

THE LORD BISHOP OF CHESTER.

The moving spirits in "The People's Refreshment House Association, Limited," the latest effort to inculcate temperance in England, are the Bishop of Chester, the Bishop of Rochester and Cardinal Vaughan. Pure liquors only are sold in the Association's inns, and barkeepers are given a share of the profits from the sale of non-alcoholic drinks. No credit is given. Stockholders are to have 5 per cent of the profits.

A WARSHIP ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

Warships don't happen every day in the middle west, and consequently the trip of the cruiser Nashville up the Mississippi as far as St. Louis attracted considerable attention. Enormous crowds gathered at all the cities and towns by which Uncle Sam's sea fighter passed. Captain J. W. Bryan, a veteran steamboatman, piloted the Nashville.

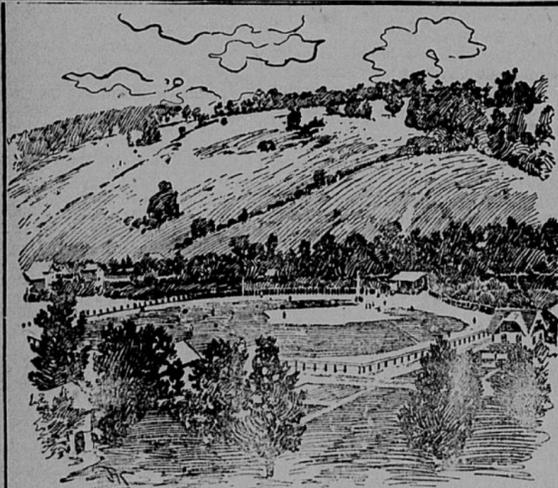

FALLING SPRINGS.

HOTEL AND VIEWS AT HOT SPRINGS, VA.

When President McKinley decided to spend his spring vacation at Hot Springs, Va., he selected one of the most picturesque resorts in the country. The Springs are located in the Blue Ridge, on the Chesapeake and Ohio railway. The elevation is 2,500 feet above sea level; the air is invigorating and the waters are said to be excellent.

FLEISCHMANN'S PRIVATE BASEBALL PARK.

Julius Fleischmann is the banner baseball cracker. At his summer home in the Catskills he maintains a baseball park that has all the "fixes" of the most complete home of the national game. A team, upon which Mr. Fleischmann and his brother play and which has men who have made reputations in the minor leagues, holds forth all summer on the Mountain Athletic Baseball club grounds. Julius pays all the freight.

Conductor and Engineer.

In old cars the bell cord ran over the top and was wound on a reel, says Mr. George in "Forty Years on the Rail," and brakemen had to climb up to the top of the cars, no matter how fast the train was running, to use the cord or adjust it in case of mishap. An old engineer of the Erie road tells how the bell cord was invented.

"Pappy" Ayres, the pioneer Erie conductor, hit upon an expedient for signaling to the engineer. He tied a stick of wood to a long rope, hung the stick in the engine cab, and carried the rope over the car tops to the rear of the train. His plan was to pull the rope and rattle the stick when he wished the train stopped.

The engineer of Conductor Ayres' train was conservative—"sulky," the conductor called him—and did not see fit to recognize such an innovation. "Why didn't you stop the train when I pulled that rope?" thundered the conductor, after a flagrant refusal to notice the stick of wood signal.

"All right," he answered, amiably. "I'm willing to wrestle wit ye, an' if ye can throw me I'll notice any signal, if 'tain't more'n a bumblebee's buzzin', pervided ye can harness him so's to buzz when ye want the train stopped."

A wrestling match followed, in which "Pappy" laid the engineer low. The rope and stick worked to a charm after that, and soon led to the introduction of the now universal bell-cord system of signaling.

Amusing a Senator.

There is a senator from a western state, who shall be nameless, who likes to play poker. He was very much amused, not to say annoyed last Sunday, to find out that his reputation as an expert of the great American game had preceded him to a little hotel not a thousand miles away from Washington.

The senator had gone out of town to spend Sunday quietly and registered in the morning at the hotel where he proposed to spend the day. The clerk, who watched him sign his name, did not know him, but the manager, who glanced over the autographs later in the forenoon was not so ignorant. Immediately word was sent to the senator that he could have a much better room than the one originally assigned, and when he entered his new quarters he found a fire cheerily burning and every provision made for his comfort.

The climax came, however, when he came downstairs a few minutes later. The manager of the hotel espied him and approached him with a confidential air. "Senator," said he, "I know that you like to play a little game and so I have sent out to secure four or five gentlemen who will be glad to play with you. I thought, you know, that you would like a little amusement for a quiet Sunday."

The senator smiled and thanked his obliging host. "Really," he said, "I am much obliged to you for your thoughtfulness, but I don't believe I want to play to-day." And the hotel keeper looked quite disappointed.

Just in Time.

"Your little boy," said the visitor, "is the exact image—"

Then she paused. She happened to remember that Mr. Noop once had received a prize of a plug hat at a church fair for being the homeliest young man in the parish, and she hastily added: "Of his mother."

Crawford County State Bank,

DENISON, IOWA.

The Best Security for Depositors. Farm Loans at Five Per Cent Interest.

This Bank is incorporated under the laws of the State of Iowa. This gives the best security to all depositors, not only to the amount of stock, but the personal property of each share-holder is held to the amount of his share for any loss to the bank. Incorporated banks are under the control of the State Auditor, who can at any time examine the business, and according to his investigation the published statements are made. Depositors in an incorporated bank have more security than the confidence imposed in the officers. They have the best security, because the capital stock can not be used at pleasure for outside speculation and investment. The Crawford County State Bank is the best incorporated banking institution in the County. A general banking business done.
