THE COWBOY KNOWS!

"HE LEADETH ME"

By S. K. PHILLIPS.

He leadeth me— Not always in the way I wish to go,

In sunshine and in gladness, no, ah! no— For then, you see,

I might be smitten by For darkness and for storm, for rain and snow,

That come too oft sometimes for some, you know, To beat them patiently.

He leadeth me— Not always by the waters calm—so calm

That not a whitecap lifts its frothy palm Above the sea,

Else I might recklessly Send out my ships to far off isles of haun,

And they go down, the ocean's lofty palm Their only misery.

He leadeth me— By stormy ways sometimes—off times, and yet Mistake all my paths, and do not forget, Or fail to see,

I bow my head with one— and sad regret That He should lead a thoughtless content,

And all for me—for me.

He leadeth me— As it doth please Him best—He knoweth best,

And down the right channels of the west I look and see,

That I shall have to suffer trustfully And every faithful wish and hope expressed—

Beyond the sunset sea.

TO MEET HER LOVER.

Forty years ago a girl fell into a bog iron ore pit.

The Body Was Petrified—The Joy of Her Aged Father, who Thought Her Worse Than Dead.

(Hilma Telegram.)

Mary Ann Grier disappeared from her father's home, two miles south of Wanatah, Ind., nearly forty years ago. A few days ago her body was recovered in an abandoned bog iron ore pit, with-out one vestige of change from the appearance it had shown in life. The last shred of clothing was long ago destroyed by the action of the water in which she had met her death, but the same chemicals which removed the garments pre-served the form. Not only is the contour of the form perfect as in life, but even the color has remained unchanged. The arms and shoulders are as white as marble, the hands are brown, and one of them still bears the stains of the ber-ries with which she was working the afternoon of her disappearance. The cheeks are slightly brown, but suffused with a ruddy flush which old settlers remember as one of the girl's chief charms, and, were it not for the unsight-ly cavities that once contained the eyes, that petrified face which has lain almost half a century in the soil would appear the peacefully sleeping figure of a healthy, handsome young woman.

When the body was found, the men who made the discovery fully believed it the remains of some woman who had died recently, and that she had been buried in the gravelly soil underlying the black muck of what had been a swamp. They at once notified the cor-oner, and pending his arrival called a crowd of persons gathered around the spot and viewed the body, which had been uncovered from the level almost to the hips. Some of those present called attention to the fact that the body could not have been placed there

A TOWN IN THE STREETS.

The Peculiar Situation a Survey of Hammondsport Discovers.

At the late spring election in Hammondsport, N. Y., J. Sheppard Smith, a leading grocer and a man of decided village, was elected president of the village. For years things had run pretty much as they pleased in the old wine town, but they did not suit the new president. The first act of his that caused the easy-going citizens to howl was to order sidewalks to be laid of uniform width and a street grade to be established by the running of lines based on coroners, called for in the original laying out of the village. The result of the running out of these lines was the discovery of a most astounding situation. Half of the build-ings in some parts of the town were found to be in the streets. One business block was sixteen feet over the line in one of the main streets, and some of the finest residences were great trespassers on the public thoroughfares. When asked what was to be done in this serious condition of affairs, President Smith's answer was that the only thing that was to be done, was to move the town back where it belonged, so that the improvements he had set out to bring about could be completed. Many whose buildings were in the streets laughed at the idea, but President Smith was in earnest, and said he would go ahead and build his sidewalks and lay out his grade if he had to go right through the obstructing buildings.

This led to a consultation, and pending a settlement of the grave difficulty the improvements that ran up against trespassing buildings have been postponed.

It is thought that the difficulty will be arranged by an agreement on a new uniform line grade, so that the streets may be moved out of the way of the town, instead of the town being moved back out of the streets.

Another Little Girl.

SPRING LICK, KY.

KIND EDITORS.—Here comes another Kentucky girl knocking for admittance into your happy band. I am a little girl 13 years old. I have five brothers and one sister. My oldest brother is named Alva. He is in Arkansas. I have one brother married that has two little children. Their names are Tarrence and Mand. I think very much of them. I have two pet lambs; their names are Nannie and Luber. I would love to hear from my cousins again.

They write such nice letters. I paid them a visit not long since. I enjoyed myself very much when I was there.

I think that the history class would be very nice in the children's department.

I will ask some questions: What Indian chief was the father of Pocahontas, and who did she marry? What year was long known as the starving time? I have two aunts living in Calhoun and one cousin in Hartford. I would love to visit them some time in the future.

Now I hope the kind editors will think this worthy of being printed for

I want my brother to see it who is in Arkansas. Perhaps I shall write again.

Adieu. MOLLIE L. LANDRUM.

One peculiarity of the principal dances of savage nations is that in nearly every instance they imitate the movement of animals. This is evidenced in the bu-falo and bear dances of the North American Indians, the bear dance of the Kamchatkans and the kangaroo dance of the aboriginal Australians.

Shot at Essie Davis.

A now notorious woman known as "Essie Davis," once one of the most beautiful girls of Western Kentucky, is in trouble again in St. Louis. She had been for a year or two until recently in a Catholic home for fallen women in Michigan, accompanied by her two beautiful children born in wedlock, but has returned, as she had many times be-fore, to her sinful ways. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat says:

"Goldie Leroy and Essie Davis, inmates of a respectable house on Chestnut street, got into a fight yesterday morning about 4:30 o'clock. It resulted in the Leroy girl firing to her room, securing a revolver and firing two shots. One shot was directed at the Davis woman, and the other at the keeper of the house, who attempted to officiate as peace-maker. Neither of the shots took effect. Goldie Leroy was arrested and is charged on a warrant with assault to kill."

Catarrh, neuralgia, rheumatism and most diseases originate from impure blood. Urinate it, improve it, purify it with De Witt's Sarsaparilla and health is restored, strength regained. Sold by Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro. 41 17

THE TUNNEL SEEMED LONG.

A Postal Clerk's Perilous Ride in the Stiffing Darkness.

A thrilling experience, although not ending fatally, was had by a railway mail clerk who acted as a distributor on a local train. He had a car to himself, and at one station in the Allegheny mountains had left his car for a minute or two to run forward to the engine, which was taking water. The water tank was directly west of the great tunnel, and when the tender was filled and the train started the clerk sprang for his car. The entrance to the car was on the side and a solitary handle was grasped whereby the clerk pulled himself up to the door. To his horror he found the door had been jared shut and could not be opened from the outside, and the second he discovered this fact the train shot into the tunnel. With a de-pression born of a terrible death-struggle he in the face the clerk hammered and kicked on the door and shrieked aloud for help, but the noise of the train drowned his cries, and with both hands grasping the handle, his feet on the iron step and his body glued to the side of the car, for fear of being dashed through the tunnel. As the tunnel is a mile long and the atmosphere therein is simply stifling, this luckless mail clerk's experience can be better imagined than described. When the train shot into daylight again the engineer looked back, as is the custom, to see if his train was following all right, and discovered the clerk in his harrowing position. Quickly stopping his engine the engineer ran back, and with the assistance of the conductor, helped the almost demented man to the ground, where he utterly collapsed, the strain upon his nerves being too great. For six months he was under a physician's care, and after he had become a well man again, said, "I thought that tunnel was ten miles long, and my head, I imagined was hollow, with the dense smoke rushing in my mouth and nostrils and coming out at my ears like steam pipes. Whenever I think of that ride my brain reels and I feel myself crouching as I did upon the outside of the car during that horrible experience."

Infancy to Old Age.

Nothing is more remarkable than the fact that a medicine which is powerful enough to cure the most horrible form of blood poisoning can be given with impunity to a little child that is ailing; and yet this is the record of Swit's Specific (S. S. S.). It is a germ destroyer, a purifier, a great remedial agent; it is powerful, and yet harmless; it is a medicine that contains no mineral poisons; and its results are beneficent; it is com-pounded from nature's own laboratory, and works on nature's lines to cure dis-ease; it restores, revives and reinvigoriates the system; it may be used as a tonic by the most delicate women; it may be given to build up the constitution of a little child, or it may be employed to restore to health the unhappy victim of blood poisoning. In each case it will work wonderful results.

And Jennie Bushed. [Exchange.]

Old Gentleman—"Where is that book called 'Don't'?" Any one know?"

Bobby—"I think it is in the parlor. You were reading it last night to Mr. Spoonyard, weren't you, Jennie?"

Jennie—"Why, no, Bobby. What makes you think so?"

Bobby—"Cause I heard you saying 'Don't' a good many times."

ROWAN HOLBROOK, Ch'm'n. B. D. RINGO, Sec'y.

Obituary.

Died, June 8, 1891, Cecil D., the little 3 year old son of J. T. and Mizellar Stevens.

Of great power, no sooner blown but blasted—So, all his powers, falling timorously; Yet can I not persuade me thou art dead,

Or that thy beauties lie in wormy bed. Could heaven, for pity, thee so strictly doom? Oh, no, for something in thy face did shine Above mortality that showed how vast divine. Then, thou, the parents of so sweet a child,

Your false imagined loss cease to lament. And wisely learn to curb thy sorrows wild:

Think what a present thou to God hast sent, And render thanks with patience that He sent.
