THE MESSAGE.

President Roosevelt's message to Congress has already done much to give strength and tone to the business world. It breathes the sane and healthy spirit of good Americanism. It sounds no note of alarm which would precipitate a lack of confidence and a consequent panic. It recognizes existent evils for just what they are, neither minifying nor magnifying their harmful tendencies. He recognizes, as must every sensible man, the necessity and economical advantages of combinations whether of labor or of capital, and urges such legislation as will prevent the evil tendencies of combinations without losing to the people the advantages which they bring. He argues against the use of tariff reduction as a primitive measure against combinations of capital using the unanswerable argument that the reduction of the tariff along such lines would if it did anything, first kill the individual competitor and eventually drive the American manufacturer from the field. He advises that anthracite coal be put on the free list, as was in reality intended by the framers of the present tariff law.

The President's resume of the effects of American control in Porto Rico and the Philippines, is one that appeals to the pride of every American citizen. His eulogy of the army is well deserved and he points the path of duty towards Cuba with no uncertain hand. The note of warning to irresponsible American republics is one which should be headed, as the doctrine, formulated by Hamilton and borrowed by Monroe, was never intended for the shielding of these so-called republics from the payment of their honest debts or for the encouragement of lawlessness among them.

The President is particularly strong in urging the continuation and extension of the reclamation of the arid lands of the west by irrigation. This is one of the great problems of the Nation and its correct solution will add ever increasing millions to the national wealth.

The paragraph relating to the reserving of public lands for bona fide settlers is a strong one and worthy of Congressional action.

The financial portion of the message supplemented by the able report of the Secretary of the Treasury has outlined a policy which will be for the best of the business interests of all the people if wisely carried out.

Our only regret is that the message does not deal with the great question of national suffrage—a question which is of paramount importance if free institutions are to be preserved.

For some reason the Chicago Tribune after inviting the opinion of the REVIEW on the question of ship subsidy, has seen fit to publish that opinion in a garbled and abridged condition. The REVIEW did not seek space in the Tribune for its editorial opinion, the Tribune should not have asked our opinion unless it was ready to publish it as given. No more unfair list of questions were ever presented to a supposedly intelligent set of men. The opinions of Iowa editors, as published, (we know not how many other replies were garbled or omitted) are various and show many shades of belief and degrees of thought on the subject. If the Tribune's questions were answered literally there could be but one reply, the Tribune evidently exercised great care about this. The whole thing is a species of sensational journalism, asking leading and prejudiced questions, to be answered on the spur of the moment, upon a question which presents a variety of phases and which should only be discussed after a full knowledge of all the facts involved. The selfish policy that because Iowa has no coast line it is not interested in carrying trade of its products, is too narrow to deserve serious condition. It will be noticed that the Tribune was ashamed to publish the questions as it expounded them and also that it was chary of allowing the introduction of the parallel between the subsidization of Chicago papers by otherwise useless fast mail traders and the subsidization of a merchant marine. We shall miss the receipt of these clever Tribune questions amazingly but we fear we have been so out spoken in this matter as to be stricken from the Tribune's inquiry list.

Meets Death in Saloon Brawl.

St. Joseph, Mich., Dec. 5.—Lee Shearer of Royalton township met death last night in a saloon brawl.

Shearer and Harry Brunke met in a saloon and in the fight that ensued, Shearer's jugular vein was ruptured.

It is alleged, by a vicious kick in the back after he had been knocked down by Brunke. Death was almost instantaneous. The fight was the outgrowth of an old feud. Brunke is under arrest.

Price of "Subjects" Advanced.

Indianapolis, Dec. 5.—The price of food bodies for dissection in medical colleges has advanced from $5 to $40 per pound before the grave robbing investigation was begun here, to from $20 to $75. It is said that an extra fine "subject" is worth $100. It is estimated that there are fewer than twenty bodies in the four medical colleges in the city, while the usual number at the beginning of winter terms exceeds 100.

Burglars' Victim Is Dying.

Niles, Mich., Dec. 5.—Mrs. Claypool, aged sixty, who was roughly handled by Frank Fleming and Arthur Griffith, self-confessed burglars, who entered Isaac Murphy's house here early yesterday morning, will probably die of her injuries. Physicians say that the burglars kicked Mrs. Claypool in the abdomen, causing probably fatal internal injuries.

Five Injured in Wreck.

Cleveland, Dec. 5.—Two freight trains on the Big Four met in a head-on collision at Linndale, a few miles west of this city, last night, and five members of the crews were seriously hurt. Brakeman William Gross may die. Both engines are demolished and a number of cars were telescoped.

Murderer to Follow Victim.

Philadelphia, Dec. 5.—"Barry" Johnstone, the actor who on Monday night shot and killed Miss Kate Hasset, leading woman at Keith's theater, and then attempted suicide, is rapidly growing weaker. The hospital physicians say there is absolutely no hope of his recovery.
