

NEWS OF WEST SIDE

Sid McGarvey is here again. His many friends are glad to see him back. Conductor James Walsh came home and spent the Sabbath with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodhiser came back from Omaha Saturday, where they had been taking in the fair.

Miss Florence Westerman of Wall Lake, was over and spent a day visiting among her little friends.

Our teachers are back from the Normal at Denison and report a large attendance and a very profitable time.

Rev. Schori held school a day or two late in the week and conducted services in the German Lutheran church Sunday.

The boys have been finishing up the race track and seem to enjoy the sport of flying round and seeing who is the best man.

The steam derrick in the east end of the yard is the great drawing card just now. Children will sit for hours and see it work.

The following are some of the people from a distance who attended the funeral of Mr. Wagner: W. N. Becker of Ashland, Neb.; W. Baader of Huron, Neb.; A. H. Bowen, Mrs. Florence Hope, Mrs. Jas. Ishell of Denison, Ia.

Two gentlemen enroute from Omaha to Des Moines passed through in a horseless carriage Monday morning. While they remained a big crowd gathered around the wagon asking all sorts of questions.

A horseless wagon, run by a small gas engine, was an attraction on our streets Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leady were among those from Denison that attended the picnic.

Miss Freida Larson returned to Des Moines last week after making her home with her sister, Mrs. Den. Olson, for a couple of years past.

Mr. C. Wagner died very suddenly Friday morning, and being an old settler and a friend of everybody, the whole community is in mourning over the sad affair.

Mr. Wagner was down town Thursday afternoon getting his mail and chatting with friends. Towards evening he went over to see his neighbor, Chas. Jones, and later ate a hearty supper after which he retired for the night.

At four o'clock in the morning he got up and retired again, a little later Mrs. Wagner rose to prepare the morning meal, leaving him as she supposed asleep.

When she called him for breakfast he did not respond and when she called him again she went and took hold of his person, then the awful fact dawned upon her that he was asleep in death.

The funeral services took place at the house Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. W. A. Richards of the M. E. church officiated.

All of his children and many of his grand children were present and followed the remains to its resting place.

Many friends and relatives from Carroll and this county, other parts of the state and other states were here to take a last look at him who as a friend and neighbor they had learned to honor and respect.
