School of Journalism

NEWSPAPER and college circles are deeply interested in the plans of Joseph Pulitzer, proprietor of the New York World, who has provided the sum of $2,000,000 for the purpose of establishing a school of journalism at Columbia university, New York city. It is the idea of Mr. Pulitzer that Columbia shall conduct a school of journalism which will hold toward the university a relation similar to that of other professional schools—as the law school, the school of medicine and the school of mines—and like them be national in scope.

Mr. Pulitzer, outlining the purposes of his gift, states that in the new school students purposing to enter upon the career of journalism will find accessible at Columbia courses of study that will for the profession of journalism be equivalent to what other professional schools supply for other professions, while young men already at work on newspapers and desiring to advance themselves more rapidly by the cultivation of their aptitudes may find in these courses a valuable assistance. Mr. Pulitzer believes that this course of instruction will be an advantage to students immediately and to the press of the whole country ultimately.

An important feature of the organization of the school of journalism, which will be the first institution of the kind in the world, will be an advisory board, to be nominated by the donor. This board will aid in devising a plan and course of instruction that it is hoped will meet every requirement on the scholastic as well as the more practical side of the newspaper business. The trustees of Columbia have already received $1,000,000 of the donation, and the erection of a suitable building to accommodate the new school will be begun at once. A site has been selected and it is hoped that the building may be pushed to completion so that it will be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1904. The estimated cost of the building, fully equipped and furnished, will be about $500,000. If at the end of three years the school of journalism is in successful operation Mr. Pulitzer will give to Columbia an additional $1,000,000, the income of half of which will be devoted to the maintenance of the school, and the income of the remaining $500,000 will be expended for purposes to be hereafter agreed upon between the donor and the university. Joseph Pulitzer, who has thus so liberally contributed to the welfare of future generations of newspaper workers, is a native of Budapest, Hungary, and is in his fifty-seventh year. His father was a man of education and wealth, but when he died it was discovered that his fortune had melted away, and at the age of fourteen young Joseph set out to make a living for himself and to help his mother. He drifted to Paris, to London, and finally to America, landing in New York in

Creseus Again Champion.

Lowers World's Trotting Record One-Quarter of Second. Wichita, Kan., Oct. 20.—Such an ovation as was given Creseus when he trotted a mile in 1:59 1/2 and made a new world's record has rarely been witnessed. The stallion was nearly smothered, so eager were the people to pat or get near enough to touch him. The day was simply perfect and the track in prime condition. He was paced by a running mate, Mike the Tramp, to a sulky. Creseus had no wind-break whatever. The first quarter was made in 30 seconds, the half in 57 1/2, the three-quarters in 1:30 and the mile in 1:59 1/2. George H. Ketcham, who owns Creseus and drove him, said: "The conditions were perfect. When I was here week before last the track was wet, but I saw its advantages and determined to come back. The result justified my expectations. I knew before the race that the stallion would beat his record, but I did not anticipate a triumph so complete. I shall go to Oklahoma City and Fort Scott right away to keep engagements and that will be the last time that Creseus will appear in public."

MAIL POUCH ROBBER ESCAPES.

A. E. Bell Gets Away as the Train Reaches Philadelphia. Philadelphia, Oct. 20.—Albert E. Bell, the mail pouch thief and forger who was brought to this city from Denver by Deputy United States Marshals G. H. Baker and G. H. Davis, eluded his guards and is now at liberty. When the train reached the Pennsylvania railroad station Davis and Bell went to the toilet apartment of the Pullman car, and while the deputy marshal was washing his face the prisoner walked to the platform of the car, mingling with the crowd of passengers and disappeared. For nearly three hours after the swindler had made his escape Davis and Baker wandered about in search of him, and finally notified the local police authorities.

Government and city detectives are now endeavoring to locate Bell, but he has the advantage of a long start and the officers are without a clew. Bell was also known as Crosby and Hammond. After his arrest in Denver he admitted having stolen a mail pouch from a Pennsylvania railroad train. The authorities assert that Bell must have realized nearly a half million dollars by his robbery.

The dead man left a note in which he exonerated his brother of intentional wrong doing.

Attempt in Daylight to Blow Up Bank.

Newburg, Ore., Oct. 20.—For two hours this morning this place was practically under control of a gang of bandits, whose object was to blow up the building of the Bank of Newburg and loot the vaults. Though several charges of dynamite were used the steel vault failed to give way, and the bandit departed on horseback toward Portland. The vault contained probably $200,000. The building was practically wrecked.

Lynchers Get Into Trouble.

Cody, Wyo., Oct. 20.—W. H. Smith, in custody at Basin, Wyo., has confessed to complicity in mobbing the jail at Basin last July, when Gorman and Walters, two murderers, were shot by the mob and Deputy Sheriff Prince killed and Deputy Meade wounded. Smith gives the names of thirty-five other men in the mob. A grand jury called by the governor of Wyoming met at Basin. It is feared an attempt will be made to kill Smith.

SIAMESE BELIEFS.

Some Peculiar Notions of a Very Superstitious People. "The Siamese are a very superstitious people," says Ernest Young, author of the "Kingdom of the Yellow Isle." "They have many peculiar explanations of natural phenomena. Thunder, for instance, is 'the sky crying.' They believe that in the realm above is a horrible giant, whose wife has a violent and uncertain temper. When they quarrel the echo of his voice comes in long, rolling notes from the clouds. If he is very angry he throws his hatchet at his unruly spouse, and when this ponderous weapon strikes the floor of heaven the thunderbolt falls through and comes to earth.

"Falling stars are accounted for by the fact that the angels occasionally indulge in rowdy throwing at one another. When these angels begin all insist upon getting into the bath at once the water splashes over the side, and it rains. The winds that sigh in the night are the voices of babies that have lost their way in their travels to the land beyond the grave.

"When a Siamese dies he is not buried, but his corpse, fully dressed and then wrapped in a winding sheet, is placed in a sitting posture in a copper urn. A tube is placed in his mouth, and through this a mixture of quicksilver and honey is poured into the body. In this way it is kept for a long time, often for years. Eventually it is burned, and the ashes are carefully preserved. The souls of those whose bones at least are not burned are supposed to become slaves of a horrid taskmaster with a head like a dog, a human body and the temper of a fiend. He sits for all time with his feet in the fires of hell, and it is the duty of his slaves to keep these fires from growing too hot. To do this they must carry water in open wicker baskets through all eternity."

ENGINE ROOM HEROES.

Wonderful and Perilous Feats That Are Performed at Sea.

Nobody who has not been to sea can imagine all the things that can happen to a ship's machinery nor properly estimate the cleverness and ingenuity used up in repairs. The youth who leaves his shop full of wonderful and costly machines has another complete education waiting for him at sea in the wonderful things that can be accomplished in time with a plain, ordinary hammer and chisel, a rather worn-out file and a great deal of ingenuity. I should like to have been aboard that steamer disabled in the Red sea where they took a boat davit, straightened it out in a rivet forge, made a new boiler feed pump piston rod out of it and went on again, or better still, on the ship that lost a propeller and the end of her tall shaft off the west coast of Africa, to replace which they were obliged to move her cargo, pump her forward compartments full to sink her bow and raise her stern out of water, drag the broken shaft, several tons in weight, out through the long alley (too low and cramped to stand up in), plug up the hole behind it, drag in the spare shaft and couple it up and lower the new propeller down over the stern, all while she kicked and wallowed in a heavy sea, and finally had to lower the chief engineer over after the propeller, where he sat tied to a flimsy staging making all fast and secure while the vessel jounced him up and down in the sea till he bled at the nose and ears and the crew kept the sharks at bay with pistols and boat hooks to prevent them from eating him up before he finished the job. That was seventy-two hours in which the young and aspiring engineer might learn a host of valuable and interesting things.—Benjamin
