

EIGHTY-EIGHT NEW LAWS NOW IN OPERATION

Major Part of Work of Last Legislature Became Effective Yesterday.

Frankfort, Ky., June 12. —The major part of the legislation of the 1922 General Assembly will go into effect tomorrow at the end of the constitutional ninety-day period.

Eighty-eight bills will become laws.

Fifty other measures, passed and approved, or passed over the Governor's veto, already are in effect, for they carried emergency clauses.

Of all the bills that are to go into effect probably two are now uppermost in the minds of the public—the Minor-Smith measure providing for a general Statewide registration July 10 and 11 and the Harris bill providing for the establishment of two new normal schools, one in Eastern and one in Western Kentucky.

Registration Law Under Fire

A suit in the Franklin Circuit Court to test the registration law is said to be imminent. The Republicans will claim, according to information obtained here, that the law is unconstitutional for the reason that it was not properly certified by the clerk after it had been passed over the veto of Gov. Edwin P. Morrow.

Heretofore registration in the rural districts has not been required. Under the new law every voter in the State will have to register. He or she will be asked various questions. The answers will be printed on the registration books for identification purposes. If one moves from one precinct to another he will be required to obtain a transfer slip from the County Clerk. The law provides also for the purging of registration books by precincts. In addition to the two days in July there will be a regular registration day sixty days prior to the November election.

Big Task On Both Parties

The registration law imposes a stupendous task on both the Democratic and Republican organizations. For some time past, both in Louisville and out in the State, political organizers have been hard at work in an attempt to register as many of their party as possible. State leaders are conferring every little while and are doing everything within their realm of possibility to get out a full registration.

A controversy was raging only last week between the State Board of Education and Judge E. C. O'Rear, of Frankfort, chairman of the commission appointed to locate the two normal schools. The dispute was due to a ruling made by Judge O'Rear relative to what places would be considered. The law carries an appropriation of $30,000 a year for two years for each school. Any community seeking one of the schools must donate $100,000 in land and property and must meet other requirements set forth in the measure.

Party Emblems Go

Among the other bills that became laws at the expiration of the ninety days are those which will abolish party emblems on ballots used in municipal elections in Louisville; eliminate grade crossings; require motor trucks to be equipped with mirrors; repeal of the Louisville housing law, the convict labor bill, the bill creating summer teacher training schools, the bathing suit bill and bills carrying appropriations for various benevolent institutions.

Senator W. A. Perry, of Louisville, president pro tem and Democratic leader, is the author of the party emblem bill. The rooster, the log cabin and other party emblems will be prohibited in municipal elections in Louisville. Voters will be required to vote separately for nominees or to vote for groups. Further, the order of the names will be changed every few ballots. In urging the passage of this measure, Mr. Perry declared that it would make the voters use their brains.

The State Highway Commission is empowered under Senate Bill 4 to order the elimination of grade crossings, the railroads to pay the cost.

Newspapers Now Manufacturers
In advocacy of his mirror measure, Senator Newton Bright of Eminence said that motorists in the rural districts found it very inconvenient to pass big trucks which hog the roads. His law will require that trucks be equipped with mirrors that drivers may see vehicles approaching from the rear.

A commission now is at work to draw up ordinances and codes to take the place of the Louisville housing law which expires tomorrow.

Newspapers and printing plants are defined as manufacturing establishments under another law. This means that such establishments will be exempt from all county and municipal taxation and subject only to the 40-cent State rate.

Employment of convicts in the building of roads will be prohibited by the Brock act. Their employment will be prohibited, in fact, in any place other than within the walls of a prison, in quarries surrounded by a stockade or on the grounds around the capitol. An argument in favor of this measure was the murder of Miss Lura Pecos, a Bell County school teacher, near a convict road camp on a Pine Mountain trail.

Teachers Institutes Abolished

The long-honored county teachers' institute, is a thing of the past as the result of the summer-teacher-training-school act, which goes into effect with the other bills outlined herein. The act appropriates $50,000 for these schools, but the money that necessarily was spent for the institutes will remain in the State Treasury and a saving will be effected. The training schools are now in operation.

Other bills appropriate $10,000 for the Home of the Incurables and $25,000 for the Kentucky School for the Blind. The blind school appropriation is to be paid in two annual installments of $12,500 each. The money will be used to erect buildings in which to store valuable copper plates of "point." The printing shop operated by the school supplies literature for the blind in various sections of the county.

One of the House bills that goes into effect will exempt women from the payment of the $1 poll tax.

The State Railroad Commission is given authority over intrastate traffic similar to the power that the Interstate Commerce Commission has over interstate traffic in one of the most important bills enacted. The commission will have certain powers over joint rail and water rates and will have power to suspend rates, pending a hearing. It will have power, further, to prevent rates discriminatory between various sections of the State.

Then, too, there is Representative C. A. Nelson's bathing suit bill. This act is for the "protection" of persons living near White Mills, Hardin County. It provides a fine of from $5 to $25 for persons who appear on the streets of unincorporated towns with no police protection and only in bathing suits.

FIFTY DIE, SCORES HURT AS HURRICANE SWEEPS EAST

Property Loss Totals Millions; Toll Heavy Among Pleasure Seekers.

New York, June 11. —Wind of hurricane velocity, the onrider of a torrential rainstorm that swept from the eastern edge of New Jersey across this city and over Westchester County this afternoon, was responsible for at least fifty deaths, hundreds of minor accidents, large destruction of property and a reign of panic at traffic terminals and pleasure resorts.

The most numerous fatalities were drownings off City Island of men, women and children in rowboats. Eight bodies had been recovered at 10 o'clock tonight and thirty persons were not accounted for.

The dead calm of the late afternoon following a day of scorching heat had driven millions to seek relief anywhere it promised to be cool. The number of those in rowboats off the Westchester shore at City Island and thereabout was established at 15,000. The gale came out of an almost clear sky and reaching shore before it struck was hopeless for most of those in the boats.

Ferris Wheel Blown Into Sound
A ferris wheel at Clason's Point Park in the Bronx was blown into Long Island Sound, causing deaths of five and serious injury to thirty-five persons.

A tree was blown over on the brick chimney of Red Lion Inn on the Boston Post Road and the chimney fell through the roof of the main restaurant killing two persons.

Drivers of motor cars were caught under falling trees, one woman dying in such an accident near Hackensack.

Broken glass, blown from big windows in this city, injured several persons.

Twenty thousand holiday makers trekked to the island yesterday and went out in the waters of Pelham Bay. It was jammed with boats of every description when the storm hit it. Few had opportunity to get ashore.

15,000 Fishing In Danger

The known casualties occurred off Execution Light, which is about six miles east of City Island; Rat Island, about three miles east, and Fire Island, about two miles north. It is estimated by Lieut. Joseph Reilly of the City Island detectives that no fewer than 15,000 persons were fishing off those places when the storm broke.

After it had passed and the sky had cleared, the waters of Pelham Bay and Long Island Sound were dotted with overturned rowboats, launches, canoes and yachts.

The police immediately started the work of rescue. At 9 o'clock tonight eight bodies had been recovered.

Following the tragedy City Island became a scene of pandemonium. Many of the men who had gone out to fish, had left their wives and children there to picnic. As soon as knowledge of the drownings became general, and heads of families, sons and in some instances even daughters, failed to return, the survivors became hysterical, and it was necessary for the police to restrain them.

Communication Is Cut

All communication by telephone with the island was cut off by the razing of wires and telephone poles, and this hampered the police. They improvised a morgue in one of the bathing pavilions and as rapidly as the bodies were recovered they were brought there for identification by relatives and friends.

Eighty persons, mostly women, were thrown into a panic when they were caught in the middle of the Hudson River aboard a launch that was used as a ferry boat between Interstate Park and the foot of One Hundred and Fifty-eight Street.

The storm struck when the boat was in midstream. A small rowboat, carried on top of the pilot house as a lifeboat, was torn loose and blown down on twenty people standing on top of the cabin. Most of them received minor injuries, but refused to be treated.
