NATURE'S NOBLEMEN.
 Those Who Are Ambitious To Be Useful Rather Than Rich.
 A young man of ability and great promise recently refused to enter a vocation which would yield him a large income, lest the temptation to become rich might eat up his desire to help his fellow men. He feared that the frantic struggle for wealth and self being waged by the majority of men with whom his position would force him to associate would insensibly draw him into the same vortex of selfishness. He felt that his ideals would become tarnished, that his aspirations would be starved in such an atmosphere, and so he chose a vocation which would enable him to render the greatest service to humanity.
 It is a refreshing thing in a material age to see people who are ambitious to be useful rather than rich, who are more eager to help others than to make money. These are nature's noblemen; these are the characters which enrich life and which have pushed civilization up from the savage to the Florence Nightingales and the Lincolns.
 One of the most promising things about our civilization today is that, side by side with the greed for gold, is the ever growing passion of humanity for the good. The number of people who prefer to be useful to their fellow men rather than to make money is constantly increasing. This passion for good is the salt of humanity; it is what makes us believe in the future of the race.—Success.

Jefferson Identified Him.
 Laurence Hutton, the author, once stopped at the Touraine hotel in Boston on his way from Bar Harbor to New York, and, being short of funds after his summer outing, the hotel clerk required identification before assigning him a suit of rooms.
 Mr. Hutton looked around the lobby and noticed Joe Jefferson, to whom he confided his predicament. Mr. Jefferson went to the desk and, slapping Mr. Hutton on the back, remarked to the clerk, "I don't know who Laurence claims to be, but he's the boy." He was given the pick of the house.
 Somewhat Different.
 "This question whether a word should have its adverbial or its adjective form seems to me to have little to do with the sense. Now, what is the difference between talking loud and talking loudly?"
 "No difference," replied the pedagogical friend. "But look here: For a large fee you give legal advice freely, but you don't give it free. I think that will retain you for a while."

ORIGINAL NOTICE.
 STATE OF IOWA,

 In the District Court of Iowa, in and for Crawford County, at the November term, A. D. 1905
 Hal C. Simpson,
 Plaintiff, vs
 Harry Davis,
 Ray Baker, and Elsie Baker,
 Defendants.
 To Harry Davis, Ray Baker, and Elsie Baker, defendants: You are hereby notified that on or before the 2nd day of November 1905 a petition will be filed by said plaintiff, Hal C. Simpson, in the office of the clerk of the District Court of Crawford County, Iowa, claiming that he is the absolute owner in fee simple, of the following described real estate, to wit: Lot Ten and the West Half of Lot Nine in Block 34 Denison, Iowa, and that his title thereto is based upon a deed executed October 2nd, 1905, and signed by J. D. Havens and Lenora Havens his wife, as grantees.
 2. That on or about the 26th day of March 1895 one Mary E. Havens, acquired title to the above described real estate, viz, Lot Ten and the West Half of Lot Nine, in Block 34, Denison, Iowa.
 3. That on or about the 12th day of October 1895, said Mary E. Havens, died intestate, leaving the following heirs, J. D. Havens, her husband, Charles P. Davis and his minor son Harry Davis, William Baker and his minor children Ray Baker and Elsie Baker, Charles Havens and Henrietta Havens his wife, Charles Hitchcock and Henrietta Hitchcock his wife, Merton Davis and Maud Davis his wife, James M. Havens and Sarah A. Havens his wife, being all of the heirs of Mary E. Havens deceased.
 4. That for a valuable consideration all of the said heirs of Mary E. Havens joined in a Quitclaim Deed conveying the above described premises to J. D. Havens.
 5. That Harry Davis, Ray Baker and Elsie Baker, being minors, said quit claim deed was signed on their behalf by Charles P. Davis as guardian for Harry Davis, and William Baker as guardian for Ray Baker and Elsie Baker.
 6. That because said deed fails to show any authority for said guardianship the plaintiff is credibly informed that the said Harry Davis, Ray Baker and Elsie Baker, defendants, make some claim adverse to the estate of plaintiff in said property.
 And plaintiff prays that title to the above described real estate be quieted in him, and that you be barred and forever estopped from having or claiming, any right or title thereto adverse to the plaintiff. And that unless you appear thereto and defend before noon of the second day of the next term of said court commencing at Denison, Iowa, the 13th day of November, A. D. 1905, default will be entered against you and judgment rendered thereon.
 Dated this 11th day of October A. D. 1905.

MAKING PIPE ORGANS.
 Interesting Work That is Done in the Voicing Room.
 Both the metal and wooden pipes of a pipe organ are made on the selfsame principle of the willow whistles that every man made when he was a boy, and so, after all, a pipe organ, the mightiest musical instrument yet invented, is but the evolution of that primitive pipe of Pan, the willow whistle.
 The most interesting place in an organ factory is the voicing room. Up to the time the pipes enter this room they are as dumb as broomsticks. Here the breath of life is breathed into them, and they are made to speak, each in the voice intended by its maker. Here the big fat pipes are taught to thunder out their diapason and those scarce the diameter of a slate pencil and one-half an inch long to utter their shrill whistle and others the thousands of varying tones between. And not only must the pipes of one stop speak correctly as individuals and members of their own particular family, but they must be in accord with all the hundreds of others in whose midst they are to live. To see that they do this is the work of a man whose ear is keen to the slightest variation and who must know why a pipe does not speak as it should and how to make it. One by one the pipes are set upon the wind chest standing here, with the bellows and all the internal mechanism of an organ properly adjusted and with a keyboard in front of him the voicer tests each one. By changing the size and shape of the aperture through which the wind passes he governs the tone until it is exactly what it should be, a task which only a man with the nicest sense of sound can accomplish.

DESKS OF FAMOUS MEN.
 There Are Many of Them Scattered About the Country.
 The desk of Salmon P. Chase, a plain piece of furniture made from mahogany, is in one of the rooms of the treasury department at Washington. There are many of these old desks scattered about the country, their chief claim to interest being that once some well known man leaned over them.
 Alexander Hamilton's traveling desk, made of mahogany and measuring 12 by 16 inches and 10 inches high, is an interesting object. Upon this desk was written much of his literary work, and the worn green baize with which it is lined attests to the use to which it was put. There is a drawer in one side and several compartments for pens and ink, while upon the top is inlaid a silver plate with the name "General Alexander Hamilton" engraved upon it. Within the top is a strip of parchment which says, "Given by Mrs. General Schuyler to her daughter, Mrs. General A. Hamilton." No doubt the convenient size was what recommended it to the general.
 Nathaniel Hawthorne's desk is preserved at the custom house, Salem, Mass. A desk at which he wrote some of his inimitable romances was just a board standing out from the wall at an angle. This is still in the tower room at Wayside, his home at Concord, Mass. Victor Hugo had in his Guernsey house a study built almost entirely of glass and perched upon the roof. Like Hawthorne, he, too, stood at his writing, and his desk was a mere shelf fastened by hinges to the wall.—Delineator.

Origin of a Phrase.
 Many years ago the will deer that roamed through the forests of England used to dig holes in the earth with their forefeet. They pawed it out sometimes to the depth of several inches, sometimes a foot or more. These holes were called "scraps" and travelers at dusk or night or those who were careless about their footing often tumbled into them. They were laughed at for their heedlessness when they came home covered with mud, and, as this frequently occurred after they had been imbibing a bit, they were said to have "got into a scrape." Some Cambridge students took up this expression, and thus it came to be applied to people who had got into difficulties of various sorts.
Cooked Under Water.
 In 1706 one James Austin laid a wager of $500 that he would cook a plum pudding ten feet beneath the surface of the Thames near Rotherhithe. The bet was readily accepted, and many people flocked to the appointed locale to watch this strange exhibition of the culinary art. Inclosed in a tin pan in the center of a sack of lime the pudding was lowered beneath the water, where for two hours and a half it remained. It was then taken up and partaken of by a committee, who declared that Austin had won his wager, the pudding being, if anything, overdone.

A Broad Hint.
 "Mamma," said a six-year-old girl, entering the sitting room one morning recently, "don't you want some candy?"
 The mother was writing a letter. "Why, yes, dear," she replied. "Give me a piece."
 "I ain't dot any," came from the child, "an' I ain't dot any nickel to dit none."
 She got the nickel.—Kansas City Times.

Morally Improving Habit.
 The habit of dressing well grows on a man like the opium habit, but its consequences, instead of being disastrous, are delightful and socially as well as morally improving.—Sartorial Art Review.
 Rashfulness may sometimes exclude pleasure, but seldom opens any avenue to sorrow or remorse.—Johnson.
