A Convincing Argument.

IS KILLED BY CORN.

North Dakota Postmaster is Smothered to Death.

Bismarck, N. D., Special, Jan. 16.—George W. Moffett, an old and well known farmer of Burleigh county, living twenty five miles southeast of this city, today was killed by the collapsing of a granary.

While we do not want to take advantage of the unfortunate man who was killed by the collapsing of an over-stored corn crib, we still have an impressive FACT here.

Can you now doubt us when we say that North Dakota is fast becoming a CORN producing state?

At the Pan-American Exposition North Dakota corn won second prize, silver medal, in competition with great corn states.

It is the land of wheat, corn, oats, barley and flax. Stock raising brings big profits.

Dow City is about to feel the effects of the coal famine which has caused so much suffering in different parts of the country this winter. There is not a pound of coal in town that jaw bone and money will buy and it is hard to tell just when there will be Some of the people have only enough ahead for two or three days, but as necessity remedies a great many things, so it does in this case, and we will have to grind the old axe and take a "hike" to the wood pile.

Washington Post:—"Oh, yes," said James K. Decker, of South Carolina. "I went to the president's reception last night. It was the first big affair of the kind I ever attended. When I got up to the president I leaned over and whispered my name to the man who did the announcing. He said it alright to Col. Roosevelt.

"How do you do, Mr. Decker?" said Col. Roosevelt.

"How do you do, Mr. Decker?" said Mrs. Roosevelt.

"How do you do, Mr. Smecker—Lecker—Trecker—Creeker?" it went all the way down the line, until, by Jove, when I got to the end the last lady called me just plain Smith."

The Inebriety Law Valid.

Judge McVey of the District court at Des Moines in a carefully studied opinion has sustained the constitutionality of the inebriety law enacted by the last legislature. The attack upon the law was based on a claim that it is unconstitutional inasmuch as it provides for the arrest and incarceration of a person without indictment or trial by jury. Inebriety is not a crime, neither is it insanity, and it was contended that the state has no authority to commit one suffering from it to an asylum or to restrain him of his liberty. Judge McVey ruled that these objections were not well taken and that the law should be permitted to stand.—Gate City.

Realistic.

He—I had a realistic dream last night. She—Indeed! What was it? "Oh, I dreamed I had proposed to you and you had turned me over to your father." "Yes, yes. And what did father say?" "Oh, I don't know. I only know I woke up and found myself on the floor."—Yonkers Statesman.
