"LOHENGRIN," THE MOST POPULAR OF OPERAS.
"Lohengrin," the most popular opera in the world and probably the finest work of the great German master, Richard Wagner, will open the Opera Festival at Boyd's Theatre, Omaha, on Thursday evening, April 20, and will probably make this occasion a rare society as well as musical event. Like most of the other of his notable works, Wagner gained his inspiration for this masterpiece from the old German legends and in the case of "Lohengrin," it was that of the Knights of the Holy Grail, which subsequently gave him the subject matter for the sacred festival music drama of Parsifal. As presented by the Henry W. Savage English Grand Opera Company it will be sung in its entirety, including the overture, including the immortal Wedding March, so familiar to every school girl in the country. Lohengrin's poetic "Swan Song," "Elsa's Dream Song," the masterly orchestra prelude to the third act and all the other stirring marches and sonorous harmonies. The production is most complete and follows with unusual fidelity the best traditions of the German stage. The festival will continue for three days and on Friday evening Bizet's "Carmen" will be sung, Saturday afternoon, Wagner's "Tannhauser," Saturday evening Verdi's "Il Trovatore."

Out-of-town opera parties are being formed and excursion rates all over on all the railroads.

Malleability of Gold.
The malleability of gold is so great that a single grain may be divided into 2,000,000 parts and a cubic inch into 9,523,809,523 parts, each of which may be distinctly seen by the naked eye. A grain and a half of gold may be beaten into leaves of one inch square, which, if intersected by parallel lines drawn at right angles to each other and distance only the one-hundredth part of an inch, will produce 25,000,000 little squares, each of which may be distinctly seen without the aid of a glass.

A Physician in Every Menagerie.
All animal keepers are supposed to study the needs and ailments of the animals under their charge, and they understand the best methods to coax their dumb friends into submission; but, in addition to these keepers, every circus and menagerie has one or more physicians who prescribe for the sick animals. An imported wild animal is too valuable to lose without an effort to save its life, and all that science knows is brought into requisition to cure it of any complaint.

Wouldn't Give the Pill.
"So she is going to keep the ring, even though the engagement is broken?"
"Yes," answered the gloomy young man, "and that isn't the worst of it. She didn't even condescend to tell me that polite story about cherishing it as a memento of a very dear friendship."
—Washington Star.

Top and Bottom.
"My friend," said the long haired passenger to the young man in the seat opposite, "to what end has your life work been directed?"
"To both ends," was the reply. "I have the only first class hat and shoe store in the village."

They Were Playing Together.
He (referring to music)—Don't you think I'm slow and a little too soft? She (absently)—Yes. But, then, you have wealth and position, and that counts for something.

Receiving a new truth is adding new sense.—Liefbig.

They Got the "Glassy Eye."

A certain confectioner in New York, who caters chiefly to the little folks of the neighborhood, lately arranged his shop window with great care in preparation for a local festivity. The crowning attraction of the whole was a large chocolate tiger with most realistic green eyes made of glass marbles which had cost the designer 25 cents apiece. In the tiger's mouth was a card bearing the inscription, "Nothing in this window over 5 cents a quarter pound."

A crowd of youngsters quickly assembled on the sidewalk, and presently, after much spelling over the placard, two of them invaded the shop and deposited a nickel upon the counter.

"Say, mister," began the smaller boy earnestly, "gimme a quarter of a pound of tiger—the piece with the eyes in!"

An Odd Wedding Custom.

A unique wedding custom prevails in Manchuria. The bride and her attendants, all mounted on stilts, proceed through the main streets of the village to the domicile of the groom, who meets the procession and conducts it to the place where the ceremony is to be performed. He and his friends are also on stilts. Social prominence is indicated not by richness of attire, but by the height of the stilts worn by the assembled guests. The higher the rank of the wedded pair the loftier the stilts they wear. If, as sometimes happens, the contracting parties are of differing social standing the effect is more than usually ludicrous.

Having Fun After Death.
A humorist in Japan who jested all his life told his friends when he was dying that his body was not to be washed after death, but was to be taken at once to the family temple to be cremated. When he died his instructions were followed. As soon as it was set on fire the mourners were astonished by several loud explosions. At first they were inclined to take to their heels, but curiosity got the better of fear, and careful inspection showed that the humorist had stowed away a large number of firecrackers about his person before his death.

The Bulldog's Nose.
Froude told Dr. Boyd an interesting little anecdote of an Oxford undergraduate who was asked in an examination in Paley's "Evidences" if he could mention a solitary instance of the divine goodness which he had discovered for himself. "Yes," he replied, "the conformation of the nose of the bulldog. Its nose is so retracted that it can hang on to the bull and yet breathe freely. But for this it would soon have to let go."

The Ideal.
It is in making endless additions to self, in the endless expansion of its powers, in endless growth in wisdom and beauty, that the spirit of the human race finds its ideal. To reach this ideal culture is an indispensable aid, and that is the true value of culture.

Appearances Deceptive.
Mr. Headstall—That horse you bought yesterday is a vicious looking animal. Is he kind? Mr. Cropper—Kind? I should think so. Why, when he came out of the stable he stood upon his hind legs and tried to embrace me.—Puck.

Work and Worry.
Weary Walker—Dis paper says dat worry kills more feller's dan work. Tired Tatters—I reckon dat's right, but dey ain't nothin' wot worries me like worry.—Atlanta Constitution.

Opinion in good men is but knowledge in the making.—Milton.

A Belated Prayer.

A good anecdote is related of a young minister who was supplying the pulpit of the Wrentham Congregational church during the absence of its pastor, the Rev. Elisha Fisk, better known as "Priest Fisk," whose pastorate in this church covered a period of fifty-six years.

Upon opening the Bible the young minister came across the following notice, which he read: "Mr. Libbius Porter desires the prayers of the congregation, that his loss may be sanctified for his good."

Signs of suppressed merriment appeared through the congregation, but the cause was a complete mystery to the young minister, who upon arriving at the home of Mr. Fisk for lunch inquired of Mrs. Fisk the cause of the unseemly hilarity.

She informed him he had read an old notice, used by her husband as a bookmark. It had been presented by Mr. Porter a year or two before, upon the death of his third wife, Mr. Porter, with his fourth bride, sat in the congregation while it was being read.—Boston Herald.

Enthusiastic Bird Architect.

The process of the building of a bird's nest is always interesting, and the most wonderful of all nests, those of the weaver birds, can always be seen in the making by any one who will buy a few males of the African red billed weaver, which cost about half a crown each. This is a little bird much like a small hen sparrow, with a bright red bill and decked in the breeding season with a pink cap and breast and a black mask. He is an enthusiastic architect and in France is always sold as travailleur, the worker. Even in the cage he will weave any fibrous material in, and out of the wires till they are covered, and in an aviary he will construct beautiful round nests with the greatest enthusiasm, pausing occasionally to swear at fellow craftsmen who presume to criticize his efforts or cast a larcenous eye on his materials.—London Express.

His Voice Needed Filing.
There is a young medical student living in Westport who has decided not to speak to a girl he knows. He was calling on the young woman recently, and during the evening he volunteered to sing. When he had concluded his song he turned to the girl. "I'm thinking of taking voice culture," he said. "Do you know of a good teacher whose charge is reasonable?" "I know the very one for you," she replied. "His name is Taylor. Give me a card, and I'll write down his telephone number for you." The young man gave her the card. Next day he called Taylor up on the telephone. "Is this Mr. Taylor, the vocal teacher?" he asked. "The what?" came over the wire. "The vocal teacher." "Naw," was the reply. "I don't teach nothin'. I file saws."—Kansas City Times.

Try.
Try to be something in this world, and you will be something. Aim at excellence, and excellence will be attained. This is the greatest secret of success and eminence. "I cannot do it" never accomplished anything. "I will try" has wrought wonders.

Man's Vanity.
There is no exaggerated and barefaced compliment a man will not swallow greedily if it be served up by a woman. And his complacency under the process of swallowing is something delicious to witness.—Lady's Realm.

Deference of American Girls.
A generally ignored point in assessing the many reasons why American girls are so popular is the very captivating shade of deference with which they treat those older than themselves.—Lady's Pictorial
