LIBRARY GIFTS.

Mrs. C. Green has presented the library with two years of the Christian Standard. Mr. George Lass has given a nice art book to the library. Both of their gift are appreciated by the library board.

ON TO WASHINGTON.

On Saturday the Crawford county contingent consisting of Mr. C. L. Voss, and Mr. E. Gulick of Denison, and Mr. P. D. McMahon of Charter Oak, left for Washington to attend the Inaugural. They will be gone about two weeks. They will be special guests of Secretary Shaw and will have every opportunity of seeing the great spectacle under the most favorable auspices. They expect to visit New York City before they return. We wish them the best time imaginable.

NOTHING LIKE IT.

Many friends will be pleased to learn that Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McClellan have decided that there is no place like the old home after all and that after a sojourn of nearly a year in the west they have returned to Iowa and will again make Denison their home. They are now at Carroll visiting their son John, but expect in a few days to greet their old friends again Little Georgia McClellan, who accompanied her grandparents on their western journey, is now at home.

A HAPPY MARRIAGE.

The marriage of Mr. Oscar Fienhold and Miss Jennie Owens took place at St. Rose of Lima church, Wednesday morning Feb. 22, 1905, Rev. Father Farrelly officiating.

Mr. Fienhold is a model young man and is fast proving himself an intelligent and practical farmer. Miss Owens has taught several terms of school in this county and is a winsome little lady, who possesses many virtues.

Mr. and Mrs. Fienhold will reside on one of his father's farms in Paradise township.

DEATH OF MARCUS KAHLER.

Mr. Marcus Kahler, brother-in-law of Mr. Carl F. Kuehnle and father of Hugo V. Waldo E. and Miss Elsie Kahler all well known in Denison died at his home at Traer, Iowa, early this morning. He had been ill but a short time with pneumonia, in fact it was not until last night that his son Waldo who is with the Bank of Denison, learned that his father was seriously ill. He started for Traer at once but arrived after his father's death. The funeral services will be held on Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Kuehnle leaves tomorrow to attend the obsequies.

Mr. Kahler was a prominent man in his community. He was a lumber dealer at Traer and Buckingham, Iowa, had been Mayor of Traer and president of the school board for several years. He was well known in K. P. circles as a prominent member of the Grand Lodge. He was a native of Schleswig, Germany. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to his sorrowing loved ones, whose only consolation can be that his was an honorable, useful and well spent life.

TAKEN UP ESTRAY.

Kiron.....	7:40 a. m.

MRS. CRISWELL ENTERTAINS.

On Friday Mrs. O. M. Criswell and Miss Hart were hostesses to two delightful parties.

In the afternoon twenty ladies gathered with their fancy work and enjoyed a most social visit. Mrs. J. B. Romans gave three readings in her inimitable way and furnished the ladies no end of pleasure. Mrs. Martin sang beautifully a number of selections.

As a finale Mrs. Criswell and the Misses Hart and Clarks served very elegant refreshments. Mrs. George Knight of Charter Oak who leaves for her new home in California next Wednesday was the out of town guest.

On Friday evening the same ladies entertained a company young ladies. A game the answer being authors was played and much enjoyed. The Misses Clarks gave some exceedingly well played duets and Miss Polster charmed every one by her magnificent singing.

Mesdames Gulick, Smith and Randall assisted Mrs. Criswell and Miss Hart in serving. The parties were both charming.

A GREAT SATURDAY.

Last Saturday was a great trading day in Denison. People were here from all parts of the county, both sides of Main street were lined with teams and the stores and walks were crowded. One of the best investments Denison ever made was in putting in sixteen foot cement walks that made a wide promenade all about the business portion of the city.

The Gigantic Unloading Sale at Bamford's proved a great attraction and the store was crowded during all the shopping hours. During the afternoon and evening a Logan orchestra furnished music and during the concert there was standing room only. Mr. Bamford and Mr. Gleiser who is managing the sale, were highly pleased with the opening day. The Challenge Sale at the Boys store also attracted large crowds interested in the cheap prices and the prospect of a merchandise war. The other stores, while offering nothing in advertised "Sales" were kept busy waiting on trade.

From talks with buyers we learn that many fine bargains were obtainable and there is every prospect that the fortnight inaugurated last Saturday will soon include many merchants and make Denison the Mecca for bargain hunters during the next two weeks. For ourselves we cannot see where the merchants gain by throwing away their profits and in some cases selling goods below the actual cost, but that is their business and the people seem to enjoy it. From present indications the next two weeks will witness the biggest sales of merchandise Denison has ever known.

The K. P. banquet will be held tonight at the Opera House to celebrate the 41st anniversary of the founding of the order. A program will be given as followed by a supper and a dance.

The North-Western Line

One of the most interesting series of articles on the subject of the great railroads of the country that has appeared recently, is that from the pen of Frank H. Spearman, recently published in the Saturday Evening Post, and since printed in book form by Scribner. The chapter descriptive of the Chicago & North-Western R'y., as been published by the passenger department of that line in pamphlet form for general distribution, and will be sent to any address on receipt of 2 cents for postage.

American Students and the People.

It goes without saying that it is no longer in the American student to gain notoriety by making pandemonium in quiet towns and indulging in other reckless diversions than by plotting assassination or egging on assassins or even cheering the assassin's foul deed when it is done. It is noteworthy, however, in this age of the multiplication of the student class in American life that students hold aloof from popular movements here even while they admire and praise the advanced ideas of students in disturbed countries abroad.

The Russian student is looked upon as a liberal and a patriot, and the same has been true in other countries where masses are at odds with rulers. The French student, the German student, the Italian student, has had each his day as a reformer, agitator, revolutionist or what not. Conditions in America do not call for student plotters, but there are popular causes in this country today calling for supporters, yet the voice of the student as a student is seldom heard. Nobody defers to the student or tries to make student converts.

The aloofness of the student class from popular movements—for that is what it appears to be to outsiders—may have its saving side, but at first blush it seems to be abnormal. The students come from the people, and yet it is a common saying among college juniors even that the mass of the people are ignorant and don't know what is good for them. If this attitude is a mere schoolboy conceit, to be abandoned as soon as the victim of it gets a proper view of his own limitations, there is no great harm to come from it. Where so much is made of college training and of education it is natural to the young man who separates from his plain kind to enter the guild of scholars to foster loyalty to learning just as he fosters loyalty to his alma mater.

But extremes in this loyalty to learning is not alone likely to beget an over-weening self confidence. It may end in snobbishness and a wreckage of usefulness. Unlearned men have become magnificently great through power won among the people. Lincoln believed in the people, and, first moving them, he brought the educated wise men to his feet for instruction. Had Lincoln deemed the masses ignorant he would never have launched the emancipation proclamation upon the uncertain waves of popular approval and support. Grant trusted the nobility of the common people and paid high tribute to it when at Appomattox he said, "Take your horses home to do your spring plowing." Had he deemed the masses ignorant he would have set Lee's soldiers at work in the corn and cotton fields under Federal guards. A guild of scholarship is all right, but it must not assume a monopoly of all useful knowledge or hold that learning is a mystery sacred from all but the few high priests. The father of a certain bright university boy, who is destined to land high if he lives, gives him a daily calling down in this plain folk language: "If you know at forty one-hundredth part of what you think you know at twenty-five you'll be a great man." This father carried a saber at Appomattox, then shipped before the mast as a real start in life. Although one of the "ignorant" mass, he has made enough money by honest means to give his hopeful eight years' university and professional training and "ed ucate" two other children besides. He is the kind of man that it helps a student to rub up against and the kind to be found nowhere except in the ranks of the common people. Should the son become another Webster it will be owing solely to the "ignorance" of the soldier-sailor father. Such is American life.
