Honored Citizen Dead.

On the afternoon of Monday, Nov. 11 Mr. E. R. Barber died of diseases incident to age at his home in north Denison. Death came suddenly and unexpectedly and we have been unable to obtain from the stricken family the details of the useful and honorable life just closed. The funeral services will be held at the Presbyterian church on tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. We reserve our extended notice for our next issue and will only say at this time that we sympathize most sincerely with his sorrowing loved ones and that we feel that no man in Denison has led a more unassuming, but useful, helpful and most Christian life.

One of the meanest, most aggravating experiences in our newspaper experience confronted us last week in the non-arrival of our ready-print from Chicago. As we intended publishing one day late on account of the election returns we did not worry when the paper came a day late. When it did not show up Wednesday and we found there was no paper in town of the required size, we began telegraphing. It was Thursday before we could get any paper, and then we secured enough for only a portion of our edition. Our mad subscribers can take consolation in the fact that their mad was not a "patchin" to the way we felt about it.

The board of supervisors will take some action on the court house proposition at this session. The problem confronting the board is as to what shall be done for temporary quarters while the new building is being erected. We favor the proposition of the old darky preacher who urged that they build a new church with the bricks of the old ones and that they continue to use the old church until the new one was completed. The board is considering whether it is best to try to move the old court house and use it as temporary quarters, or tear it down and rent offices in different office buildings. Denison should offer the free use of the city hall for the purpose of holding court.

Mr. Harold Romans has accepted a position on the Review staff as local writer. Harold is a bright well educated boy, energetic, lively and likeable. We have confidence that his work will increase the interest of the REVIEW and we would ask all the friends of the paper to "put him next" to any item they may know.

Russian Beef for London Market. Washington, Oct. 31.—The United States consul at Birmingham reports to the state department that the agricultural department of Russia is taking steps which will prepare the way for that country to play an important part in supplying the London markets with beef in opposition to the American meat exporters. The report says that special steamers have been built with freezing chambers, the Russian government assisting by subsidies, and that it is intended they shall ply between a Russian port and London with huge cargoes of fresh meat.
