

"He's Thoroughly Satisfied."

You can see it in his face and manner. WHY? because he bought a pair of SELZ SHOES, and they fit so well, and look so well, and are wearing so well, and cost so little, that he has every reason to be satisfied.

Won't you follow his example? Let us fit YOU with a pair of SELZ unrivaled shoes.

They are the finished product of twenty-seven years' experience in shoe building. Glad feet, Glad hearts, Glad pockets, attend them all the time.

These Shoes.

Are for sale at

"THE BOYS," Store,

where you will find a complete line of Men's, Women's and Children's Shoes and Over-shoes. They will be pleased to have you call on them, and they are Sure to Please You in Price and Quality.

PROFESSIONAL DIRECTORY.

ATTORNEYS.
J. P. CONNER,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
DENISON, IOWA.
Ex-District Judge. Office over the Crawford County State Bank.

P. E. O. LALLY,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
DENISON, IOWA.
Practices in all state courts. Collections and insurance a specialty. English and German spoken. Office over Haugh & Kemming's.

W. A. Goldschmidt. Wm. M. McLennan
GOLDSCHMIDT & MCLENNAN,
LAWYERS,
DENISON, IOWA.
Practice in all state courts. Collections and insurance a specialty. English and German spoken. Office over Haugh & Kemming's.

I. V. JACKSON,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
DENISON, IOWA.
Office in Lamb's Block over Sime Bros. Clothing House.

JAMES B. BARRETT,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
DENISON, IOWA.
Room 1, First National Bank Building.

PHYSICIANS
WM. ISEMINGER, M. D.,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
DENISON, IOWA.
Calls attended day or night. Office up stairs over Burk's drug store.

G. H. BOLLE, M. D.,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
DENISON, IOWA.
Homeopathic. Prompt response to professional calls. Office east of Wilson House.

W. W. HOLMES,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
DENISON, IOWA.
Office on Main Street.

ARTE FOLSON, M. D.,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
DENISON, IOWA.
Calls attended promptly. Office Gulick's new building, up stairs.

H. A. BOYLE, M. D.,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
DENISON, IOWA.
Office in Cassaday's drug store.

WM. T. WRIGHT, M. D.,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
DENISON, IOWA.
Office over Shaw & Kuehler's Bank. Rent secondhouse north of city hall.

DENTISTS.
J. O. ROBINSON, D. D. S.,
SURGEON DENTIST,
DENISON, IOWA.
From State University of Iowa, graduate from Northwestern University Dental College, Chicago, Ill. from State Board of Dental Examiners, Cincinnati, Ohio. Satisfaction guaranteed. Office over Burk's Drug store.

B. F. PHILBROOK,
RESIDENT DENTIST,
DENISON, IOWA.
High grade Dental Work. Teeth extracted without pain. Office over Bank of Denison. Entrance either on Broadway or Main St.

MISCELLANEOUS.
PENN MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE
ESTABLISHED 1847.
ALL FORMS OF LIFE INSURANCE

D. H. & H. E. RUMSEY, GENERAL AGENTS,
Des Moines, Iowa.
JOHN COBURN, Local Agent, Denison, Ia.

Time Table C. & N. W. R. R.
EAST BOUND.
No. 4, Chicago Special ..... 8:54 a. m.
No. 18, Carroll Passenger ..... 8:13 p. m.
No. 8, Atlantic Express ..... 2:16 p. m.
No. 2, Overland Limited (Don't stop) ..... 7:19 p. m.
No. 6, Chicago Express ..... 9:24 p. m.
No. 24, Freight to West Side ..... 3:12 p. m.

WEST BOUND.
No. 1, Overland Limited (don't stop) ..... 6:04 a. m.
No. 9, New Filer, M-I ..... 6:47 p. m.
No. 4, Pacific Express ..... 1:57 p. m.
No. 17, Co. Bluffs Passenger ..... 7:15 a. m.
No. 39, Freight to Co. Bluffs ..... 8:54 a. m.
No. 15, Fast Mail ..... 9:25 p. m.
No. 6, Colorado Special ..... 9:23 p. m.
No. 17, 18, 24 daily except Sunday.

C. M. & St. P. R. at Arion
TRAINS WEST.
No. 1, Passenger ..... 6:45 a. m.
No. 19, Way Freight ..... 9:00 a. m.
No. 3, Passenger ..... 9:22 p. m.
TRAINS EAST.
No. 2, Passenger ..... 12:30 p. m.
No. 4, Passenger ..... 7:15 p. m.
No. 9, Way Freight ..... 8:30 p. m.

Notice of Probate of Will.
STATE OF IOWA.
CRAWFORD COUNTY. In Probate.
In the District Court of Iowa, in and for Crawford County.
Notice of the reading and probate of Will.
To whom it may concern: You and each of you are hereby notified to appear at the court house in Denison, Crawford County, Iowa, on the 28th day of February 1899, at 10 o'clock, p. m., to then and there attend the probate of an instrument in writing purporting to be the last Will and Testament of Olof Larson, late of said county, deceased, at which time and place you will appear and show cause, if any you know, why said Will should not be admitted to probate.
In testimony whereof, I have hereunto subscribed my name and affixed the seal of the District Court this 24th day of January 1899.
(SEAL) EMIL KIRGEBER, Clerk.
7-3000

Dr. David Kennedy's
Favorite Remedy
CURES ALL KIDNEY, STOMACH AND LIVER TROUBLES.

JOSEPH V. QUARLES.

New United States Senator from Wisconsin is a Native of the State He Will Represent.

J. V. Quarles is a native of Wisconsin and was born at Southport, now known as Kenosha, on December 16, 1843. His father's family came originally from New Hampshire, and his father, Joseph V. Quarles, Sr., was a native of that state, but his mother was a native of New York.

Young Quarles pursued his studies in the public schools and the high schools of Kenosha, graduating from the latter when he was 17 years of age. The following two years were spent in teaching and earning money in other ways for the expenses of a college course, which he set his heart upon pursuing.

In 1862 he entered the University of Michigan as a freshman. He was conspicuous among his classmates from the start, and upon the organization of the class, was chosen its president and class orator for that year. He left his studies and enlisted in the Thirty-ninth regiment of Wisconsin infantry and was mustered into service as first lieutenant of company C. At the expiration of his service he returned to the university and graduated with the class of 1866, with the degree of A. B.

JOSEPH V. QUARLES.
(United States Senator-Elect from Wisconsin.)

He then entered the law department of that institution, spending a year therein. Having exhausted his financial resources, he returned to Kenosha and continued his law studies in the office of O. S. Head, a distinguished lawyer of those days, with whom, upon his admission to the bar in 1868, he formed a law partnership, the firm being Head & Quarles.

His ability and activity soon led to his being called outside to duties other than his profession. In 1876 he was elected mayor of Kenosha, and the two following years he was president of the Kenosha board of education. In 1879 he was a member of the legislative assembly, and in 1890 and 1891 he was the representative of Kenosha and Walworth counties in the state senate.

NEW CHECKER BOARD.
It Admits Two Men Playing Partners Against Two Others or "Going It Alone."

Many a man has sat near a checker board watching two contestants at work on a game, whose fingers have itched to make a move the players would not see. In fact, few games are played where outside advice is not plentiful for comfort. One man recently patented a device by means of which three players could play at the same board. Now a Chicago man comes to the front with a board which admits of four contestants. The Englewood board admits of two men playing partners against the other two or all "going it alone."

This four-handed checker board differs radically from the old style, or the three-handed board. The latter has sets of squares outside the old board so arranged that the players can invade each other's territory at will. The new board has a double row of squares outside the old with a central square or goal. These rectangular spaces or wings are designated A A A A by the designer, as is shown by the accompanying cut. The squares are arranged in parallel rows in alternate colors as in the old board. The black squares are indicated by D and the white by E. Looking at the squares obliquely it will be seen that black and white run in continuous rows. Inside the wings is a similar arrangement of black and white squares, which the inventor, Frank F. Gibford, calls the infield. Its squares run in right, left and oblique lines with the wings. King rows F and H are inside this and in the center is a goal which may be circular or decorated fancifully. The king rows are colored in tints differing from the ordinary checker squares, but serves much the same purpose. The game runs up to ten points in the goal, the player who makes this number first winning. The rules of the game are those of ordinary checkers, the object being to cut down the enemy while advancing one's men by the usual moves and jumps.

THE NEW BOARD.
(Four Contestants Can Play Checkers on It at the Same Time.)

TOLD AT SANTIAGO. TALKED TOO FREELY.

That Is Why Felipe Agoncillo Is Persona Non Grata.

Agent of the Filipino Republic at Washington is a Shrewd Man, But Unused to the Methods of Diplomacy.

Felipe Agoncillo, the special agent of Gen. Aguinaldo, is a shrewd, cultivated man, who is all the more adroit and dangerous because he has had the advantage of the drill and veneer of the schools. It must not be forgotten that this Malay emissary, although a polished and well-educated personage, is the representative of a race that until recently belonged, and even yet belongs, to that branch of humanity that Europeans consider uncivilized. Smooth of exterior, yet prick his skin and the Filipino is still a savage.

Spanish dominion in the Philippines has never been able to "civilize" the native Filipinos. Agoncillo, while presenting all the outward seeming of a gentleman, cannot really be blamed if he inherits the instincts of the Malay race with which he is one in blood. He is a lawyer of Manila and is a most trusted friend of Aguinaldo, the rebel leader. For a long time he has been the repository of that leader's hopes, ambitions and fears. It is said that Agoncillo was a sharer in the $600,000 paid to Aguinaldo by the Spanish government in consideration of the latter's abandonment of the rebellion.

Agoncillo, physically, bears all the marks of his Malay origin. He is of small but compact frame and has the appearance of being able to stand much fatigue, either mental or physical, in case his reserve of vitality should be called upon. He is suave in manner, as are all orientals, and under a seeming quietude there dwells a firm, quick and most impulsive nature that is, to a civilized man, a complete surprise when it shows itself. In one word, Agoncillo is calculated to offer to the untraveled and unsuspecting American one of those surprising transformation scenes that are known in the United States only in theaters.

For an American in New York or Chicago, for example, Aguinaldo's agent, or spy, as he now appears to be, would seem a plain, honest, unequivocal man, with the best interests of his country at heart, desirous of being a friend of the new and big power that has come into the Philippines. The American could hardly believe that he could meditate a stroke against such a powerful government as that of the United States. But that is where precisely Aguinaldo's ignorance becomes apparent. Lawyer and college man as he is, he suffers under the delusion that the rebel Filipinos can whip America. There he discloses the shrewdness of the fox without the natural instinct of that animal that warns him against danger or against a tremendously more powerful enemy.

When Agoncillo came to Washington he was treated with all the kindness and consideration he deserved, and probably more. It is said that he pretends to be ignorant of the English language, but that in reality he understands the tongue perfectly well. He has been interviewed several times with the aid of an interpreter, and, if it be true that he understands English, it is probable that he will hear many things that will not be grateful to his ears.

One characteristic shown by Agoncillo since his arrival in this country is peculiarly savage. He has evinced a childish love for gay clothes and highly colored neckties, which, while amusing to many who will not regard the Filipino rebels with the same seriousness given them by the Spaniards, has been proof positive to the thoughtful persons that he was not to be taken in good faith. Whatever may be the outcome of the present snarl in which Agoncillo finds himself, it is certain that few will longer feel disposed to humor him as they would a child. Savage or civilized, Agoncillo must stand or fall with his deserts.

How to Measure Progress.
I recently came across a remark, writes the bishop of London in the Cornhill, that any political reputation which survives for a hundred years survives because it is a peg on which historians hang their theories. This does not detract from a man's real greatness, for what higher position could he hope to fill than that of serving as a milestone in the great track of the world's progress? If that position be secured, the direction of the way and the points between which he marks the distance may be left for perpetual readjustment. We may measure progress by different standards in material attainments, but civilization in its noblest form depends upon moral advance, and we look to a time when this will be more and more recognized.

That Is Why Felipe Agoncillo Is Persona Non Grata.

Agent of the Filipino Republic at Washington is a Shrewd Man, But Unused to the Methods of Diplomacy.

Felipe Agoncillo, the special agent of Gen. Aguinaldo, is a shrewd, cultivated man, who is all the more adroit and dangerous because he has had the advantage of the drill and veneer of the schools. It must not be forgotten that this Malay emissary, although a polished and well-educated personage, is the representative of a race that until recently belonged, and even yet belongs, to that branch of humanity that Europeans consider uncivilized. Smooth of exterior, yet prick his skin and the Filipino is still a savage.

Spanish dominion in the Philippines has never been able to "civilize" the native Filipinos. Agoncillo, while presenting all the outward seeming of a gentleman, cannot really be blamed if he inherits the instincts of the Malay race with which he is one in blood. He is a lawyer of Manila and is a most trusted friend of Aguinaldo, the rebel leader. For a long time he has been the repository of that leader's hopes, ambitions and fears. It is said that Agoncillo was a sharer in the $600,000 paid to Aguinaldo by the Spanish government in consideration of the latter's abandonment of the rebellion.

Agoncillo, physically, bears all the marks of his Malay origin. He is of small but compact frame and has the appearance of being able to stand much fatigue, either mental or physical, in case his reserve of vitality should be called upon. He is suave in manner, as are all orientals, and under a seeming quietude there dwells a firm, quick and most impulsive nature that is, to a civilized man, a complete surprise when it shows itself. In one word, Agoncillo is calculated to offer to the untraveled and unsuspecting American one of those surprising transformation scenes that are known in the United States only in theaters.

For an American in New York or Chicago, for example, Aguinaldo's agent, or spy, as he now appears to be, would seem a plain, honest, unequivocal man, with the best interests of his country at heart, desirous of being a friend of the new and big power that has come into the Philippines. The American could hardly believe that he could meditate a stroke against such a powerful government as that of the United States. But that is where precisely Aguinaldo's ignorance becomes apparent. Lawyer and college man as he is, he suffers under the delusion that the rebel Filipinos can whip America. There he discloses the shrewdness of the fox without the natural instinct of that animal that warns him against danger or against a tremendously more powerful enemy.

When Agoncillo came to Washington he was treated with all the kindness and consideration he deserved, and probably more. It is said that he pretends to be ignorant of the English language, but that in reality he understands the tongue perfectly well. He has been interviewed several times with the aid of an interpreter, and, if it be true that he understands English, it is probable that he will hear many things that will not be grateful to his ears.

One characteristic shown by Agoncillo since his arrival in this country is peculiarly savage. He has evinced a childish love for gay clothes and highly colored neckties, which, while amusing to many who will not regard the Filipino rebels with the same seriousness given them by the Spaniards, has been proof positive to the thoughtful persons that he was not to be taken in good faith. Whatever may be the outcome of the present snarl in which Agoncillo finds himself, it is certain that few will longer feel disposed to humor him as they would a child. Savage or civilized, Agoncillo must stand or fall with his deserts.

How to Measure Progress.
I recently came across a remark, writes the bishop of London in the Cornhill, that any political reputation which survives for a hundred years survives because it is a peg on which historians hang their theories. This does not detract from a man's real greatness, for what higher position could he hope to fill than that of serving as a milestone in the great track of the world's progress? If that position be secured, the direction of the way and the points between which he marks the distance may be left for perpetual readjustment. We may measure progress by different standards in material attainments, but civilization in its noblest form depends upon moral advance, and we look to a time when this will be more and more recognized.

How to Measure Progress.
I recently came across a remark, writes the bishop of London in the Cornhill, that any political reputation which survives for a hundred years survives because it is a peg on which historians hang their theories. This does not detract from a man's real greatness, for what higher position could he hope to fill than that of serving as a milestone in the great track of the world's progress? If that position be secured, the direction of the way and the points between which he marks the distance may be left for perpetual readjustment. We may measure progress by different standards in material attainments, but civilization in its noblest form depends upon moral advance, and we look to a time when this will be more and more recognized.

How to Measure Progress.
I recently came across a remark, writes the bishop of London in the Cornhill, that any political reputation which survives for a hundred years survives because it is a peg on which historians hang their theories. This does not detract from a man's real greatness, for what higher position could he hope to fill than that of serving as a milestone in the great track of the world's progress? If that position be secured, the direction of the way and the points between which he marks the distance may be left for perpetual readjustment. We may measure progress by different standards in material attainments, but civilization in its noblest form depends upon moral advance, and we look to a time when this will be more and more recognized.

How to Measure Progress.
I recently came across a remark, writes the bishop of London in the Cornhill, that any political reputation which survives for a hundred years survives because it is a peg on which historians hang their theories. This does not detract from a man's real greatness, for what higher position could he hope to fill than that of serving as a milestone in the great track of the world's progress? If that position be secured, the direction of the way and the points between which he marks the distance may be left for perpetual readjustment. We may measure progress by different standards in material attainments, but civilization in its noblest form depends upon moral advance, and we look to a time when this will be more and more recognized.

How to Measure Progress.
I recently came across a remark, writes the bishop of London in the Cornhill, that any political reputation which survives for a hundred years survives because it is a peg on which historians hang their theories. This does not detract from a man's real greatness, for what higher position could he hope to fill than that of serving as a milestone in the great track of the world's progress? If that position be secured, the direction of the way and the points between which he marks the distance may be left for perpetual readjustment. We may measure progress by different standards in material attainments, but civilization in its noblest form depends upon moral advance, and we look to a time when this will be more and more recognized.

How to Measure Progress.
I recently came across a remark, writes the bishop of London in the Cornhill, that any political reputation which survives for a hundred years survives because it is a peg on which historians hang their theories. This does not detract from a man's real greatness, for what higher position could he hope to fill than that of serving as a milestone in the great track of the world's progress? If that position be secured, the direction of the way and the points between which he marks the distance may be left for perpetual readjustment. We may measure progress by different standards in material attainments, but civilization in its noblest form depends upon moral advance, and we look to a time when this will be more and more recognized.

How to Measure Progress.
I recently came across a remark, writes the bishop of London in the Cornhill, that any political reputation which survives for a hundred years survives because it is a peg on which historians hang their theories. This does not detract from a man's real greatness, for what higher position could he hope to fill than that of serving as a milestone in the great track of the world's progress? If that position be secured, the direction of the way and the points between which he marks the distance may be left for perpetual readjustment. We may measure progress by different standards in material attainments, but civilization in its noblest form depends upon moral advance, and we look to a time when this will be more and more recognized.

How to Measure Progress.
I recently came across a remark, writes the bishop of London in the Cornhill, that any political reputation which survives for a hundred years survives because it is a peg on which historians hang their theories. This does not detract from a man's real greatness, for what higher position could he hope to fill than that of serving as a milestone in the great track of the world's progress? If that position be secured, the direction of the way and the points between which he marks the distance may be left for perpetual readjustment. We may measure progress by different standards in material attainments, but civilization in its noblest form depends upon moral advance, and we look to a time when this will be more and more recognized.

CRAWFORD COUNTY Real Estate Exchange

E. GULICK Mng'r.
Denison, Iowa.
Farms and Town Property Sold or Exchanged on Commission.
LOANS NEGOTIATED.
Abstracts of Title Furnished. Taxes Paid and Rents Collected.
Any business entrusted to me will receive prompt and careful attention.

MONEY TO LOAN on first class security. Not a $100,000, but a few $100 Apply to E. Gulick, Room No. 3, Gulick & Solomon block Denison, Iowa.
FOR SALE Several choice improved farms, close to school and market. Call on or address E. Gulick, the leading real estate agent, Denison, Ia.
FOR SALE Choice residential properties and unimproved town lots on easy terms. to E. Gulick, real estate and loan agent, Denison, Iowa.

WILGOX STEAM LAUNDRY Improved Machinery

QUICK WORK for doing the Best Work with the least possible wear and tear, and with splendid finish.
A SPECIALTY

W. A. MCHENRY, Pres. SEARS MCHENRY, Cashier.
First National Bank.
CAPITAL AND SURPLUS, $115,000.00.
DEPOSITS, 310,000.00.
LOANS, 350,000.00.

With our thirty years of experience in the banking business and our large capital and constant increasing deposits we are able to take care of our customers at the lowest rates. Deposits received subject to be drawn at sight. Time certificates issued drawing four per cent for six and five per cent for twelve months. We make a specialty of loaning money on cattle to be fed for market, as well as individuals. Also make first mortgage loans on improved farms at current rates. We sell lands town lots, furnish abstracts of title and sell steamship tickets for foreign parts. Our officers speak German. We solicit your patronage.

J. F. BURK, the Druggist,
Complete line of Drugs, Patent Medicines, Toilet Articles, Stationery, Blank Books, Paints, Oils, White Lead, Brushes, Etc.
DENISON, IOWA.