge the duties of the office admirably in times of peace, and if the tug of war should come, why, of course, we will get sick and resign. The Major will please take notice that we have been promoted, and not call us Major any more. Friends, one and all, tip your beaver to Col. JOHN P. BARRETT.

THE St. Louis Times wants to know what has become of the "Independents." Did it look over the California election returns? If it did it has forgotten that the "Independent" candidate for Governor came within 2,264 of getting as many votes as the Republican nominee for the same office, and thus assuring the election of the Democratic candidate? Let the Times keep on its shirt. The "Independents" are doing very well, thank you.

A PLAYED OUT GAME. The efforts of the so-called Governor of Mississippi, ADELBERT AMES, to create armed collision between the whites and blacks of the State he has seized and holds as the captain of the free companies used to seize and hold towns and castles during the middle ages, and thereby give an excuse to the Federal authorities for the armed occupation of that State, have so far proved to be a costly waste—thanks to the blunder of GRANT in appointing an honest man as law-officer to the crown.

The affair at Clinton was a fiasco, and thereat troubles at Friar's Point, owing to the wisdom and forbearance of the whites, was equally barren of the coveted results. The trouble is AMES' little game is emphatically played-out. GRANT is not covinous of additional odium at present, as he is a candidate for another term in the Presidential office.

JULIUS WITOWSKI, a Polish Jew of Nashville, Tennessee, has presented and collected claims against the Government for work and material furnished the army during the war. The claims amounted in the aggregate to the sum of hundreds of thousands of dollars, and now they all turn out to be the basest forgeries, made out of the whole cloth. His claims were hurried up and engineered through by Gen. FEGLEY and other prominent men.

LETTER FROM AN EGYPTIAN. FRIEND MEHEMIT—I will continue the subject I was on in my last, and state that the religion of this country is called Christianity. This Christian religion is divided into about fifty different sects or denominations, all claiming a belief in Jesus Christ, the founder of the religion but all at loggerheads on the manner of worshipping him. The religious newspapers that I mentioned in my last have a great tendency to keep those senseless animosities alive. In fact this appears to be their whole aim and object. The Methodist organs proclaim the doctrine of that denomination with absolute certainty; while the Baptist lights as fiercely contend they are all wrong, and accuse the Methodist of confounding the meaning of certain passages to their own advantage; while the Roman Catholic organs assuming a superiority over all the rest, boldly accuse them of infidelity, and of being wanderers from the true fold, which they proudly proclaim "is no other than the Church of Rome."

Thus the common people are constantly kept in a state of fermentation by a few designing knaves, whose principal object is to make all the money they can out of their religious newspapers.

The priests and preachers of this same Christian religion exert a powerful influence over the domestic concerns of the Republic. There are some really good men belonging to those orders; but, on the other hand, there are some of the most unprincipled wretches that ever disgraced God's beautiful foot-stool. Only a few weeks since one of the brightest lights that adorned a certain church was before a court of justice, charged with a crime that I am ashamed to name; while, last week, one of the preachers where I am sojourning, thought it no disgrace to take a pugilistic encounter with one of the vulgar herd.

Those things are talked of in the community, but should be no criterion for us to judge the religion of the hearthen by. Another powerful agent in this country is the vast railroad monopolies that have sprung up imperceptibly over the people. At first a few insignificant companies of capitalists invested their capital in building and equipping railroads. So long as those continued separate corporations, they were a vast benefit to the community; but just as soon as one corporation got rich enough to buy out a weaker company, men began to see that those wealthy associations would, in the end, become powerful agents for good or evil.

Circumstances have determined the oppressive nature of these monopolies; and now, when some of those companies had nearly half of the public lands, granted to them by the Congress of the United States, the public are beginning to see that they themselves have created a power that will shortly lord it over them, in a more tyrannical manner than ever Eastern despot lorded it over the slaves that prostrated themselves at his feet.

There has arisen a mighty movement among the people to counteract the evils of railroads and other monopolies. Among the societies thus formed, the Grangers appear the most conspicuous. This society is altogether composed of the agricultural classes, having as their object the putting down of all kinds of monopolies—to create a greater themselves. As I understand it, the Grange wants everything its own way. They argue that the prices heretofore paid for agricultural produce was insufficient to pay the expense of labor performed in producing. Now they say, "We must have the making of our own prices, dictating at the same time the merchant must sell his goods for; to the mechanic, the price of his skill; to the laborer, the wages he is bound to receive or go idle. Never consulting any of those classes in this momentous question, but imagining that all must acquiesce because the powerful Grange has so commanded."

You see, friend Mehemit, that men are the same everywhere. Those that have been tyrannized over the worst, if the power ever changes to come to them, always becomes the greatest tyrants themselves, and the more exultant and fawning in their distress, the more arbitrary and tyrannical they become in their prosperity. Such, in my estimation, is the Grange of the United States; although in its infancy, it has become more dictatorial and arbitrary than its former masters ever could have been.

In my next I will continue the evils and good of society; until then, may your shadow grow no less.

ALI BEN HANAD. LETTER FROM CANEVILLE.

CANEVILLE, KY., Oct 18th. EDITOR HERALD.—Search of news, and as "Ali Ben Hanad" would say, our stock of personalities being limited, we have been absent from our reportorial duties two weeks; but, with pen in hand, we gladly chronicle the passing events of our little village. During the past two weeks but little of importance has occurred, except some deaths, among which was that of Richard Porter, an aged and respected gentleman, living about three miles from this place; being a widower, he was keeping house with his two youngest daughters and a son. It appears that on Tuesday night, the 12th inst., Mr. Porter got out of his bed without the knowledge of any of the family, this must have been between midnight and day, for so says his son: "I heard a pistol fire awhile before day, but not knowing my father to be absent from the house, I paid no attention to it, and on getting up next morning and going behind the house, I found him laying cold and dead." These are about the words he told the Jury on Wednesday morning. A pistol bullet had entered his right temple and lodged in his head; killing him, it is supposed, almost instantly. A small unloaded pistol lay by his side. Constable Carroll summoned a jury and the verdict was, "Come to his death by shooting himself with a pistol." The cause for this extraordinary case of suicide is unknown to any one, notwithstanding there are various opinions entertained as to the cause. Porter was in perfect good health, and no change was discernable in his manner the day before the act was perpetrated, and he always seemed to be a man of good sense. Some say it was a loss of money and property, and, as he was paying his addresses to a young lady at the time of his death, others say she refused to marry him was the cause, and other opinions too numerous to mention. He said a few days before his death that he had as soon be dead as alive. A number of relatives and friends mourn his loss.

Wilson Bro. have their new store completed, and have just laid in a fine supply of fall and winter goods, increasing the number of dry goods stores to four.

J. R. Bond, our gentlemanly express agent at this place, is just completing his new dwelling house in North-Caneville, and we don't not that ere long he will be enjoying the bliss of conjugal felicity.

It is surprising indeed to think the great and gifted (?) poet of the Grasson county Herald should find expression to his inspired thoughts, and speak thusly of our peaceful little village in the last number of the Herald: "It takes fire to light fire." "And I believe the wicked little burg of Caneville needs a little of the orthodox kind to kill the fire a few drinks of its burning fluid kindles in the stomach of the unfortunate wretch who lets his appetite get the better of his judgment, and indulges in more than one 'hora' of the abominable stuff." Besides this—"A God-forsaken mud hole." Speaking of mud holes, we merely suppose "Thomas" refers to the one in which he fell while here a few weeks ago, with the expression: "He, I—hie, I am—hie, I am so sick!" Of course he has a knowledge of our whisky and mud holes.

ROMEO PINNSTATE.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM CROMWELL.

CROMWELL, KY., Oct. 18. The people of Cromwell and vicinity were entertained on last Monday night by McGugly's varieties, which I am told are somewhat a success as an exhibition of his kind. It seems that in the terminal exercise the "Devil" made rather an obscure appearance, seized one of the showmen and bore him away in triumph, the latter crying out in distress, "I'm a gone 'possum gettemen, I'm a gone 'possum," which induced much laughter and applause. After the exhibition the families of town were serenaded with delightful music by the string band of the company.

On Tuesday morning we had the first killing frost of the season. No harm was done by it but a vast benefit, it is supposed, by reason of the wholesome atmosphere that follows, and the subsidence of chills and fever.

A great many people in town this week and I presume the mill here is receiving a good custom, from the quantity of grain that comes in.

Mrs. John Daniel, two daughters and son, and Miss Kahn, went to Louisville last week on a scholastic or literary mission.

A number of the citizens of this neighborhood were in attendance at the county fair, and all seem well pleased with the occasion, excepting the inclemency of the weather. Your reporter did not present himself on but one day and that he greatly enjoyed. He pronounced the scenes in the ring and the music well worth attention and the ladies—one lady especially—as deserving more.

Two of my young friends related on Sunday morning a most laughable experience in an opossum hunt the night before. To have heard how they crossed creeks, mud holes, mired down and got up; were scratched with brush, cut a tree on a dog, and conduct of dogs generally, and other circumstances, would have been hard on one with back-jaw or unsound ribs. The finale was that they had started home with nineteen 'possums in one hand and twenty in the other, but they somehow wore away the interest in the business, and it became tasteless; they released their smiling victims and came home without any game. Occasionally you may hear them say, "I wish all the 'possums were dead," or "Don't you ever forget them 'possums."

An excursion party, consisting principally of young ladies and gentlemen of Rockport, Ky., were in town Sunday. Their presence here was highly appreciated, and hope they may come again and often. But may I ask somebody if using the Sabbath as a day for excursions is not its abuse?

I took a stroll a few evenings since in the woods and around the farms, and was impressed with the rapid change going on in the fields and forest. The corn is now yellow and serene; the fodder, so lately green and waving, hangs or droops down in stillness, save now and then a rustling made by the soft autumn wind. The foliage is yellow, scarlet and crimson; some yet verdant, and altogether presents a pleasingly varied aspect. Many leaves are already fallen and "lie dark and dead." The trees will soon be bare, and their iron-gray branches stand out naked, bending and quivering through all the howling storms of winter. The scene and thoughts makes one melancholy.

N. ROWLEW.

News from All Points. B. H. Nichols, who was indicted by the Grand Jury of Boyle county for the murder of William Peach in January last, has been sentenced to be hanged on the 26th of November.

The cases in the St. Louis whisky frauds have been continued to the January term of the United States Court. The Glasgow Times has seen a male eighteen hands high, and is frightened at the supposed probability of a fall from his mongrel majesty's back. We advise friend Wood to hold fast to his ears, and, if he should mistake and get up wrong side foremost, to hold to his tail.

The Glasgow Times says it is almost impossible to collect the tax in that county. The Indiana demand $70,000 for the Black Hills. An altar for the new Cathedral in New York will cost $10,000. It is being constructed in Rome. In a Terre Haute street row a darkey drew a razor and cut an antagonists throat from ear to ear. Boss Tweed, the New York swindler, has been arrested on another suit, and bail fixed at $1,000,000. Westervel, one of the abductors of Charley Ross, has been sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary. The constitutional convention of North Carolina has adjourned, after a session of thirty-two days. Alexander H. Stephens is dangerously ill. Chicago is the largest grain market in the world, handling over 100,000,000 bushels annually, and has eighteen steam elevators costing collectively $5,000,000.
