FINE SHOWING

Made by the Illinois Central Railroad—Philosophy of the Athenian.

It was an Athenian who reduced the philosophy of happiness to two rules of action: Take much from life, and give largely to the living. And in the centuries that have passed since Pericles exemplified his precepts in his own life, the world has progressed but little beyond the ethical law upon which he insisted. The terms have changed, but reduced to its ultimate intention, the dogma of almost every school of moral science from his day until now is fairly stated in these words.

Judged by this standard of happiness, the year closing on June 30, 1904, was an exceptionally happy one for the Illinois Central Railroad, for during that year it increased materially both its gross receipts and its expenses. The fact that the current expenses of the road increased more than its gross receipts, ought not, perhaps, to be regarded by the pessimist. The road has, at least, felt the joy of disbursing munificently. It has been a medium of enlarged and wonderful activity, carrying more of the commerce and travel of the nation than ever before. It has, at the same time, cost the road more to carry its business than before, and the ratio of increased cost has outstripped the ratio of increase in the gross income.

Stated in the more exact language of the figures of the report of the directors of the road for the year referred to, it shows that the increase in gross receipts from traffic amounts to $1,645,039.04, while the increase in expenses of operation foot up $2,357,367.96. The reasons assigned for this disproportionate increase in operating expenses are: The prolonged cold season of the past winter, the increased cost of fuel and the increased wage scale of operatives. In the latter item alone the increase is shown to have been $2,400,499.25.

There is food for reflection in this latter statement. It is sometimes bitterly complained by the working force that there is an unfair division with them of the profits of the gigantic industrial enterprises which transact the business of this Twentieth Century world. If there is reasonable foundation for such a charge, it certainly is not to be found in the fact that the largest item of increase in the expenses of this road for the year is in the wages paid to its operatives.

That the Illinois Central Railroad should show such a result at the end of its year's business, is not matter for wonder. It would be if the result were otherwise. The road is an integral part of the commercial and industrial development of the United States, and necessarily reflects prevailing conditions. The facts shown in the statement referred to indicate how closely identified are the best interests of labor and capital, and how impossible it is for the one to prosper or suffer without involving the other.

As the great commercial artery along which pulses the interchange of business north and south, the Illinois Central is of special interest to both sections. As the chief of the many lines of railway centering in Memphis and discharging their swelling tides of commerce through her gates, the road is of special interest to Memphis. And hence it is with more than ordinary gratification that Memphis unites with the rest of the busy world of commerce, north and south, in felicitating this enterprising line upon the splendid showing made. The Illinois Central has been an enlarged distributor of wealth during the past year. So much is evidenced by the annual statement. And in that respect, at least, it is to be congratulated upon having fulfilled what Pericles denominated the law of happiness. It has taken with a larger grasp of the business of the world, and dispensed with broader palm the result of its winnings.

Leach line, thence West about 500 yards to a white oak, J. F. Beck's corner, thence North about 350 yards to a chestnut near B. H. His Remains. A caller stopped at the house of John Duncan Brice and asked if he was at home. "Dead, an' he's not." "Can you tell me where he is?" "I could not." "When did you see him last?" "At his funeral." "And who buried him?" "His remains," said the widow as she closed the door.

THE NEW MAN ON HORSEBACK.

Origin and Author of the Expression, "If the Court Knows Herself," &c.

The man who originated the expression, "If the court knows herself, and she thinks she do," was a Pike County Missouri man named Blackburn. Blackburn ran away from home when he was a boy and went to the Rocky Mountains, where he grew to manhood as an Indian fighter, hunter, trapper and mountain guide. He became six feet tall, very thin and remarkably awkward. Although not an educated man, he was not lacking in keen wit and sound sense.

When gold was discovered Blackburn went to the mines, and the miners, as a sort of joke, elected him alcalde—a sort of mayor and justice of the peace in one. The first case brought before the alcalde was that of a gambler who, while drunk, had ridden his horse over a young Mexican woman. The horse had knocked her down and seriously injured her.

The trial took place in the largest cabin in the neighborhood, which was packed with roughly dressed, heavily bearded men. The gambler, who was rich, hired able counsel to defend him. Alcade Blackburn called the young woman to the witness stand. She told her story in broken English, but frankly and honestly. When she had finished, the alcalde ran his hand through his hair until it stood up straighter than ever and remarked: "If this court knows herself, and I think she do, I fine you five hundred dollars damages and assess upon you the cost of putting this yere gal in good condition."

When asked what he meant by "good condition," he replied that the "gambling chap" must pay the doctor's bills and all other costs of the woman's illness. A more learned judge might have made a more formal ruling, but hardly a more righteous one.

Knew His Mother Tongue. Several years ago W. Bourke Cockran found himself in need of a new office boy. The lawyer's secretary was left to make a selection from the horde of applicants. His choice was a bright young lad of fourteen or fifteen, who was sent in to have an interview with Cockran.

After a number of questions, which the boy answered successfully, the lawyer inquired: "Are you well acquainted with your mother tongue?" "Yes, sir," the lad replied. "Can you mudder jaws me most every night?"

Saved His Life. J. W. Davenport, Wingo, Ky., writes, June 14, 1902: "I want to tell you I believe Ballard's Snow Liment saved my life. I was under the treatment of two doctors, and they told me one of my lungs was entirely gone, and the other badly affected. I also had a lump in my side. I don't think that I could have lived over two months longer. I was induced by a friend to try Ballard's Snow Liment. The first application gave me great relief; two fifty-cent bottles cured me sound and well. It is a wonderful medicine and I recommend it to suffering humanity." 25c, 50c, and $1.00. Sold by J. H. Williams, Hartford, Ky.

The Very Latest. "I hear Roosevelt got a letter from the Black Hand," said a guard on the newspaper train that leaves Park Place Elevated Station at 3:06 a. m., to a newspaper man. "Indeed?" replied the newspaper man. "I hadn't heard of it."

"It was a note from Booker T. Washington, I believe," replied the guard, without changing a muscle of his face.

WATSON'S WORK. REPUBLICAN MONEY BACK OF THE POPULIST CAMPAIGN?

Though Thomas E. Watson in his speech accepting the Populist nomination for President at Cooper Union, New York, on August 18, said that Roosevelt "stands for those governmental principles which, in my judgment, are hurrying the Republic into a sordid despotism of wealth," the full speech is being sent broadcast as a Republican document.

The New York World states that the Republicans are hoping by this means to estrange "the voters of the Bryan Democrats from the National Democratic ticket."

"A Populist campaign in this state," continues the World, "is to be made with a plentiful supply of funds, and a state organization, it is said. It is openly intimated that there are not a few Republicans who would subscribe liberally to the Populist cause, for the purpose of defeating Bryan votes from Parker."

"In this connection it is announced that Thomas E. Watson is to deliver forty speeches in doubtful states, and strangely enough, at the precise points where they might be expected to do most harm to the Democratic ticket. Mr. Watson has been in frequent consultation with a number of men here about his plans. Some of these men were formerly closely identified with Bryan."

In connection with the efforts of Populists to aid Mr. Roosevelt, Democrats are citing this trenchant paragraph from Mr. Roosevelt's pamphlet on the campaign of 1896: "Thrift, industry, and business energy are qualities which are quite incomprehensible to the true Populist feeling. Payment of debt, like the suppression of riots, is abhorrent to the Populist mind. Such conduct strikes the Populist as immoral."

HEROISM AND LOVE OF COUNTRY. "The Government of the United States was organized solely for the people of the United States. While it was contemplated that this country should become a refuge for the oppressed of every land, who might wish to discharge the duties of our citizenship, and while we have always sympathized with the people of every nation in their struggles for self-government, the government was not created for a career of political or civilizing evangelization in foreign countries or among alien races. The most efficient work we can do in uplifting the people of other countries is by the presentation of a happy, prosperous, self-governing nation as an ideal to be emulated, a model to be followed. The general occupation of our citizens in the arts of peace, or the absence of large military armaments, tends to impair neither patriotism nor physical courage, and for the truth of this I refer the young men of to-day to the history of the Civil War. For fifty years, with the exception of the war with Mexico, this country had been at peace, with a standing army most of the time of less than ten thousand men. He who thinks that the nation had grown effeminate during that period should read the casualty rolls of the armies on either side at Shiloh, Antietam, Fredericksburg and Gettysburg, at Stone River and Chickamauga. I would be the last man to pluck a single laurel from the crown of any one of the military heroes to whom this country owes so much, but I insist that their most heroic deeds proceeded infinitely more from devotion to the country than from martial spirit." (From Judge Parker's speech of acceptance.)

PARKER AND ROOSEVELT. Word Picture by Senator Bailey. "On one side there is a man with his foot on the Constitution and a sword in his hand. On the other side is the Judge with his foot upon the sword and the Constitution in his hand." (Senator Bailey in Brooklyn speech.)

Disappointed in Coal. "Here's a man who predicts that the world will come to an end next December." "Are you well acquainted with your mother tongue?" "Yes, sir," the lad replied. "Can you mudder jaws me most every night?"

Our niece, who had Consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and to day she is perfectly well."
