DEATH SHOULD PUNISH HIS CRIME.

Wishes Law Had Killed Him at Once—Tells of the Crime—His Hope to Repay—The Mental Anguish of Himself and Family—Will Go to Alaska to Regain Fortune and Repay Widows.

PORTLAND, OREGON, AUG. 5TH, 1905.

DEAR SIR:—

You will no doubt be surprised to hear from me, but I wished to write you a few lines. First, in regard to the Officer at Winters that let me go; it was no fault of his, it was all of the best people of the town that insisted that I should have liberty to go where I please, and no compensation of any kind was ever offered him.

Second:—I had about come to the conclusion that there were no indictments against me and I was getting started in a hotel and was making no secret of where I was located and thought with hard work of myself and family I would be able in time at least to pay all the poorer depositors and one of the objects of living is that I may sometime get enough money together that I can pay every cent that I justly owe; and how can I possibly do anything in that line if I am on trial and locked up. God only knows what the verdict of a jury would be, but I know that I did all mortal man could do, as I thought to protect everyone that I was indebted to, and I thought in any case of failure that my assets would more than pay all liabilities, but I had no idea how things would shrink in value in a receiver's hands. For instance a thousand acres of land in Western Nebraska that I could have sold for Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars and I do not think could be bought for that to-day sold by the receiver for Fifteen Thousand Dollars and other pieces of property in proportion, only worse. I suppose the receiver did as well as he could, for everybody tries to buy property forced on the market at half price.

One more thought and I am through: I do not see any reason in justice why the law should pursue me. (Remember I am not finding any fault with your actions to have me arrested as you are only fulfilling the duties of your office in accordance with the law.) The only thing I contend is why any one should want me locked up if they could have me. Do they think I am dangerous or do they want to punish me.

I have had all the punishment that mortal man could bear without committing suicide and my wife and family have gone through untold mental agony. Now I am separated from my wife and family and no one knows when I will see them again. I would not care for myself, but all efforts to punish me react on my wife and children. I have often wished that the law was changed so that when a man failed he would be shot or killed by the officers of the law. For that is one thing I am not afraid of and that is to die, for then a person will go before the Supreme God who will judge our acts in accordance with the spirit in which they were done.

I suppose the best thing for me to do now is to go to some country like Alaska and see if I can retrieve my financial strength so that I will be able to support my family and if possible make enough so that I can commence paying up on my old indebtedness to depositors.

I have no doubt with the Lord on my side that in a few years I will at least be able to send some money to some widow depositors like Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Hammond.

With regards to all and enmity against no one in this world, I remain,

Yours truly,

I mail this from Vancouver, British Col., Aug. 9th.
