BLOOMERS O, DENISON O

The Boston Bloomers and Denison Play Good Ball

14 INNINGS AND NO SCORES

One of the Best Games of the Season, a Fair Sized Crowd Witnesses the Game Home Team Plays Good Ball.

On Thursday the Denison nine met the Boston Bloomers, a travelling aggregation composed of a number of professional ball players and some women, who can also play ball.

At first the game was regarded as a joke but when inning after inning passed without a score, the spectators began to find that they were watching one of the best ball games of the season. Fourteen innings were played without a score, and the game was called on account of lack of time. Certainly the spectators got their money's worth in good ball playing without counting the novelty of seeing a girl who could throw straight. The Bloomers are travelling all about this section and have defeated nearly all the local nines about here. Their pitcher is evidently a professional and a good batter as well. Only a few of the visiting team went to bat, and it is guessed that the "real girls" did not attempt this part of the game. The Denison team played excellently, making few errors and playing a close, clean game. The batting was first class and the pitcher Robinault stood the severe strain of fourteen innings in splendid form. Pomeroy proved his worth by a faultless game as short stop and at the bat. Some of the side-liners tried to have some fun at the expense of the "Bloomers," but there was little doing except good ball playing.

The pitcher's heart went pit-a-pat. As he watched the Bloomers bloom He could not even see the bat. And his heart was filled with gloom.

There was Carrie and Lillie and Esther and Pearl. Each just a peach of a dear little girl. And that young pitcher's heart it was in such a whirl. That to save his dear life that ball would not twirl.

The man who stood on second base Just muffed a pretty fly. He showed a sweetly smiling face. Said he'd "something in his eye."

Was it Carrie or Lillie or Esther or Grace That brought the glad smile to the veterans face. And made all the bleacher boys envy his place. And long to hold down his old second base.

The man on first never saw the ball Though loud the captain cried. "I stopped a moment, that was all To watch the bloomers slide."

Was it Carrie or Lillie or Esther or Sue Who threw herself forward as onward she flew. It is easy to talk but what would you do? If the man on first base had only been you?

The ball boys are all very mad And gone are all their joys. For five sweet girls, — tis said, tis said They f'ud were only boys.

Was it Carrie or Billie or Esther or John They all looked so neat when their bloomers they don. We wonder, alas, who our smiles rested on Was it Carrie or Billie or Esther or John?

Highest Quality! Lowest Price!

CAN THEY GO TOGETHER? This is a question naturally everyone would ask; because to the average mind high prices would mean high quality. But is that right? No, positively no. Many stores get a reputation for high quality by charging high prices, because the idea of low quality brings the thought of mean quality. Now, our store is an ardent example of the fact that high quality and low prices can go together.
