The adventure of Marshall Moloney and his posse tends to prove that there are opportunities even now to enact some of the thrilling scenes described in the story books.

Mr. Emil Timm, formerly cashier of the bank at Ricketts, is to be added to the clerical force of the Crawford County State Bank. We are glad to note this evidence of increased business on the part of the Denison institution.

Mayor John T. Carey and family have returned from a two weeks delightful outing in Colorado. They made Denver their headquarters and from that place went to Boulder, Colorado Springs, and Cripple Creek. Why pay 10 cents for Ice Cream Soda when you can get the very best for 5 cents a glass at The City Bakery.

On account of the great heat, the sale of Mrs. Gregory's household goods failed to draw a large crowd, and the prices were more satisfactory to the purchasers than to the seller. Mrs. Gregory and her son Horace leave this week for Omaha where Horace has a position and where they will keep house with Mrs. Michaelson.

Try an Ice Cream Soda for 5 cents at The City Bakery and you will never pay 10 cents for one at any other place.

The girls of the St. Agnes Guild of the Episcopal church gave one of their charming socials on the lawn of the W. T. Wright residence on Friday evening. The day had been an extremely hot one and all enjoyed the ice cream. The St. Agnes Guild is one of the most successful and enterprising of the many church societies in Denison. Although composed of young girls only, they have earned enough so that this year they have sufficient on hand to pay for the wiring and fixtures for the electric lighting of their church. Nearly two hundred people patronized the young ladies on Friday night.

Puffing Our Cigars

is a pleasure enjoyed by many smokers hereabouts who have learned that our line of cigars is one that can please every taste in tobacco. Another point we make is the way we keep our cigars—everyone just moist enough to make a perfect smoke. We make a specialty of the box trade.

Ice Cream Soda, 5 cent a glass, at The City Bakery.

As a result of the preliminary hearing held before Justice Gulick on Monday, the man and woman captured last week were bound over to await the action of the Grand Jury. If guilty they should be severely punished as nothing could be more demoralizing than their nefarious business.

Work has commenced on the Rippen hill and the whole force is working full blast. This will be a big improvement. It is our hope that while they are at it the work will be done well and according to the exact grade. It is the half-way measure and the compromises to please some individual that always makes trouble in the end.

The Omaha Ticket Co. is moving this week to new quarters under C. C. Kemming's store. The Ticket Co. is doing a fine business and one that is steadily growing. This made, more room necessary than the present Review building can afford. The move is but temporary, however, as Mr. Rollins expects to move back when the new Review building shall be completed. Few people know that Denison now ships theatre tickets all over the United States. The longer such a concern remains in business the greater its number of old customers and the Omaha Ticket Co. has now passed its infancy and may confidently be expected to stand as one of Denison's solid businesses and one which brings outside money to the town. We wish Mr. Rollins good luck in his new quarters and hope the day is not far distant when the new Review block shall afford him a permanent home.

REMEMBERED HIS BIRTHDAY.

The many friends of Mr. M. King remembered his birthday in a kindly fashion today by presenting him with a handsome croquet mallet. Mr. King is an enthusiast at the game and the mallet makes a very acceptable souvenir.

THEIR STUMBLING BLOCK

(Contributed)

The entire status of women have changed within the past generation. Where once they were ignorant they are now educated; they have followed their domestic work outside the home, where it has been largely taken, and have now become recognized industrial factors; once legally unable to own property they now pay annual billions of dollars in taxes; once isolated and wholly without knowledge of or interested in public affairs, they are now in great organizations and actively engaged in civic work. Their relation to the government has been transferred, and however potent may have been the reasons for excluding them from the voting body a generation ago, these now are without existence.

The masses of men, especially in the states west of the Mississippi River, where the foreign element does not overshadow, recognize these modern conditions and admit the justice of giving this new race of women a voice in the Government. In any and all of these states a majority of the men would vote in favor of granting the franchise to women if they were free from the domination of the party leaders who "run the machine." But these controlling powers upon the passions and fears of certain classes, making them believe that their own personal rights would be curtailed if women could vote, and so they exercise their veto power. Eliminate from any campaign for woman suffrage the political "bosses," with all that name implies, and the voters themselves could be depended on for a favorable majority—a square deal.

THE LIVING AND DEAD

Remembered by Former Resident of Crawford

A LETTER OF APPRECIATION

For the Great and Good of Denison who are Gone and Words of Encouragement for the Living.

DURHAM, MO JULY, 13, 1905.

Thanks for the fine picture of the late Cyrus Sprecher and the good words spoken of him. Having been acquainted with Mr. Sprecher from the centennial year of '76 until coming to Missouri two years ago we know your statements were true. With him honesty was "bred in the bone." He won and retained the unlimited confidence of all who made his acquaintance. Quite a large number of men who were citizens of Denison from twenty to thirty years ago were men of prominence and influence, leaders in social, business, and political circles and have like Mr. Sprecher passed over the river with unclouded character. We recall Andy Maloney, Claus Seivers, J. Fred Meyers, Judge Bassett, Messers Stone, Shillington, Wilson, M. Smith and others. All men of intelligence and integrity each doing nobly their part to make Denison and Crawford county what they now are. Perhaps to Mr. Meyers was given the most important work and the largest sphere of influence. Down among the fundamentals of society and the foundation of enterprises and springing up he labored faithfully to impress upon every member of the growing community that growth in intelligence and morals should keep pace with material progress. We were proud of the Review in those days (have no reason to be ashamed of it since.) We sent many copies to people in the east who from reading its columns were convinced that the West though in some sense wild was not "wooly" but a healthy country with fertile soil and vast resources to be developed. Some of them came to Crawford and adjoining counties bought land at 5 and 10 dollars per acre upon which they built substantial and really beautiful homes in which they have reared families under advantages they never could have attained in the east.

Many of those old settlers have passed to the great unknown. As one after another have fallen the Review has come to us with obituaries of as true, worthy, and noble men and women as have lived in this great country of ours. When reading eulogies of our honored dead we sometimes wonder why more is not said in commendation of our honorable living, could not the workers of today do better work if given assurance of a generous appreciation? In this connection we mention Dr. J. M. P. Smith of Chicago University, who began in Denison a career that will not end until he reaches the top round of the scholastic ladder he has been climbing for the past seventeen years.

In 1886 John, a lean, lanky, red-faced youth of sixteen, came from England at the invitation of his uncle, Charles Powis, then farming in Paradise township. The lad was almost penniless but full of grit, and bound to make the most of his opportunities. In 1888 he worked for me as a farm hand. Finding he had gathered up the rudiments of common school education, we encouraged him to study up and attend the teachers' institute in Denison. He came through with second grade teachers' certificate. After teaching and farming two or three years he took a full course at Des Moines college, then taught Greek a year or so at Cedar Valley and moved in to Chicago University.

Immediately after graduating there he was employed by President Harper at remunerative wages. Mr. Smith has now been elected to an important professorship in the University.

In the preface of a book on the Hebrew Prophets, recently written by Dr. Harper, he acknowledges the valuable assistance of Dr. J. M. P. Smith, once my student, but now my colleague. Dr. Smith is well married, has a home, position and outlook that richly reward his efforts.

Are there not in the Denison schools young people, who will be encouraged by his success? What others have done you can do. Those who go up the heights leave the road behind them.

J. O. PETTIS.

A FORCED VACATION

On Sunday the editor got the false impression that he was a member of the fire company and ran with the hose cart through the broiling sun. Soon after we felt the unpleasant consequences in the shape of a slight attack of heat prostration while pretty sick for a while we are now on deck again having enjoyed a vacation spent in bed with head swathed in ice water bandages. We have tried from our bed to keep track of events and to get out a newsy paper, but it is a bit of a handicap and we apologize for any short coming.

A CONVENIENCE TO FARMERS.

The Balle-Brodersen Co. would call the special attention of the farmers to the splendid facilities they now have for handling country produce. A cement driveway just back of the store leads directly to the butter and egg department. The farmer can drive right to the door and leave his produce without any "lugging" or inconvenience. Driving on a few feet he can load with any heavy goods he may need. Everything possible has been done to make this convenient for the farmers and the farmer's wife and we are confident that it will be greatly appreciated by their customers.

A COMPANION.

It is our custom each week to contras the Denison papers—not for the purpose of throwing bouquets at ourselves, but to find our short comings—to ascertain just what news we failed to get and why.

The comparison of last week's papers showed that the Bulletin contained twenty-eight items of more or less news value which the Review failed to report. This made us feel pretty bad until we looked at the other end of the checking and found that the Review had garnered in just one hundred forty-two items with which the Bulletin failed to connect.

FOR SALE.

Hot Water Heater instantaneous—twenty gallons capacity. Inquire of ISKEMING & HOYER, 29-31.

A NICE, COOL PLACE.

If one could only bring his hammock in the big ice box of the Balle-Brodersen store, these days would be ones of pure delight. The new ice box is a whopper. It is of the Orr & Lockett make and is the best that money could buy. The ice is stored over-head and it requires about five tons of ice to keep it comfortably filled. The drip pan system is used, which means that the ice cold water drips into pans at the top of the cooling rooms, thus utilizing all the cold and giving just the right degree of moisture. The temperature in the cooling rooms hovers about 40 degrees above zero all the time and during the night gets almost to the freezing point.

The apartment kept for fruit contains nearly a quarter of a car. Watermelons, cantelopes, fruits and berries can thus be kept in prime condition. The firm makes a specialty of fruits and hot house vegetables, and not in Chicago can be found a finer or more complete assortment. A room of equal size is devoted to meats—hams, bacon, sausage of a dozen varieties.

The third room is reserved for butter, and here the fine product of the farm is kept in prime condition for the city tables. The ice box has heavy plate glass windows, opening into the grocery department and one can see and select for himself from the tempting array of delicacies. The ice box is in keeping with the rest of the store, in being the very best.

Accept This As An Invitation

We will be glad to see everyone that calls whether they buy or not. We are now doing business in our new store, corner Main and Broadway, and will take pleasure to show all comers this model store building, the only one of its kind in the state. We want everyone to get acquainted with the conveniences installed for their especial benefit. Perfectly ventilated. This is the coolest place to trade.
