The pastor of the Baptist church announced on Sunday evening that having been requested he would in the near future preach a series of sermons to young women. He hesitated to enter upon the discussion of themes of such fine and delicate quality but said with the help of suggestions given by the feminine portion of his congregation he would even dare to undertake it.

Miss Julia Lester purchased recently from E. O. Thiem of Denison a pen of the Partridge Wyandottes. Mr. Thiem originated this variety of Wyandottes, beginning his experiments in 1890. E. W. Lester of this city sold him a Partridge Cockerel and the writer sold him a Black Breasted Red Game Cockerel in that year which he used in crossing. The birds purchased by Miss Lester show traces of both ancestors, but are of the Wyandotte type in shape. They are very handsome and are said to be great layers. Odebolt Chronicle.

Harthun and Herman, went to Schleswig and got out an issue of his paper for him. This was an act of kindness worth remembering. There are no kind hearted people than Prof. Harthun and his family.

March 12th The Date.
It is curious how mistakes will occur and then perpetuate themselves. By a typographical error the date for the sale of the old-court house was stated in a recent publication of the REVIEW, as being set for March 20 instead of March 12. In the next issue we undertook to correct the error and wrote "The date of sale of the old court house is March 12 instead of March 20, as stated in our last issue." In some way the words "March 12 instead of" were omitted, so the mistake was not only not correct but accentuated. We hope this item will contain no errors. The date is March 12.

ABOVE HIGH C.
Miss Gifford Settles a Dispute as to Her Singing.

After the wonderful recital given by Miss Electa Gifford there was much dispute among Denison musicians as to how high Miss Gifford sang. The dispute has been settled by a letter received by Mr. B. J. Sibbert. Miss Gifford writes "I sang F once above high C, also sang E twice and D several times. These high notes are so easy for me that few realize they are so high." It may be added that Miss Gifford's range is the same as Patti's.

In the course of her note to Mr. Sibbert Miss Gifford adds "I enjoyed my sojourn in Denison very much indeed, and am much pleased that the people liked me."

Denison music lovers would be more than delighted to have Miss Gifford come again.

REMOVES TO HARRISON.
Mr. Hugh McWilliams Family Leave Crawford After a Residence of 43 Years.

Mr. Hugh McWilliams and family have decided to move to Harrison county, and have shipped their household goods. Their son Ray has purchased a farm near Woodbine, and he is desirous that his parents and sisters live with him. Mr. Hugh McWilliams came to Crawford county in 1860, and has made his home here ever since. Until recent years he has lived on the old homestead now occupied by Mr. E. C. Sage, where he and his estimable wife reared their sons and daughters. During the later years he has lived near town just east of the brick yard. In the removal of this excellent family the church and social circles will suffer to a great extent, as the entire family has always been more or less identified in all social and church functions, and all join in wishing them success in their new home, and trust that they may find ample time to visit their old home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Voss entertained at six o'clock dinner on Wednesday night, the dinner was very elegant and consisted of six courses. The guests were Mesdames Young and Jensen, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Laub, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Romans, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Romans, Mr. and Mrs. Scriber, Mr. and Mrs. Gullick, Mr. Kuehnle and Mr. Simms. No one gives more charming or successful dinners than Mrs. Voss.

Mrs. F. H. Morgan entertained a very jolly company on Thursday complimentary to Mrs. Jensen, each guest brought an empty bottle and the hostess had provided needles and thread and material for the guests to dress the bottle. Some very artistic and some very funny dolls were the results of the fun. The guests then tried for the prize by attempting to cut a string from which a package was suspended through the folding doors, Mrs. Sewell received the prize, a bottle of perfume. Mrs. Morgan served very nice two course refreshments.
