THE DECREASING POPULATION.

The Hon. W. T. Shepherd of Harlan, a member of the World's Fair commission was in the city yesterday. Speaking of the state census, Mr. Shepherd said that he was not surprised of the falling off in the population. "The price of land in the state of Iowa, which has now reached $100 mark per acre, is entirely too high," said he in substance, "when we take into consideration we have not the wage earners to make this land a paying investment. If we expect to increase our numbers we must put down the price of land, or make it an inducement for the manufacturing establishments to locate in every part of the state. We are not giving them the encouragement we should, "There is too much money in the banks too," he continued. "Instead of bragging on this condition, we should rather feel that it represents a condition, that is unfortunate, to say the least. This money should be placed somewhere where it will do something in the way of promoting industries, which is necessary to make the Iowa land worth what we ask for it. With proper surroundings and encouragement to wage earners to locate here, we can make Iowa lands worth the present valuation. As it is now, nonemigrants shoot clear over the state and are going to the western states and to Canada where they can find lands on which to earn a living. —Register & Leader.

WILL BE A SOLDIER.

Mr. Geo. Richardson hands us the following clipping from the Kingfisher, Oklahoma Star relative to Mr. F. L. Boynton formerly a well known resident of West Side.

Our fellow citizen, F. L. Boynton, who has in a possession risen from a captain of a company of the Oklahoma National guard to a captain of a company in the Spanish-American war and later lieutenant colonel in the National Guard of Oklahoma has just received official notice from the war department at Washington, D. C., that he will be commissioned as a colonel of any volunteer troops hereafter raised. It will be remembered that last month he passed a three day examination before a board of five officers of the regular army and that they recommended him for a commission. This is the first Oklahoma examination. The notification from the department follows:

Washington, April 18, 1905.

MR. FRANK L. BOYNTON,
Kingfisher, Oklahoma Territory.
Sir:—I have the honor to inform you that, under the provision of section 23 of the act approved January 21, 1903, entitled "An act to promote the efficiency of the militia," etc, and with the approval of the President, record has been made in this department of the fact that you have undergone examination in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary of War, and that the duly constituted board in your case have submitted a certificate stating that you are qualified for commission as colonel of infantry in any volunteer force which may hereafter be called for under the authority of Congress.

This qualification will expire, by limitation of your age, March 14, 1918. Please acknowledge receipt, and when a call for a volunteer force seems imminent, notify The Military Secretary of the Army, Washington, D. C., of your address.

Very respectfully,
W. P. HALL, Military Secretary.

Chicago is wonderfully if not fearfully made for according to the census returns it has more Germans than any city except Berlin and Hamburg. More Bohemians than any city save Prague; more Irish than any other city save Dublin; more Scandinavians than are to be found in any other city save Stockholm and more Jews than are to be found in Palestine. It has got something of everything good and bad and according to the statistics very much of the latter.—Estherville Enterprise.

The census of Carroll is completed and shows the city to have a population of 3,340 against 2,882 five years ago. This shows a growth of 454 in five years.—Coon Rapids, Enterprise.

JEFFERSON BEE.

The George D. Perkins gubernatorial boom is the liveliest political propaganda on the list to-day.

The next legislature should correct the Iowa system of double taxation, which is indefensible from any standpoint of reason or logic. If A. owns a farm upon which B. holds a mortgage, let A. pay upon the equity he holds, in the land, and let B. pay upon the mortgage. At present A. pays free tax on the land, and B. pays on the mortgage too—though if B. happens to be an eastern money lender we can't make him do it. Most of the states have laws which compel A. to pay on what he really has in the land, and B. to pay on the mortgage, no matter whether he be a resident or non-resident. That is the only fair and just method of handling the matter. It is the only system which can be defended.

pleased if all persons wishing their letters to go in a hurry would write "In haste" on the lower left hand corner of the envelope. Then everybody connected with the service will jump around lively. The sack containing it will be delivered to the route clerk on the run. The route clerk rushes ahead and notifies the engineer to pull the throttle wide open, and the rural carrier whips his horses into a gallop, all in order that the instructions shall be obeyed.

One of the most illustrious victims of the grim reaper, death, during this year is the late Senator Orville H. Platt, senator from Connecticut, who died at his home in Washington, on April 21st. His life was one of exceeding usefulness and honor. He was a man of exemplary character and extraordinary diligence and application. He was regarded as a high authority in matters of jurisprudence, and he presided at the impeachment trial of Judge Swayne before the Senate in February of this year. Mr Platt belonged to the Allison type of statesmen, men without great oratorical ability in the usual sense of that term, but who by virtue of untiring effort have so thoroughly informed themselves on legislative affairs that they are listened to eagerly by enlightened people. Senator Platt resembled the late Senator Hoar in his rigid New England Puritanism. He was descended from a long line of New England ancestors, and in habits and temperament revealed those rugged traits of honesty and incorruptibility which have characterized so many of the descendants of the Puritans. His death is a distinct loss to his country. Men of his type are too rare in legislative halls, and executive positions. The career of O. H. Platt is a commendable example to aspiring young men in any walk of life.

We know of no brighter and pithier essays now being published than those that Rafford Pyke contributes monthly to "The Twentieth Century Home." The theme in the May issue bears the engaging title of "Coquetry and Flirtation," and a sharp line of distinction is drawn between the two.

SOWING GRASS SEED.

This coming spring will find the usual amount of grass seed sown in the rotation. We venture the assertion that more money is lost through the improper sowing of grass seed than in any seed planting on the farm. Grass seed costs a good price to begin with and not one farmer in ten sows as much as would be profitable for him to sow.

Where grass seed is sown with nurse crops avoid sowing with oats. The danger in sowing with oats lies in the rank growth, danger from lodging and the harvesting of the crop in July when the ground is usually hard and dry. The young grass plants in the beginning are robbed of much moisture, sunshine and often fertility, and as a result the grass is crowded out. Barley or spring rye is much better as a nurse crop for grass, such as the clovers and alfalfa.

We have found that where oats are to be followed with grass such as timothy, that a good plan is to plow the oat stubble under, prepare a fine seed bed and sow the seed alone about the first of September. Cover the seed by rolling with a heavy roller. We sow not less than twenty-five quarts of seed per acre. By this practice we have been able to keep the ground free from weeds and can harvest a good crop of hay the following season.

Buy grass seed early. This will give a chance for the farmer to send to his seedmen and get a sample of the seed furnished. See that the sample is clean and that the seeds will germinate. Then make the seedmen send as good seed as the sample. It will pay you to get the best seed possible from a reliable source, even though it may cost a little more. The best grass seed is none too good. This year there is a scarcity of grass seed in the northern states and by ordering seed early the farmer may avoid getting imported seed which is quite sure to be the case if the ordering of the grass seed is postponed until the last thing.

THE THEATRE TRUST.

While there are no phases or developments of the trust evil that are not obnoxious to the spirit of justice and fair play the theatrical syndicate impresses itself upon the enlightened mind as being especially abhorrent.

That extortion and black mail in financial and commercial matters are reprehensible no one will deny. How much more contemptible and vile is it, when in addition to that, it is sought to distort and corrupt the art of a country to contribute to the pecuniary advantage of a clique of vandals, who parade in the guise of patrons of the drama?

The highest manifestation of human perfection is found in art its various forms, not the least exalted of which is the drama. Art is not the product of isolation, but it is possible only where the social relations are highly and broadly cultivated. It is true that the inspiration of art comes in a large measure out of solitary communion with self and nature; but technique is built up through the medium of social culture. When in the very nerve centers of social development a venom is injected, the stream of influence is poisoned at the fountain.

No one familiar with the methods of Klaw & Erlanger and Daniel Frohman and the rest of that sinister gang for a moment doubts that their only criterion in the consideration of dramatic productions is the box office receipts. That is their own business, however, but when they attempt to dictate to the American people what dramas they may have, the monstrosity of their methods is apparent.

It is refreshing amid the discouragements incident to independent management to note that there are some, even among the stars and geniuses of the stage, who scorn the trust, and at greatly diminished returns of pecuniary profit defy the enmity of the octopus. They are the true artists, yielding to venality neither the honor of their calling nor the sanctity of an exalted art. Among the foremost of the great actresses in that heroic band are Mrs. Fiske, Mrs. Leslie Carter, Blanche Bates, and recently Henrietta Crossman. That evertowering his trionic genius, Richard Mansfield, we regret to say has been persuaded to labor with the trust, because of their disposition to yield to his terms. What an influence in the fight for an independent stage he might have been! No one familiar with his superb talent but regrets his failure to align himself with art against greed. To David Belasco belongs lasting credit for his valiant efforts toward the promotion of a free and untrammelled drama. May he prevail in the good fight.

The declaration of Senator Wm. T. Stewart, of Nevada, who is seventy eight years of age, and whose term in the U. S. Senate expired on March 4th, that he will begin over again and make a fortune should put to shame many younger men who are so devoid of confidence and hope that they can see nothing but failure ahead. Senator Stewart has made and dissipated several fortunes, and now, at an age when most men retire from active business affairs, this patriarchal lawyer, pioneer and statesman announces his determination to make another fortune.
