EDUCATIONAL COLUMN.

Edited and Conducted by
J. F. LANGENBAUGH.

Lazy Folks.

"Poverty is no disgrace," is an old saying, time worn and honored, and some witty poor fellow has added, "but it is very inconvenient." Yet I am disposed to consider poverty a disgrace when it proceeds from laziness or shiftlessness. And if you are spoiling for an argument, just make an estimate of all the instances of poverty of which you have knowledge, and if you don't tell me that nine out of every ten cases of poverty are directly traceable to either laziness or shiftlessness, I shall feel disposed to send you my compliments. Besides being inconvenient to be lazy is a sin. A sin to eat the bread of idleness, for somebody must work for all that is eaten, and he who does not earn the food he eats, must eat what another earns, and that is cheating, and cheating is a sin. A common excuse of the lazy person is that he or she has no chance to do anything. No chance! Look about you and see the work constantly waiting to be done! When I hear a man complaining that business is dull, and he can't get anything to do, I always set him down in the book of my remembrance as a lazy, shiftless fellow, who will drift through the world dependent upon anybody and everybody who may give him a lift on the way, without doing any good himself, or helping any one else to do any. But I wouldn't like to stand in the lazy man's (or woman's) either) place when the day of final reckoning comes, for I should expect to be sent to work that would make me sweat, when I had confessed that I had been lazy all my life time. Haven't we the Divine command, "Whatsoever thy hands find to do, do it with all thy might." And wouldn't it be a poor excuse to render the Creator, when asked if we had obeyed this command, that we couldn't find anything to do? Go to work, and let it not be said of you that, having health and strength, you were an idler in the vineyard.

LET YOUR WIFE KNOW YOUR CIRCUMSTANCES.

It is a custom too common with the men of the world to keep their families in utter ignorance of the situation of their business. The wife knows nothing—has not even an inkling of the amount of her husband's fortune, whether it is to be counted by hundreds or thousands. What can a woman, kept in such ignorance learn? She spends, as a matter of course, all he gives her to spend, with the full confidence that when that is gone, and she asks for it he will give her more. If an unmarried woman works, she may go with a bold unblushing face and demand her wages; but a wife can demand nothing, her claim is for bare necessity; and generous men, on that account are often too indulgent, too fearful of letting a wife know the exact state of their finances. "Tis all wrong.

HUSBAND AND WIFE HAVE A MUTUAL INTEREST.

every woman should know the exact state of her husband's finances, understand his plans, and aid him if possible with her counsels, and then the terrible woman catastrophes would not so often happen. Many a wife who is plunging her husband deeper into debt from ignorance, would, if she knew his embarrassments, be the first to retrench, the first to save, and with womanly sympathy and generosity, help him to retrace his failing fortunes.

THE DEVOTION OF WOMAN.

I can pass by the tomb of a man with somewhat of a calm indifference; but when I survey the grave of a female, a sigh involuntarily escapes me. With the holy name of woman, I associate every soft, tender, and delicate affection. I think of her as the young and bashful virgin, with eyes sparkling, and cheeks crimsoned with each impassioned feeling of the heart; as the kind and affectionate wife, absorbed in the exercise of domestic duties; as the chaste and virtuous matron, tired with the follies of the world, and preparing to the grave into which she must soon descend. Oh! there is something in contemplating the character of a woman that raises the soul far above the vulgar level of society. She is formed to adorn and humanize mankind, to lighten his cares and strew his path with flowers. In the hour of distress she is the rock on which he leans for support, and when fate calls him from existence her tears bedew his grave. Can I look down upon her grave with emotion? Man has always justice done to his memory, woman never. The pages of history are open to one, but the meek and unobtrusive excellence of the other sleep unnoticed in the grave. In her may have shone the genius of a poet, with the virtues of a saint. She too, may have passed unheeded along the sterile pathway of her existence, and felt for others as I now feel for her.

WISE SAYINGS.

Those friends who are full of devotion when we need nothing, remind us of those pine-trees which offer us shade in winter. Celebrities are always surrounded by nobodies; those who like to show themselves draw near to those who are most observed.

Modesty conceals our faults, and keeps our talents from being envied, as a blouse hides our shabby clothes, and saves our good ones.

The hypocrite often succeeds in persuading himself that he does possess those virtues which he affects, like the quack who, always puffing his ointment, ends by believing in it, and is rubbing himself with it.

Time which gnaws and diminishes all things else, augments and increases benefits, because a noble action of liberality, done to a man of reason, doth grow continually by his generously thinking of it and remembering it.

BORN AGAIN.

'Say Mr. Junius, is dar any place in de Bible whar a cullud pussen is mentioned?' said old Caesar to his friend. 'Well, dar is, an' if you'd been to meeting last Sunday ye'd heard de preacher read how Nigger Demus wanted to be born again.' 'Wh' wh-what did he want to be born again for?' 'I dunno, I 'spee he thought he might be born a white man next time, an' dar's a good many niggers alive now just like Demus, but dey'll always be niggers any how!

The late Hon. Anson Burlingame, while a student at the University of Michigan, wrote an essay on history, in which he expressed the opinion that "by close application a young man in one year's time can become acquainted with the principal events which have transpired since the creation of the world, and thus certainly make himself an ornament to society, and that therefore it seems strange that any individual will rather waste his time in perusing fiction, which only leaves him cause to regret."

"When I see leaves drop from the trees in the beginning of autumn," says Warwick, "just such, think I, is the friendship of the world. While the sap of maintenance lasts, my friends swarm in abundance; but in the winter of my need they leave me naked. He is a happy man who hath a true friend at his need; but he is more truly happy that hath no need of his friend."

Union Township Teacher's Institute.

Pursuant to previous adjournment, the teachers of Union township met at Marmont on Saturday, Feb. 21, 1874, and were called to order by Mr. Houghton. Mr. Langenbaugh, being present, was called to the chair. On taking the chair, Mr. Langenbaugh spoke a short time on the duties of teachers, and the benefits to be derived from institutes.

Music by choir.

On calling the roll, seven teachers were present.

On motion of Mr. Hill, Miss Belle Morris was appointed critic.

Mr. Hill was then called to read an essay on select reading; but he excused himself for not writing an essay, owing to other duties. He then read a selected piece, entitled "The Natural and Moral Worlds."

Miss E. Duddleson asked Mr. Hill to define reading. This called forth a short discussion between Mr. Langenbaugh and Mr. Shaw, on the definition of reading.

Miss Oneth was then called to read an essay on "Practical Arithmetic, from the Greatest Common Divisor to Percentage." Miss Oneth not present.

Physiology was the next subject in order, and was treated by Miss Belle Morris, in an essay, which was well written, in a scientific point of view. Mr. Shaw and Mr. Langenbaugh followed with some appropriate remarks on different methods of teaching physiology practically in our schools.

Music.

"The Teacher and his Mission," by Miss Mary Duddleson. This essay was written in a plain and practical manner, showing clearly the relation of teacher and pupil. Also their influence upon society. Messrs. Shaw, Houghton, Langenbaugh and Hill followed with remarks and advice to teachers.

Music; after which institute adjourned for one hour.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Music.

"The Beauties of Usefulness" was the subject assigned to Miss Cynthia McClrath. Not present.

Miss Gambrell was called to read an essay on "The Method of Teaching Children the Alphabet." Miss Gambrell not being present, the time was occupied by Miss E. Duddleson, and Messrs. Hill, Loring, Langenbaugh and Loudon, who advocated teaching the letters from their shape or form, and teaching the sounds of the letters at the same time.

"United States History," the next in order, was assigned to Mr. Loudon, who gave a short lecture on the necessity of understanding history; and recommended the use of history instead of the fifth and sixth readers in our schools. This opinion was favored by Messrs. Hill and Langenbaugh, and objected to by Mr. Shaw.

Music by the choir.

Miss Jane McClrath was then called to read an essay on "The Value of Education." Miss McClrath not present.

The subject of "Mental Arithmetic" was assigned to Miss Chew, who was called, and not being present Miss Rodgers was called, and read an essay on "The Utility of Spelling Schools." This essay was well delivered and spoke right to the point in opposing spelling schools. Mr. Shaw spoke in the affirmative, and Mr. Langenbaugh in the negative.

Miss E. Duddleson was then called, and read an essay on "Moral Training in Schools." The article was well written, and the short extracts which she made from the "Moral Law" was sufficient to prove that she understood the subject. Messrs. Shaw and Langenbaugh also spoke on the same subject.

Music.

Miss Charity Shaw then read an essay on "The Benefits of Declamation in Schools." It was well written and delivered. Messrs. Hill, Loring and Loudon speaking in its favor.

The following resolution was then read and adopted:

Resolved, That we, the teachers of Union township, believe that the talent of music is one among all others, that should be thoroughly cultivated, and to show our thorough appreciation of the manner in which the Marmont Choir have improved this talent, we hereby tender our earnest and sincere thanks to them for favoring us so often with an exhibition of their improvement of this talent.

The regular business now being finished, the Critic's report was called for and read. On motion the report was adopted without amendments.

On motion it was decided that the minutes of this institute be published in the county papers.

On motion a vote of thanks was given to the officers of Marmont, for the kindness and hospitality which they have extended to us.

Music.

Mr. Langenbaugh here paid a worthy tribute to the Choir for their favors.

A vote of thanks was then given to Mr. Langenbaugh for the kind and gentlemanly manner in which he presided over our meeting.

On motion the Institute then adjourned, sine die.

F. D. LOUDON,
Secretary.

BEEET-SUGAR.

Political Independence—Saccharine Servitude.

The sugar imported into the United States during last year, exceeded in declared value the amount exported by $80,079,037. Now for the last seven years France, Prussia and Austria have sent abroad no money for sugar, but have supplied themselves from beets. Their example is being rapidly followed by Russia, Holland, England, and even by Scandinavians. The United States brag that they are ahead of the times. Will they remain behind them as they clearly are, in the matter of sugar? If sugar beets thrive all over Europe, will they not do well in America? Experiments in beet sugar, as at Northampton, (Mass.) Fond du Lac and Black Hawk, (Wis.) have proved failures, but ten times as many unsuccessful trials abroad preceded final success, and Americans may learn by the errors of generations.

Three notable beet-sugar factories are now making full proof of an industry as yet new in America; one in Illinois and two in California. The Illinois establishment is in Freeport, those on the Pacific slope are in Sacramento and Alvarado. The two latter have been at work two years, the other only one. The smallest of them has a capacity for working fifty tons of beets daily, and a million and a half pounds of sugar were turned out last year in California. The prospects of all three establishments are good. Let them prove a success, and beet factories will multiply. The farmers of Nebraska will learn a new trick in dodging high freights. Among 40,000 immigrants already planted there, not a few of them attracted to the Burlington & Missouri River Railroad lands on the three Blues by ten years' credit, with nothing of principal payable for four years, many having raised beets for foreign factories, will know how to furnish their best and cheapest for Nebraska factories. The refuse pulp is every where worth for stock feeding, one-half as much as the original beets. European beet-sugar manufacture has all grown up in a generation. Nor is it unlikely that he who reads these lines may live to see Nebraska self-supplied with sugar from its own beet beds, and then that he may live a good while after that!

PROF. J. D. BUTLER.

LAPORTE ITEMS.

The Argus says, the local Granges in Laporte county have organized a County Council, with the following named gentlemen as officers: W. A. Banks, President; I. N. Whitehead, Recording Sec.; Jonathan Osborn, Cor. Sec.; B. S. Fall; Treasurer; B. Hollbeck, Steward; and D. Haskell, Gate Keeper. Next meeting to be held in Laporte, March 7th, at 1 o'clock, P. M.

Gen. Orr, President of Laporte Library and Natural History Association, has proposed to the citizens of Laporte, to purchase for and donate to the Association, a brick building and ground owned by the Presbyterian Church, at a cost not to exceed $4,000, for the use of the Association, provided the citizens will add to the building another room, and raise by subscription $6,000 to make improvements and add to the Library.

Hon. Andy Ellison and the Praying Women at Valparaiso.

A Valparaiso friend writes the TRIBUNE that Hon. Andy Ellison, a prominent Democratic politician of La Grange, this state, was over there on Tuesday, when the women's war on the rum-sellers had progressed to proclamation and counter proclamations. Out of curiosity Mr. Ellison, who occasionally "takes sugar in his'n," lounged down street to Ward's saloon where the women were engaged in singing and praying, and he watched the proceedings for some time with great interest. Directly a friend came along invited Ellison to step into Ward's and take a drink. "What! in there!" exclaimed Ellison "not for a thousand dollars." It was then suggested that a "snifter" could be had at a saloon around the corner. "Well, I'll alter-ed Ellison, "I don't believe I feel like drinking anything to-day, after hearing these women sing and pray."—South Bend Tribune.
