Eccentric Testators.

Joseph Dalky takes the opportunity afforded by his will of insulting his son-in-law in terms which doubtless had a pungency once, but which are hardly comprehensible to the modern reader: "I give to my daughter, Ann Spencer, a guinea for a ring or any other bauble she may like better; I give to the lout, her husband, one penny to buy him a lark whistle, and this legacy I give him as a mark of my appreciation of his prowess and nice honor in drawing his sword on me (at my own table, naked and unarmed as I was, and he well fortified with custard.)"

A greivous legacy is that of Philip Thicknesse: "I leave my right hand, to be cut off after my death, to my son, and I desire it may be sent to him in hopes that such a sight may remind him of his duty to God after having so long abandoned the duty he owed to a father who once affectionately loved him."

Another father seems apparently to have begun his will with the determination of punishing an unruly son, but, as the fairy stories say, all ends happily. We refer to the will of Richard Crawshaw, the founder of the famous Welsh ironworks. It runs thus: "To my only son, who never would follow my advice and has treated me rudely in very many instances, instead of making him my executor and residuary legatee (as till this day he was) I give him £100,000."—Chambers' Journal.

Extreme Affectation.

A young man whose battered suit case was red and pink and yellow with the labels of European hotels boarded a street car and said to the conductor: "I go six blocks. How much?" "Oh, only a nickel," the conductor answered. But the young man handed over 15 cents, saying, "Buy yourself a glass of beer and a cigar on me."

The conductor gave thanks for the tip and added, "Just back from Europe, hey?" And to his interrogation the young man nodded assent.

Out on the back platform afterward the conductor described the episode to a couple of passengers. "He asked me what the fare was for six blocks," he said, "and then he gave me a tip. It was a case of fake absentmindedness. He has just returned from Europe, where you pay by the distance on the street cars and where you tip the conductors, and he pretended to forget he wasn't in Europe still."

"He thought I'd question him about his strange conduct, and I would have, too, if the trick wasn't an old one to me. Here and in New York, especially in New York, you are constantly running up against people who forget and work European customs on you. They do it so you'll know they have been abroad."—Philadelphia Record.

An Old Time English Election.

The only contest which occurred at Gattin within historic memory was curious enough. Sir Mark Wood, who had been one of its members for several years, had as his colleague in the parliament of 1812 Sir William Congreve, the inventor of the famous "Congreve rocket." The latter resigned in 1816, and the baronet wished his own son to fill the vacancy.

There were only three voters in the constituency, Sir Mark, his son and his butler, named Jennings, but as the son was away and the butler had quarreled with his master an opportunity was afforded for a singular revenge. Jennings refused to second Sir Mark's nomination of his son and proposed himself, and a deadlock was averted only by Sir Mark coming to terms with the refractory butler, whose nomination he seconded in order to induce him to act as seconder to his son.

Matters being thus put formally in train, Sir Mark arranged with Jennings that the former's vote should be alone given, and the final state of the poll at Gattin's only known contest stood thus: Wood (Tory), 1; Jennings (Whig), 0.—Westminster Gazette.

How He Knew It.

We had outspanned the wagons on the veldt between Prieska and Kenhard. The donkeys had been driven to the veldt, and we, my friend and myself, were talking in the "taal" to a Dutchman named Gert Maans' about the wonders of the universe. We mentioned that the world was round. Maans said that he knew it. This answer was unusual for a Boer, so we asked him how he knew. He replied: "I started to ride to Poortje one dark night through the veldt, and I rode hard all the night, and next morning I found myself at the place I started from, so I know the world is round because I rode round it."—London Standard.

Artificial Eyes.

Artificial eyes are supplied to all the world from Thuringia, Germany. Nearly all the grown inhabitants of some of the villages are engaged in their manufacture. Four men usually sit at a table, each with a gas jet in front of him, and the eyes are blown from gas plates and molded into shape by hand. The colors are then traced in with small needles, no set rule being observed in the coloring, and as every man uses his own fancy no two artificial eyes therefore are exactly alike.

Extent of Florist Industry.

The florist business in the United States is by no means an unimportant industry. It is estimated that the retail value of flowers sold annually is $12,500,000 and of potted plants $10,000,000. There are no less than 10,000 establishments in the United States devoted to the growing of plants under glass.—Chicago Chronicle.

Dust of the sea is one of the mysteries which perplex sailors. No matter how carefully the decks of sailing ships may be washed down in the morning an enormous quantity of dust can be swept up at night.

TO EVANGELIZE NATION.

Interdenominational Movement Inaugurated in New York City.

New York, Dec. 4.—The Journal prints the following: An interdenominational movement to celebrate the beginning of the 20th century by a systematic effort to evangelize the nation through the medium of existing churches and church societies. Such is, in effect, the motive of what is probably the most far reaching religious movement ever inaugurated. The plan, or suggestions for the plan, was agreed upon in a secret conference of representative religious workers which met yesterday at the Young Men's Christian association building. Every prominent religious society was represented. President Francis E. Clark of the International Christian Endeavor society came from Boston to attend the conference. Mrs. Margaret Bottoms was there for the King's Daughters. The Baptist Young People's union, the Epworth League, the Young Men's Christian association, the Young Women's Christian association, Evangelical Alliance, Social Reform societies, all had delegates, noted and representative, present who were enthusiastic over the whole scheme.

HAVE ENOUGH OF WAR.

Over Two Thousand Bolomen at Vigan Take Oath of Allegiance to the United States.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The war department received the following dispatch telling of the voluntary surrender of a large number of insurgents to General Young at Santa Maria: Malacanan, Manila—Adjutant General Washington: Two thousand, one hundred and eighty Katipunan insurgents, whom Consiqe enrolled (bolomen), came from mountains and surrendered to General Samuel B. M. Young today at Santa Maria. They renounced insurrection and swore allegiance to the United States. The oath was administered by the padre (priest) at the church with impressive religious ceremonies. General Young attributes the surrender to president's re-election and vigorous prosecution of war. Although no rifles surrendered, this is important as indicating a reaction among the people.

LEE GOES TO OMAHA.

Will Assume Command of the Missouri.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—General Fitzhugh Lee, late commander of the Havana department in Cuba, left here for Omaha, where he will at once assume command of the Department of Missouri. Before leaving he said: "In case the Cubans fail to establish a stable government and in case the United States is forced to occupy the country permanently, I do not think that more than three or four thousand troops will be needed for the military establishment of Cuba. The island is so situated that troops from the United States could be poured in very easily in case of necessity. Whether the Cuban convention now sitting will succeed in establishing a government which can protect life and property and give security to capital I can only answer, who knows? No. I can not express my opinion upon the possibility."

Cadet Booz Dies of Injuries.

Philadelphia, Dec. 4.—Oscar L. Booz, a former cadet at West Point military academy, who had been lying at the point of death at his home in Bristol, Pa., suffering from injuries which his parents claim were the result of hazing at the academy over two years ago, died yesterday in great agony. The cause of death was throat consumption. It is alleged by the young man's father that tobacco sauce was poured down his son's throat while the cadets were hazing him.
