Crawford County State Bank,

DENISON, IOWA.

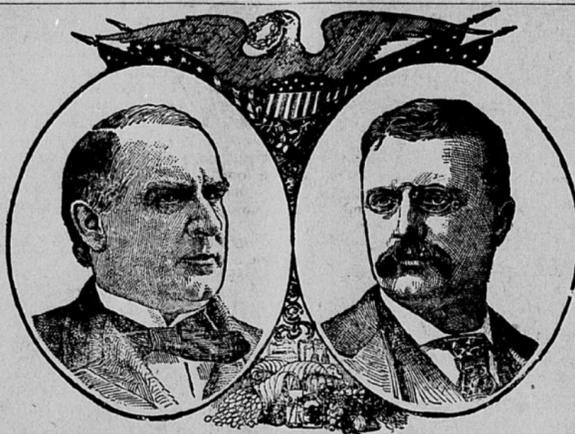

The Best Security for Depositors. Farm Loans at Five Per Cent Interest.

This Bank is incorporated under the laws of the State of Iowa. This gives the best security to all depositors, not only to the amount of stock, but the personal property of each share-holder is held to the amount of his share for any loss to the bank. Incorporated banks are under the control of the State Auditor, who can at any time examine the business, and according to his investigation the published statements are made. Depositors in an incorporated bank have more security than the confidence imposed in the officers. They have the best security, because the capital stock can not be used at pleasure for outside speculation and investment. The Crawford County State Bank is the best incorporated banking institution in the County. A general banking business done.

SENATOR J. P. DOLLIVER.

On Wednesday Gov. Shaw appointed Hon. J. P. Dolliver to succeed Mr. Gear in the United States Senate. Crawford county had a candidate in the person of Judge Conner, a man whom our people believe to be in every way fitted for the high position. We had hoped that the Governor would see his way clear to appoint Judge Conner, but after giving the matter full and free consideration, after listening to the advice of hundreds, yes thousands, of people, Gov. Shaw decided that Mr. Dolliver, Senator Dolliver, was the best appointment possible to conserve the interests of the state and of the republican party. There can be no question as to the Governor's unselfishness in this instance. Even the wisest of the Governor's enemies, if he has any, cannot figure out how it is going to benefit the Governor personally to have a United States senator from the Tenth district. Governor Shaw has announced repeatedly that he would under no circumstances resign the office to which he has been elected to accept the Congressional nomination even were it tendered him. Gov. Shaw has wisely appointed a man, who has been identified with neither faction of the republican party, thus neither the Cummins men nor their opponents can claim a victory. Mr. Dolliver has won solely on his merits and we fully believe that when the two years have passed, Senator Dolliver will have so well justified the Governor's choice that the legislature will gladly elect him for the remainder of the term. We understand that Mr. Cummins has already announced his candidacy before the legislature. While he has a perfect right to do this, we trust that neither Mr. Cummins or his friends will do anything to prevent the new senator from having a fair chance to show how good a senator he can be. Unfortunately Gov. Shaw could appoint but one man. That he has made so wise a selection, that he has not listened to the voice of personal ambition, that he has not allowed himself to be the tool of any faction are greatly to his credit and we believe his course will be commended by all the thinking republicans of the state.

We in the Tenth know Senator Dolliver and are proud of him, we know his sterling integrity and his great ability. Coming into prominence through his eloquent oratory, Dolliver has proven himself more than an orator. In the councils of the nation and of his party Dolliver holds high rank, and it has been found time and again that the great orator from Iowa cannot only talk but think. Mr. Dolliver is on the young side of middle life, he goes into the Senate equipped with more than 10 years experience in the lower house of Congress and it is our deliberate judgment, that, if Mr. Dolliver is continued in the Senate as he should be, he will become one of the great men, one of the illustrious names of the new century. With such men as Allison and Dolliver in the Senate and with our delegation in the house strengthened by the addition of such a man as Judge Conner from the Tenth district, there is no question but that proud Iowa will retain its place as the most influential state in the national congress.

NO PRIDE IN ITS ANCESTRY.

Democracy is always cock-sure that it is right. It always knows that no matter what mistakes it may have made in the past, it is infallible now. To the onlooker, to the man who is given to judging the future by the past the democratic assumption of infallibility is, to say the least, open to criticism. It is a fact that democracy has not had a victory in the past fifty years, that it is proud of today; it has not had a candidate, either successful or unsuccessful, save and except the present one always, to whom it can point with pride. Did you ever hear a democrat boast of the administration of Martin Van Buren, the last democratic president but one? As a matter of fact have you noticed any of the present, 16 to 1, democrats swell up with manly pride over the administration of Grover Cleveland? When did you hear a democrat quoting from Breckenridge or Douglas? No, it is Lincoln whom they steal from the republicans, from whom they quote. Do you find in their club rooms the pictures of Geo. B. McClellan, or Horatio Seymour, or Horace Greeley? No, it is the picture of Grant, the silent commander, the republican president, whose picture decorates their walls. Tilden and the gallant Hancock are well-nigh forgotten. It is not their speeches but garbled extracts from the speeches of Garfield and Blaine that are now brought to the attention of the voter. Not one, no not one, of all the democratic leaders who have stood the test of time for even fifty years. Is it not well to identify yourself with a party that produces leaders, of whom it can be proud and stay proud. We venture the prediction that whether Bryan is elected or not, within five years nine-tenths of the democrats will be ashamed of him and say they knew him not, and that within ten years a democratic orator would feel insulted should you remind him of the days when the democratic hosts were led by one William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska.

STEWART FOR MCKINLEY.

New York, Aug. 20.—Senator William M. Stewart of Nevada called at the republican headquarters today and said he had decided to vote for President McKinley. He made a statement, in part as follows:

The United States went to war with Spain urged on by the democratic party. The popularity of the war was such that Mr. Bryan joined the army. The war was successful, a treaty of peace was entered into whereby the United States agreed to pay $20,000,000 and accept the sovereignty and public property of Spain in the Philippine archipelago. There was opposition to the ratification of the treaty. Mr. Bryan came to Washington and persuaded his democratic friends to vote for the treaty and it was through his influence that the treaty was finally ratified. It then became the duty of the United States to maintain law and order and protect the lives and property of all residents of the islands, whether native or foreign-born. The United States at the time of the ratification of the treaty held military possession of Manila and immediately after such ratification assumed the sovereignty of the Pacific coast, became entitled to the vast commerce of the Pacific ocean, of which the Philippines furnish the key.

One Aguinaldo had raised a rebellion in Luzon against Spain before the commencement of the Spanish war with the United States. This adventurer had sold out or settled his rebellion with Spain for $400,000 before Dewey set sail for Manila, and as a part of the bargain with Spain Aguinaldo agreed to leave the islands and never return.

Dewey took the wily agitator back to the island, supposing, as a matter of course, that Aguinaldo would naturally be an enemy of Spain and a friend of the United States. In this Admiral Dewey was mistaken. Aguinaldo, as soon as he landed on his native soil, organized a rebellion against the United States, which would have been of little consequence if he had not been able to obtain comfort and aid in this country. An organization was formed in the United States called the Anti-Imperialist league, which has for the last two years co-operated with Aguinaldo's Tagal junta, with headquarters at Hong Kong, to supply literature and materials of war for Aguinaldo. President McKinley had no authority to buy out Aguinaldo's rebellion against the United States, but was bound by the treaty (which was the supreme law of the land) to maintain law and order and protect life and property in the islands. It required a large army and the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars to put down Aguinaldo's rebellion. The assistance and the encouragement he received from the Anti-Imperialist league and the enemies of the United States, both at home and abroad, made his barbarous and irregular war bloody and expensive. Congress, however, made all necessary appropriations, providing the executive men and money to maintain the authority of the United States in the Philippines. The so-called anti-imperialist declared that the policy pursued by the government to put down the rebellion and maintain law and order in all territories of the United States, without regard to the time when such territories were acquired, was "imperialism" and that any use of the army to maintain law and order—however necessary—was "militarism" and that giving aid and comfort to rebels in arms against the United States was "maintaining the principles of the Declaration of Independence."

Mr. Bryan's unparalleled campaign for the principles of the Chicago platform and his insistence upon the adoption of that platform at Kansas City induced the people to suppose that the campaign of 1900 would be conducted on the issues of 1896. In this it seems they were mistaken."

Senator Stewart then quotes Mr. Bryan's declaration of his intention, if elected, to call an extraordinary session of congress to give the Philippines freedom upon the same terms as Cuba. He also denounced the recent convention of anti-imperialist at Indianapolis. He also denounced Mr. Bryan for promising to attempt to "extend the Monroe doctrine to the Orient."

A Swindling Scheme.

For some years past the treasury department has received from time to time letters from all parts of the country asking for information regarding certain large sums of money which, it is alleged, are on deposit in the treasury department awaiting distribution to heirs or persons of great wealth in Europe and America.

Among these noted claims is one of the heirs of a man of the name of De Haven, who is alleged to have loaned the government of the United States large sums of money during the Revolutionary war. Another well known case is that of the Robert Morris estate, the heirs of which, it is said, are entitled to receive from the government several millions of dollars. The Durkee claim also is well known in the department and involves several millions of dollars. The latest one is that of the heirs of Anneke Jans, who are said to be entitled to receive from the United States something like $90,000,000, which sum, it is said, has been received from Holland and now awaits proof of relationship.

It is stated that the treasury department that all of these claims are spurious and that they are made the basis of confidence games by agents who work upon the credulity of the unformed. Agents, it is said, are selling bonds to raise money to prosecute these claims against the government, realizing something like $10 per $1,000 promised in case of success. The treasury department is powerless to proceed against these impostors.—Washington Post.

A Joke on Offenbach.

Offenbach, the famous opera bouffe composer, had an insatiable thirst for success and fame combined with a vanity that occasionally played him a sorry trick.

Once he was going down the Rhine on a steamer, among whose passengers was the Duke of Nassau, a fact of which the composer was in blissful ignorance.

As the steamer approached its last stopping place the bank of the river was seen to be covered by a dense throng of people who were shouting and waving their hats. A band on the pier was playing a march from one of Offenbach's operas.

As the boat touched the pier Offenbach stepped to the rail and bowed and waved his hat to the people in acknowledgment of this flattering ovation.

"It is glorious to be received in a foreign land like this," he remarked to his companions.

But his self complacency received a rude shock the next instant when the duke's adjutant appeared and said, in a rough and unfeeling manner: "Get out of the way, will you, and let his highness show himself!"

Beauty and Education.

Why is it that woman has always been more beautiful than man? In human beings the attractive qualities have always been on the side of the female. Why is it? Without wishing to cast any aspersion on the members of the superior sex, we may fairly answer that it is because they have hitherto been the less educated. But woman's ideas are changing. She has listened to the voice of the tempter, whispering in her ear all sorts of sweet fallacies about equality of the sexes, intellectual development and its necessity, and the like, and she has yielded to the temptation. And the result of this will be that she will lose her beauty. She will suffer in appearance as man has done and is doing, and in the course of time the extremely civilized races of mankind will be ugly—irretrievably and lamentably ugly.—Pearson's Magazine.

A Famous Pearl.

The beautiful pearl known as the Great Southern Cross was found in Western Australia in the year 1884. It consists of nine pearls joined together in the form of a cross, in which shape it was found by a man named Clarke. It is said that the finder and the first purchaser of it buried it for some time, superstitiously regarding it as a heavenly miracle. It was, however, ultimately taken up from its burial place and sold for $1,000, since which time it has frequently changed hands and is now valued at $50,000. At the Colonial and Indian exhibition in England it attracted a good deal of notice and is probably the only natural cross ever found.

Cannibals and Pork.

In the New Hebrides human life has been made safe by the introduction of pigs into the island. The cannibals are said to prefer roast pork to roast man, and as the porcine tribe increases among the natives they may give up their feasts on human flesh altogether excepting when something unusual happens, such as entertaining a king of some other cannibal island or on state occasions of rare ceremony.

Tough on the Joker.

The contributor wrote a joke about a plumber whose bills were always normal. "That," said the editor, rejecting it, "is not a joke; it's a lie." The contributor tried again with a story of the plumber whose charges left nothing to be desired on the score of size. "That," said the editor, who had suffered, "is not a lie. Neither is it a joke."—Scraps.

More Honest.

"Have you noticed any difference in your wife since she became converted and joined the church?" "Yes; she asks me to wait an hour for her now instead of a minute."—Harper's Bazar.

A Man to Let Alone.

"What kind of a man is your new bookkeeper?" "He's this kind: If you say two words to him, he'll say 200."—Detroit Free Press.
