Manning 0-0-1-0-0-1-0-3-3. Batter for Vail Riley and Strausser for Manning Pollock and Morton, umpire Bennett of Manning. Attendance 700.

He was about 19 years of age, an exceptionally bright young man and his death caused much sorrow to his school mates and friends. Those that accompanied the body were his mother Mrs. Jerry Ryan, Miss Francis and Milo, and Mr. Steve Crowe.

THE FARRELLYS IN SIOUX CITY

J. J. AND P. J. FARRELLY
OPEN COMMISSION BUSINESS

P. J. will Have Charge of the Concern. His Brother J. J. is a Well known Chicago Man.

The following is taken from the Sioux City Journal. Both J. J. and P. J. Farrelly are well known and are men of high business principles. J. J. Farrelly & Co. have made arrangements to open a branch in Sioux City of their Chicago live stock commission house. J. J. Farrelly and Peter Farrelly, his brother, were in the city yesterday and concluded their negotiations with the Sioux City Stock Yards company. The firm will open the branch immediately.

J. J. Farrelly, who has been at the Union stock yards in Chicago for almost twenty five years, is known to many of his friends as Jim Farrelly, others call him the "Irish lord," and to still others he is known as the "live stock commission king." A quarter of a century ago he was a poor Irish boy, working in the Chicago stock yards for $25 a month. Today he is credited with having the largest individual commission business in the country.

"Farrelly is a money getter, and the smartest Irishman in the live stock commission business in Chicago," said Chas. W. Lennon, manager for Armour & Co., as he talked yesterday of the firms coming to Sioux City, "and it is significant when he puts a branch in here."

Mr. Lennon said Mr. Farrelly had two brothers living in Iowa who are priests, one in the diocese of Dubuque and the other in the diocese of Sioux City. "I've been looking at Sioux City a long time," Mr. Farrelly said, when he was asked what had induced him to open a branch house here. "You see, there aren't any two ways about it, Sioux City is going to be a great live stock market in a short time."

"You are going to have another big packing plant here." "With a third house running there will be no stopping Sioux City. This town, in my honest opinion, is destined to be one of the greatest packing points, on the globe. Its largest advantage lies in the geographical location of the place. The ranges stretch away for fifteen hundred miles to the northwest while you have the feeding lots at your very door. Well, I'm one of you from now on."

For the present Peter Farrelly will have charge of the local branch office. He will be assisted by M. V. Burris, cattle buyer for the company, who has a wide acquaintance in the northwest, and James Hopkins, formerly with the Mollory Commission company.
