What the Bowlers are Doing.

On Saturday last two of the bowling teams from Denison went to Omaha to play two match games that had been arranged there between the Omaha's and the Denison teams and between Clarkson's and Tamm's teams.

They went down well aware of the fact, that they were facing a difficult proposition, and so it proved to be. The first match was between Tamm's and Clarkson's and was played on the Gate City Alleys. The first game resulted in a victory for Clarkson's team by 100 pins. This, however, did not in the least discourage the "invincibles," but with determination in every action they went "through 'em" by 54 pins. This victory served as a stimulant to greater efforts and at the end of the final game of the match, Tamm's team were 55 pins ahead, making a total for them of 99 pins the winner, against 100 by Clarkson's, which lost the game for Tamm's by one pin.

While the game was lost, yet the margin was so small that the boys felt as though they had done well, which they did. Following is the score:

The Denison team played their game with the Omaha's on Clark's alleys, but met with defeat of about 300 pins in the three games. The boys played in hard luck all through the games, but nevertheless rolled a very creditable score.

The Omaha's are excellent bowlers being one of the best teams in the West, so that our boys, even though defeated, did not feel that they had lost the game through carelessness, but simply because the Omaha's could bowl better than they could. Following is the score:

A number of the bowling enthusiasts went down and saw the games and were loud in their praises of the excellent work done by our boys considering they were on strange alleys.

A return game will be played in Denison at an early date at which time the boys hope for a different result.

Those who were there have words of commendation for the Omaha boys for the hearty welcome and gentlemanly and whole-souled courtesies shown them during their stay there.

JUST ONE BOY'S WAY

THE DRAMA THAT WAS ENACTED ON A STREET CAR.

A Pocket Exploration That Held the Passengers Breathless and Proved Eminently Satisfactory to the Persistent Youngster.

When this small boy on the Ninth street car went into his clothing after his car fare, the other passengers betrayed little or no interest in him. He was an ordinary, snub nosed, freckle faced boy of nine or ten, and it seemed pretty safe to assume that he had the nickel necessary for a ride or he would not have swung aboard, and so the passengers paid little or no attention to him. The men, as usual, occupied themselves in pretending that they weren't looking at all at the good looking woman in the opposite seats, and the women, also as usual, endeavored to convey the impression that they didn't know there was such a creature as a man within a hundred miles of them.

But when this small boy began to have his troubles all hands got to looking him over. Everybody, it would appear, likes to see a small boy in trouble anyhow.

The boy plowed around in the lining of the right hand pocket of his shabby little overcoat, screwing himself into many possible attitudes as he stood and wriggled in the aisle, and finally, after terrific exertion, he brought forth a penny, half buried in a lot of woolly stuff from the coat. Then he turned his attention to the lining of the left hand pocket of his overcoat. After almost superhuman difficulties, in the process of which it looked as if the boy might get himself wrapped around an invisible axis several times in such a manner that he could never get right again, he produced another penny, also plentifully wadded in woolen lint belonging to the overcoat.

A couple of elderly men who were reading papers side by side at the end of the car began to get nervous. They pushed back their spectacles and studied the boy's movements anxiously.

"Fare, there, son?" said the conductor.

The boy gazed reproachfully at the conductor, stuck the two found pennies in his mouth and continued his weird exertions to assemble his fare.

He unbuttoned his overcoat by the simple process of giving it a yank from bottom to top, and then he dug into the right hand pocket of his jacket. That pocket, too, seemed to be liningless, and the boy had to grope through it like a cat clawing for the exit of a bag. At length he got to the end of it, and an expression of acute relief crossed his freckled features. The hand was wedged in so tightly that he had about as much trouble in getting it out as he had had in getting it in, but it clutched another cent when it finally made its appearance. This went into his mouth to join the other two. At this point the two elderly men coughed violently and scowled at the boy as if to say that they wished the infernal business were done with, but the others who were watching the boy's moves looked sympathetic.

The boy next began a laborious exploration of his right hand knickerbocker pocket, from which he produced and bestowed in his overcoat pocket many articles peculiar to boys—marbles, a piece of wax, a rusty looking knife, two or three printed celluloid buttons, and so on—and at the very bottom of this salvage was yet another penny. All the other passengers except the two elderly men breathed sighs of relief, but they wouldn't read their papers, and yet they couldn't while this boy was engaged in his eventful search, with the chances about even whether he'd win out or not.

"Fare now there, kid!" said the conductor, once more tackling the boy. The boy handed him the four pennies from his mouth after very politely rubbing them off on his overcoat sleeve, and he said, with a very boyish grin: "I got the other one somewhere. Wait a minute, mister."

Then the boy gazed up at the ceiling of the car and studied for a moment, while the other passengers except the two elderly men, who looked ferocious, rooted for him with all their might.

The boy felt tentatively at his left hand knickerbocker's pocket, but it was plain to see that he knew that was no go. For about half a minute he looked worried, and the sympathetic passengers worried along with him, as could be seen by the tense expression on their faces as they regarded every movement of the boy with strained, almost feverish attention. Then the boy reached into a back pocket of his knickerbockers, brought forth one of those celluloid traveling soap boxes, somewhat battered, took off the lid, and there, buried in a lot of junk, was the other cent.

The sigh of relief that ran around that car was distinctly audible. The sympathetic passengers, men and women, settled themselves back in their seats and smiled at the boy, and two or three of them looked as if they wanted to jump up and suggest cheers. The two elderly men coughed violently again, readjusted their spectacles and began again on their newspapers.

Then the small boy sat down, took a neat looking change purse from the inside pocket of his overcoat, dumped the contents—about $2 in quarters, nickels and dimes—into his hands and began counting it, whereupon the passengers who had been rooting for him but a moment before instantly froze and looked at him as if they considered him a bad lot and a boy bound straight for state's prison or worse.—Washington Star.

DR. STOCKDALE'S TREATMENT.

It relieves the most distressing symptoms at once. The cure is speedy and permanent. Ten years of cures removes all doubts as to any possibility of failure. It is the one recognized, established treatment.

Consultation and Advice Free.

Dr. Stockdale's treatment is today the recognized established cure for physical decline since it insures absolute success. It effects immediate beneficial results and a speedy cure. When the laws of health have been violated and there is a consciousness of some gradually growing disease or weakness, visible or invisible, that is sapping the strength and exhausting the system, these symptoms follow: sleeplessness, nervousness, twitching of the muscles, trembling of the limbs, dizziness, loss of flesh, indigestion, heart palpitation and lack of concentration. Weaknesses are created by these strains upon the nerve forces, and the life's blood is sapped away. Dr. Stockdale's treatment removes weaknesses, strengthens the nervous system, creates new tissue, induces a free circulation of the blood and cleanses it from all impurities. It is the most rational, safe and positive curing treatment.

Free consultation and advice gives every sufferer an opportunity of understanding their exact physical condition before considering the question of treatment.

Do not let prejudice stand in the way of your selecting the right treatment. There is only one right treatment—the one that cures—that's Dr. Stockdale's.
