VOLUME 41.

DENISON, IOWA, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1905.

NO. 3

NEW MERCHANTS FOR DENISON

Brothers Will Open September 15. At the Hub Corner.

IRMAN BOYS THRIVE WELL

Energy and Ability This New Firm Has Come to the Front in the Land of Their Adoption.

They were also good business men and finally Opportunity came and found them ready.

Mr. E. C. Petersen decided that he could find a better scope for his business ability and capital in a larger town and accordingly rented an excellent location in Kansas City. He announced that he would close out his business here and there was at once much speculation as to what would become of Denison's long established clothing corner. It was then that the Huettman Brothers came to the front. Quietly they went to work, secured a lease on the building, found men in Denison who had confidence in their business ability and who were ready to advance them what money they needed to buy a brand new stock of clothing and to take up the business where Mr. Petersen might leave off. It was as shrewd a business move as Denison has seen and it was only such energetic, nervy young men as the Huettmann's who could have carried it through.

They are now busy unpacking and marking their goods and having the store repainted and repaired and just as soon as possible they will open the doors of their new store and solicit the patronage of the public.

Gus is thirty, Walter is twenty-three. They are not rich and they don't claim to be. They start largely with borrowed capital and they do not care who knows it. They have the determination, the energy, and the stick-to-it-ativeness, however that in our judgment will bring success. In a few years they will have their stock paid for, or else we miss our guess very badly, and some day they will have repeated the history of such men as J. P. Miller, Claus Sievers, B. J. Sibbert, Aug. Balle, B. Brodersen, Hugo Gebert, Chas. Kemming, Frank Pfarr, and others, all of whom have risen from the ranks, from poor German boys to prosperous American merchants. We wish the new firm the best of good fortune. The past tells us that Denison will support three first class clothing stores and we bespeak for the young merchants their third of the trade.

IOWA STATE FAIR PRIZES.

McHenry's Aberdeen Angus took sixteen prizes. His herds took First, Second and Third prizes, when he was beaten it was generally with cattle that he bred and sold to other parties. The Grade Champion steer, McHenry, was sired by McHenry Franklin and the First Prize bull calf had for dam, Queen McHenry 42nd. Many exhibitors with good cattle did not get within the money, the competition being so great, twenty-five animals being in a class.

Mr. McHenry's cattle go from Des Moines to Minnesota, thence to Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois, St. Louis and Kansas City.

A SAD CASE.

Mr. John Duff was brought before the commissioners of insanity last Thursday and on Friday morning, having been adjudged insane, he was taken to the state hospital at Clarinda. It seems that while at times he is quite rational at other times he becomes violently insane and must be restrained by force. He was first taken to St. Bernard's hospital at Council Bluffs and when returned it was at first thought that he was much improved. Later developments however caused steps to be taken for his removal to the state hospital. Mr. Duff is about forty-five years of age and this loss of reason just at the prime of a well spent life is pitiful in the extreme.

COURT HOUSE GOES SLOW.

The board of supervisors confess that they do not know just where they are at regarding the court house construction. Practically no work has been done on the building during the past two months. The contractors say that they cannot proceed until the roof is on and the roofers say they cannot go ahead until the dome is erected and the base of the dome is said to have left Chicago on Monday. Unwisely, the board has placed no time limit on the construction of the building and there seems to be nothing to do but to await the convenience of the contractors. The contractors have promised that the building would be ready for partial occupancy this fall but it would appear that there is little likelihood of the fulfillment of the promise.

Miss Lois Plimpton is expected in Denison soon for a visit with her old friends on her return from Salida, Colorado. It is a number of years since Miss Plimpton lived in Denison, but there are still many of us who will be rejoiced to see her again.

It is about time to remind the farmers of P. of Holden's advice concerning seed corn. Was it to pick the poor corn early and let the good corn go until later and then to select your seed from frost-bitten, weather-beaten corn or was it to keep your eye out for the best part of the field, select the best ears out of that and put them away in a good, dry place early in the season?

VALE—THE OLD REVIEW OFFICE.

THE REVIEW is having a hard time to keep the roof over its head these days. The old REVIEW building is being torn down forever. It is all right and we are glad of it but there are many tender recollections connected with the old building that come to us as we hear the carpenters at their work. The building has been standing about thirty-five years. At one time it housed the REVIEW, Die Zeitung, the postoffice and the express office. In the early days the mail was delivered to Charter Oak, Kiron, Deloit and Harlan from the Denison office and all the farmers living in the German settlement came to the Denison postoffice for their mail. Later the Morgan postoffice was established and the mail was sent out from Denison. Thus every old settler in the county had business in the REVIEW building at some time in the year. The old office was the scene of the labors of Mr. J. Fred Meyers throughout his life in Denison. For this reason if for no other we believe that many good and useful things have come out of its portals. Thoughts and words that have helped the people of the entire county. Words of comfort and sympathy in time of trouble and hardship, words of helpfulness and strength for the over-wearied words of hope and energy for the young and ambitious, words of rejoicing and congratulation for the happy and the successful. And with it all there came from the pen of J. Fred Meyers much wisdom. From the dingy office windows he looked out upon the world and knew it for his own. His mind was at home in every nation and in every clime. He knew the great men of his times and they knew and respected him and the editorials of the little country weekly, issued from the little frame office in the little frontier town had weight in the councils of the Nation. We believe it was this constant educating force that made the great men of Crawford county to-day. The constant and thoughtful reader of the REVIEW in the days when J. Fred Meyers was at the helm became a statesman in spite of himself, for the brainy man does not end his education with his school days, and thus it was that when called upon Denison has never failed to furnish men of the first calibre.

It is our hope that the new building may become the home of as much good and as much usefulness as the old business building knew in its best days. It is our hope that the REVIEW may always stand for what is right and honest, and that it may always be welcomed as a friend in the homes of the people. We are ready to give our readers the very best that is in us. We know our limitations, know that we lack the wisdom, the profundity, the intimate knowledge of men and events that characterized the great editor of the REVIEW, but we shall keep on giving our best and hoping that with the years some portion of his wisdom and experience may be ours. It is a comfort to know that the REVIEW will live long after we too are gone, that it is a part of the county and the county's history and that just as the old building is vanishing without interruption of the old paper which it housed so long, so we also may be laid away and it shall live.

Road Drag on Mail Routes.

The Marshalltown Times-Republican is receiving communications from rural mail carriers throughout the state in relation to the benefits of the King road drag. G. A. Walrath, carrier out of Blairsbare, writes: "There are five drags on my route, but they are not used. Through my efforts the township trustees had ten made last spring of the best of heavy plank and ten men agreed to use them for one year as a trial. Of the five on my route two were used twice, two once, and one not at all. When used they worked fine and gave good results. Without a doubt the King drag will make better roads at the least cost of any machine ever put on the road."

W. S. Hoon, carrier out of Jewell, writes: "There are quite a few King drags on my route and they are a fine thing if used at the proper time, but some use them too soon after a rain and the most wait too long till the lumps get hard as a rock and then they make very little impression on the roads, but if used at the proper time they are the finest thing ever invented."

Monday was Labor Day. And Denison kept right on laboring.

September came in as if it knew it was a fall month and meant to live up to its reputation. The farmers are now calculating on the results of an early frost, the up-to-date grocers are getting in their fresh oysters and the straw hat looks like a back number. There is no healthier, more invigorating climate in all the world than Iowa autumn weather. If a man has any get-up-and-git about him it ought to show up now. Things ought to be kept booming from now until the first of the year.
