FANCY WORK. A pretty blotter—Blotters are always an acceptable gift and easy to make, one style I have made is as follows: Cut two pieces heart shape from the back of kid gloves or chamois skin, pink the edges with a pinking iron. Then paint or gild flowers those your friend likes the best and a quotation something like this "The Pen becomes a Clarion" on front, Near the top fasten together with a nice bow of satin ribbon after some leaves of blotting paper have been put between.

A nice book mark for a dear one birthday remembrance made as follows:—Satin ribbon 9 inches long and 2 inches wide. At intervals of every inch after leaving one and one half inches at each end and on each side cut slots the width of baby ribbon, then run baby ribbon through these slots and fringe each end 1/2 inch. These make a pretty and useful present which your friend will appreciate.

THE TRUE VAMPIRE.

An Experience With the Blood Sucking Animal in India. Chancing one evening to observe a rather large bat enter an outhouse from which there was no other egress than by the doorway, I was fortunate in being able to procure a light and thus to proceed to the capture of the animal. Upon finding itself pursued it took three or four turns around the apartment, when down dropped what at the moment I supposed to be its young and which I deposited in my handkerchief. After a somewhat tedious chase I then secured the object of my pursuit, which proved to be a fine female megaderma. I then looked to the other bat which I had plucked up and to my considerable surprise found it to be a small kind of pipistrelle, which is exceedingly abundant throughout India.

The individual now referred to was feeble from loss of blood, which it was evident the megaderma had been sucking from a large and still bleeding wound under and behind the ear, and the very obviously suctorial form of the mouth of the megaderma was itself sufficient to hint the strong probability of such being the case. During the very short time that elapsed before I entered the outhouse it did not appear that the depredator had once alighted, and I am satisfied that it sucked the vital fluid from its victim as it flew, having probably seized it on the wing, and that it was seeking a quiet nook where it might devour the body at leisure.

I kept both animals separate till next morning, when, procuring a convenient cage, I first put in the megaderma, and after observing it for some time I placed the pipistrelle with it. No sooner was the latter perceived than the other fastened upon it with the ferocity of a tiger, again seizing it behind the ear, and made several efforts to fly off with it; but, finding it must needs stay within the precincts of the cage, it soon hung by the hind legs to one side of its prison and after sucking its victim till no more blood was left commenced devouring it and soon left nothing but the head and some portions of the limbs—"Beast and Man in India."

To Make Him Happy. Old Peterby is rich and stingy. In the event of his death his nephew is to inherit his property. A friend of the family said to the old gentleman: "I hear your nephew is going to marry. On that occasion you ought to do something to make him happy."

"I will," said Mr. Peterby; "I'll pretend that I am dangerously ill!"—London Telegraph.

Too Much. Mrs. Marryat—Mamma is talking of closing her house and coming to live with us. Do you think you could support both of us?

Mr. Marryat—My dear, I can support you very nicely now, but I'm afraid your mother would be insupportable—Catholic Standard and Times.

Still More Exclusive. Mrs. Woodly—There's nothing like a college education to open the way to exclusive society. Since my son started to go to the university he's got into the Four Hundred.

Mrs. McGinty—My son's doing even better at college. He's on the nine.—Philadelphia Press.
