THE DENISON REVIEW, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1899.

OUR CHRISTMAS GREETING TO YOU.

Like the flowers of early Spring time
Peeping out through banks of snow,
In the darkness of Life's pathway,
Comes the Merry Christmas' glow.
Old Folk's Smiles and Children's Laughter,
Each in glee enjoy their part.

But the gladdest one is he who has
Made glad some other's heart.
Through the winds and rain of Spring time,
Through the Summer's burning days,
Through the Fall time's glorious harvest,
We have followed all your ways—

Shared your sorrows and repinings,
Shared your hopes and eke your fears,
Joined with mirth in all your laughter,
Soothed with sympathy your tears—
Now we send our Yule tide greeting,
May your hearts be ever true,
Then all other joys shall follow
Like your old friend the REVIEW.
