Wives are presumptuous creatures. They are always asking for a look of their lovers' hair before marriage, and taking it without asking afterward.

Hay Fever

For twenty-five years I have been severely afflicted with Hay Fever. While I was suffering intensely I was induced, through Mr. Tichenor's testimony, to try Ely's Cream Balm. The effect was marvelous. It enabled me to perform my pastoral duties without the slightest inconvenience, and I have escaped a return attack. I pronounce Ely's Cream Balm a cure for Hay Fever.—Wm. T. Carr, Presbyterian Pastor, Elizabeth, N. J. Not a liquid nor a snuff.

Hay Fever. I have been a great sufferer from Hay Fever for 15 years. I read of the many wonderful cures by Ely's Cream Balm and thought I would try one more. In 15 minutes after one application I was wonderfully helped. Two weeks ago I commenced using it and now I feel entirely cured. It is the greatest discovery ever known or heard of.—WILLIAM CLARK, Farmer, Lee, Mass. Price 50 cents. 31 21

Our New Minister to Germany.

The Hon. John A. Kasson of Iowa.

Hon. John A. Kasson, who was lately appointed as Minister to Germany, was born at Burlington, Vt. January 11th, 1822. He acquired the rudiments of his education in the public schools of his neighborhood, and when twenty years of age graduated from the University of Vermont. Upon leaving this institution he determined to study law, and pursued a course of reading in Massachusetts; and after being admitted to practice he removed to St. Louis, where he engaged in his profession until 1837, when he settled in Des Moines, Iowa. In the following year he was elected State Director in the organization of the State Bank of Iowa, and in the next year State Commissioner to investigate and report on the condition of the Executive Department of Iowa. About this time he was elected Chairman of the Republican State Committee, and in 1849 he was both a Delegate to the Chicago Convention and the Representative of Iowa on the Platform Committee. Upon the inauguration of President Lincoln, Mr. Kasson was appointed First Assistant Postmaster-General, a position he occupied until the fall of 1862, when he resigned to accept a nomination for Congress, but in the ensuing election was defeated. In 1863 he was appointed United States Commissioner to the International Postal Congress, held in Paris. On his return he was elected a member of the Thirty-Eighth Congress, and at the close of that was chosen for the Thirty-ninth. In 1866 he visited Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Switzerland and Italy, as Commissioner of the Republican State Committee to negotiate postal connections, and succeeded in inducing all the Governments excepting that of France to sign the preliminary agreements. From 1868 to 1873 he served as a member of the General Assembly of Iowa, and was elected to the Forty-third and Forty-fourth Congresses.

Soon after his accession, President Hayes appointed Mr. Kasson United States Minister to Spain, on account of the stand he had publicly taken in Congress upon the subject of Spanish atrocities in Cuba, he declined the portfolio, and was then given that of the Austrian mission. Upon his retirement from service in Vienna, he returned home and was elected to the Forty-seventh Congress from his old district. He has ranked as one of the Republican leaders of the House, and his retirement from that body will be greatly regretted.

A Typical Southern Exposition.

The great Southern Exposition at Louisville is now in the midst of the last of preparation for the opening day, August 16th, and an army of workmen are busy upon the final details of the plan which will make the vast buildings and their surroundings marvels of grace and beauty, and fitting receptacles for the enormous treasures of art and human handicraft gathered from all sections of this continent.

The Exposition of last year was pronounced the largest and most attractive exhibit of machinery, merchandise, farm products, work of art and scientific research ever made in the west or south, and equalled only by the Centennial display at Philadelphia.

The season of 1884 is already assured to be decidedly an advance over that of 1883, while some of the attractions will be absolutely unique for all spectators. Coming as the Exposition does, in the height of the excursion and vacation period, it gives opportunity for all to leave behind them the cares of business and indulge in a few weeks visit to the beautiful metropolis of Kentucky, and yield themselves to the spell which the spirit of the nineteenth century progress shall cast over the grand temple of the Exposition.

In a condensed way the special features of the Southern Exposition of 1884, may be thus classified: A splendid horticultural exhibition, with growing plants, flowers and fruits, and illustrating temperate and tropical vegetation; a splendid display of fire works, produced at a cost of $200 per night; Bicycle races between the best riders in America; grand competitive military drills between the crack companies in the United States; Kentucky State Guard equipment, with drill and parades; elaborate displays from the departments of the general Government; beautiful array of foreign and domestic manufactured goods; an amphitheatre capable of seating 15,000 spectators; restaurants, refreshment stands, and every convenience for public comfort; the main building covering thirteen acres of ground, with a number of annexes in a park of fifty acres, containing one hundred and seventeen varieties of forest trees, and all a scene of continuous splendor; the largest and finest display of machinery in motion ever made; five proof art buildings containing the choicest pictures in America; two concerts each day by Capps's magnificent New York Seventh Regiment Band from the opening until September 23d, and from that time to the close, Gilmore's world famous band; grounds and buildings illuminated by thousands of electric lights; reduced passenger rates from all parts of the United States during the entire period; excursion rates, north, south, east and west, that will place it within the power of every one to visit the Great Exhibition of the New South, an immense live stock exhibition, presenting at one time in line over $1,000,000 worth of horses, comprising all the sires that have made Kentucky famous. The exhibit will surpass in extent the Royal Stock Show in London, and present to the visitor the grandest, completest, and most magnificent stock exhibit the world has ever witnessed, and a sight that can not be duplicated anywhere else.

Prentice Paragraphs.

July 23d, 1884.

Dry and dusty, dusty and dry.

The hum of the thrasher is heard in the immediate vicinity of Prentice, so I might say that wheat threshing, tobacco hoeing and politics are all the rage. Of course I can't take any part in politics till the women are allowed to vote and be President and ride with two straps, but I have a sweet heart that is certain to vote for Hooker and Felix, put that in your pipe and smoke it will you.

The health of the community is good, except a few cases of flux.

Mrs. J. B. Southard has been suffering for some time with remittent fever. Rev. E. V. Plipps, or the red fox of the ministers of God's word, interested us last Sunday with one of his characteristic hour and a quarter sermons of flat truth. He promises us two hours on the 4th Sunday in August. Let's all be there for he will interest us.

Miss Mary Rander, one of Hartford's belles, is visiting relatives in Prentice.

Miss Fannie Morehead, after a week's stay at her uncle's, W. T. Miller, of this place, returned to her home in thirty Carrollton last week, taking with her the best wishes of all she met. Come again please, your sunny smiles and winsome ways add greatly to our social circles.

Miss Josie B. Duke, one of Hartford's most charming young ladies, visited relatives here Sunday, and as usual, captivated some of our young gentlemen.

Miss Mollie Hoskins is visiting in Beaver Dam this week.

Since our place has become a town, I might rate the business arrivals, which are J. D. Kenley, Esq., of Morgantown, Dr. Hoover, of Beala, Mr. Cooper, of Beaver Dam.

R. C. Taylor, Esq., made a flying trip to Centertown Sunday.

Miss Rena, of Muhlenberg county, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. B. Southard, of this place.

Mr. E. T. Miller took in the commencement at South Carrollton last week.

I treated myself to a few hours at the cantalinas speaking the other day, and the most amusing thing was to see that noble and gray headed old soldier of the cross, who wants to be our county superintendent, but can't be, so enthusiastic on politics that he wanted to kick Mark Twain for saying that Washington couldn't lie, and he (Mark) could and wouldn't.

There is some very appropriate growing over the re-examination of common school teachers in these parts, and if there is anything in it except $25, to be sucked out of the common school teachers of Kentucky, I for one fail to see it, and would like to hear from some one on the subject, especially the common school teachers of Ohio county. More anon, BILLE.

Obituary.

Died, at his home in Breckinridge county, near the Ohio county line, at 4 o'clock A. M., Saturday, July 19th, 1884, of consumption of the bowels, Harrison C. Walker, in the 35th year of his age.

Cogar, as he was familiarly called, was born near Bardonia, Nelson county, Kentucky, July 23d, 1849.

March 11th, 1864, he came to Ohio county with his father's family and lived here since that time near Pattiesville and in Breckinridge county, a few miles northwest of Pattiesville.

December 20th, 1877, he married Miss Maria L. Combs, daughter of the venerable Burton Combs, living near Pattiesville, in this county, and now in the 82d year of his age.

On Sunday morning, the 20th inst., his remains were taken to the Golsbey graveyard, on the adjoining farm of his father, Elias Walker, where after religious services, they were laid in the grave. He leaves a wife and three little children, the youngest an infant three months old.

Mr. Walker was a man that belonged to no society of organization, took but little or no interest in public affairs, was a good neighbor, an honest and industrious man. His remains were followed to their last resting place by one of the largest funeral corteges ever known in this community. Friends.

Died, at his residence in Fordsville, at 5:30 A. M., Monday, July 21st, 1884, of cerebral pneumonia, John H. Jones, in the 62d year of his age.

Mr. Jones was born near Franklin, Tennessee, November 7th, 1822.

In the year 1826, he came to Shelby county, Kentucky, he being at that time but four years old.

At the age of 17 years he joined the Baptist church at Salem, near his home in Shelby county, and has been a member of the Baptist church nearly 45 years.

He was married January 15th, 1848, to Miss America Gray.

He leaves a wife and three children, one son and two daughters, viz: William R. Jones, living near Fordsville; Mrs. Mattie Smith, wife of N. B. Smith, living near Fordville; Mrs. Nancy Wedding, wife of Dr. T. J. Wedding, of Reine, this county.

March 12th, 1859, he moved to his farm in Fordsville, where he resided till his death.

On the morning of the 23d, the funeral sermon was preached at the graveyard on his farm by Rev. Charles B. Phillips, from the following text he had selected before his death: I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course. I have kept the faith: II Timothy, IV Chapter, 7th verse.

After services his remains were laid by the side of his son and two daughters, who preceded him since he has lived on this farm.

Mr. Jones has been a member of Mt. Pleasant Baptist church from the time he came to Fordville, and was the moderator of this church till short time before his death. He was compelled to resign this office on account of bad health. He possessed all the qualities of a good man, and his demise was a great loss to the community that was fortunate enough to own him as a citizen. Friends.

Before Henry Watterson left the city he published the fact that the Exposition management had no idea of inviting either Blaine or Cleveland here to open the Exposition, and that reports to that effect were absurd. He goes off to the sea shore and upon the publication of the very rumor which he had declared false he takes occasion to shoot off his tongue in a very fresh and offensive manner.

His young man on the Courier Journal at once makes the matter the subject for a lecture, in which he undertakes to show that though the report published of the action of the Exposition Directory was not true, the Directory blundered, should acknowledge the blunder and repent. In other words, the directors are held responsible for the publication of a false report and are to be arraigned by the Courier-Journal upon a charge which that paper has declared without foundation.

This condition of affairs is made a pretext by Watterson to rush in print over his own signature, as if he represented every body, and other people could not express their sentiments on the subject without doing so through him.

It really seems impossible for Watterson to divest himself of the idea that he is Louisville, that he is Kentucky, that he is the South and that he is the Democratic party. This shows from forty pipe-drivers could not knock the conceit out of him, and we verily believe he will try to turn in his grave to see if the public are looking at him.

The fellow knew that Governor Knott would open the Exposition, having been present when the programme was discussed. But in order to secure the recognition and favor of Cleveland and to advertise himself, he becomes violent on sudden and telegraphs a foolish dispatch which he knows is based upon a false foundation. He seeks simply to benefit himself at the sacrifice of the Exposition, and upon premises which he admits were entirely without foundation in fact.

His young man, Major General R. W. Knott, having retired from the Exposition directory, in obedience to an impatient and overwhelming public sentiment, of course avails himself of the opportunity of gratifying his own spleen and revenge. The following card from the Exposition directory explains itself.

"The undersigned Directors of the Southern Exposition at Louisville, Ky., have read with surprise the card of Henry Watterson in this morning's Courier-Journal, in reference to Mr. Blaine and the opening exercises of the Exposition on August 16, in which he says: 'I have seen in the Courier-Journal a statement that the managers of the Exposition have invited Mr. Blaine to open the ceremonies of our great commercial and industrial enterprise.' We have never heard of Mr. Watterson's statement of facts is incorrect. The Governor of the State of Kentucky has been asked to formally open the Exposition. Mr. Blaine has been invited to be present on that or any other day during the continuance of the Exposition which will best suit his convenience. Similar requests have been sent to the President of the United States, Gov. Cleveland, Mr. Hendricks and Gen. Logan, and both as Directors of the Exposition and citizens of Kentucky, we stand obliged to welcome any or all these gentlemen whenever they may do us the honor to come."
