LED BY THE BLIND.

A Timid Woman Conducted Across a Crowded Street by a Sightless Man.
"I saw a most remarkable occurrence on the street the other day," said a professional man, reports the Cleveland Plain Dealer, "and it made a deep impression on me. A lady came down Euclid avenue and stopped at the corner of Bond street. She evidently wanted to cross to the other side of the avenue. She was not a young woman and she did not look strong. There was quite a jam of vehicles in the street, motor cars, wagons and bicycles, and she seemed a little timid about risking the passage. As she hesitated a man came up Bond street and paused beside her. He was a well-dressed man and carried a heavy cane, which I noticed he used constantly as if he might be a little lame.
"Sir," said the lady to him, "can I ask you to offer me the protection of your arm in crossing the street?"
"She said this in a very sweet and ladylike way and the man with the cane touched his hat.
"Certainly, madam," he replied, and offered his arm. As they crossed the street I followed close behind them. The man with the cane was very careful. He halted several times, but they reached the other side without mishap. As the lady let go of his arm she said: "Thank you, sir, for your courtesy and protection."
"You are quite welcome, madam," he replied. "But I fear you overvalue my protection—because I am blind!"
"And touching his hat again he turned and picked his way up the crowded sidewalk."
LOUIS PHILIPPE IN EXILE.
When a Poor Duke He Wanted to Marry an American Girl, But Her Father Objected.
A merchant prince was a great man in old Philadelphia—a far greater man than the master of a little school, even though it were the most select in the city—even though the teacher were an exiled French gentleman of royal blood, duke of Orleans then, King Louis Philippe in after years.
The story of how the princely schoolmaster courted the charming Abigail, daughter of Thomas Willing, is related with new detail in a recent number of the Ladies' Home Journal. Dressed in his best, and probably, notwithstanding that he was a modest and sensible young man, little in fear of an unfavorable response, the exiled prince called on the American merchant and asked him for his daughter. There was, perhaps, more pride than humility in the answer he received:
"Sir, should you ever be restored to your hereditary position, you will be too great a match for my daughter; if not, she is too great a match for you."
So the poor schoolmaster went away disappointed, and, although only his "position" and the lady's appear to have been considered by the hard-hearted parent, it is probable that if Miss Abigail had not agreed with his opinion she would have made her influence felt. As it was, Louis Philippe married Princess Marie Amelie, daughter of the King of Naples, while Abigail Willing, of Philadelphia, who might have been queen of France, became plain Mrs. Richard Peters.
The sale of a tract of northern Minnesota pine land for $50,000 has been closed in Milwaukee. The purchaser was the Tower Loe and Railroad company, the deal being made through D. Wittenburg, Jr., of Cedarburg, secretary and treasurer, on behalf of the company. The property that changed hands consists of 30,000,000 feet of pine in St. Louis county, Minn., north of the western extremity of Lake Superior.
All of the 11 volunteer fire companies of Johnstown, Pa., turned out Wednesday night to battle with the worst fire in Johnstown's history. Within two hours the flames consumed $100,000 worth of property, on which there is an insurance estimated at between $25,000 and $30,000. The heaviest losers are the Herald Printing company, John H. Waters, the Johnstown supply house and the Cambridge County Medical society.
A sick and destitute man 55 years old was taken from a New York tenement house two weeks ago to the department for outdoor poor. He gave the name of Lawrence Schraeder and he was dying from want of nutritive food. Wednesday a letter addressed to Schraeder was brought to the superintendent of the institution. It contained a check for $100 and had been sent from England as Schraeder's long-delayed share in his father's estate. Schraeder, however, had died and the money arrived just in time to prevent his burial in the potter's field.

FORT HERKIMER CHURCH. (From a Photograph Taken Specially for New York Truth.)

as 1740, and three other stone buildings, one of which was the church still standing. The church was surrounded by an earthwork by Sir William Johnson in 1756.
This was a fortification of considerable pretensions both as to size and impregnability against the arms of those days. The other two buildings farther east were probably similar in their construction. Into these the inhabitants fled and found refuge when attacked, or before expected attacks by their foes. Such a course was followed in 1757, and the lives of many of the inhabitants were thereby saved, to witness the burning of some of their dwellings and their mills. The French commander showed discretion in not attacking the fort.
The Vitality of Snails.
The snail is blessed with great powers of vitality. A case is recorded of an Egyptian desert snail which came to life upon being immersed in warm water after having passed four years glued to a card in the English museum. Some species in the collection of a certain naturalist, revived after they had apparently been dead for 15 years; and snails, having been frozen for weeks in solid blocks of ice, have recovered upon being thawed out. The eggs are as hard to destroy as the snail itself. They seem perfectly indifferent to freezing, and have been known to prove productive after having been shriveled up in an oven to the semblance of grains of sand.
The Fall of a Hero.
Piper Findlater, the hero of "Dargal Ridge," who has been appearing in London music halls with his Victoria cross, has been offered $30 for the decoration by a Birmingham firm, with the advice to get rid of it at these terms and thus save himself and the order further degradation.
